NEW FOOD ACT EXPECTED TO PASS HOUSE THIS WEEK

Bill Reported Contains Practically All of President's Suggestions.

SENATE IS STILL OPPOSED

APPLIES ONLY TO WARTIME

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. — Accepting Attorney General Palmer's recommendations in general for legislation dealing with the high cost of living, the House Committee on Agriculture today reported a bill along the lines suggested by President Wilson and Mr. Palmer, with the exception that farmers are exempted from the provisions of the profiteering section.

The bill probably will come up in the House tomorrow or next day, where, according to Republican Leader Mondell, it will be passed without change this week. Opposition exists in the Senate to the bill reported by the House Committee, but this is expected to disappear under the force of strong public sentiment existing for legislation to remedy high prices.

The bill, as reported, gives the President everything he recommended in his message, so far as amendment of the Food Control act is concerned, except that the act is not extended to peace times, as was requested by him. The bill embraces "wearing apparel, containers primarily designed or intended for food, feed, or fertilizers, &c.," which are brought under the drastic provisions of the Food Control act. Retailers doing a business of less than $100,000 a year, who were exempted from the profiteering clause in the original act, are included in the amendment, which carries a penalty of a fine of $5,000 a year, a two-year imprisonment, or both.

The plan suggested by Chairman Haugen which would have authorized the President to fix a fair price is abandoned in the bill. What is a fair price will be a matter of fact to be decided, in case of prosecution, by a jury, but a jury will be aided in determining this price by county and State fair price committees. Attorney General Palmer believes that after fair price committees have announced a list of prices public sentiment will force the dealers to abide by the lists and that there will be no necessity for widespread prosecutions for profiteering. The bill reported today follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, that the first paragraph of the act entitled 'An act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel,' approved Aug. 10, 1919, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"'That by reason of the existence of a state of war, it is essential to the national security and defense, for the successful prosecution of the war and for the support and maintenance of the army and navy, to assure an adequate supply and equitable distribution, and to facilitate the movement of foods, feeds, wearing apparel, containers, primarily designed or intended for containing food, feed, or fertilizers; fuel, including fuel oil and natural gas and fertilizer and fertilizer ingredients, tools, utensils, implements, machinery and equipment required for the actual production of foods, feeds, and fuel, hereafter in this act called necessaries; to prevent, locally or generally, scarcity, monopolization, hoarding, injurious speculation, manipulation and private controls affecting such supply, distribution, and movement, and to establish and maintain governmental control of such necessaries during the war. For such purposes the instrumentalities, means, methods, powers, authorities, duties, obligations and prohibitions hereinafter set forth are created, established, conferred, and prescribed. The President is authorized to make such regulations and to issue such orders as are essential effectively to carry out the provisions of this act.'

"Section 2. That Section 4 of the act entitled 'An act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel,' approved Aug. 10, 1917, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"'That it is hereby made unlawful for any person willfully to destroy any necessaries for the purpose of enhancing the price or restricting the supply thereof; knowingly to commit waste or willfully to permit preventable deterioration of any necessaries in or in connection with their production, manufacture, or distribution; to hoard, as defined in Section 6 of this act, any necessaries; to monopolize or attempt to monopolize, either locally or generally, any necessaries; to engage in any discriminatory and unfair, or any deceptive or wasteful practice or device, or to make any unjust or unreasonable

Bolsheviki in South Russia Slay Babies, Burn Old People

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Bolsheviki have plundered the town of Stanizas, in the district of the upper Don River, according to advices reaching here. Cruelties were inflicted on the population by the Bolsheviki, who are reported to have killed children in their cradles and to have burned old people.

In the towns of Migulinskaia and Kazanskaia, in the same region, the advices add, 5,000 persons have been executed and more than 800 have been put to death in the surrounding territory.

THOUSANDS IN LINE TO BUY ARMY FOOD

BABY BUGGIES POPULAR

Goods Worth $60,000 Disposed Of and More Depots Will Be Opened Today.

The first lot of surplus army food supplies obtained by New York City from the Quartermaster Corps was put on sale here yesterday in fifty school buildings scattered over the five boroughs of the city.

By the time business closed late in the afternoon those in charge of this first venture of the city into the retail grocery trade were congratulating themselves that the experiment had been a success.

At the Department of Markets, which supervised the work of distributing the food, it was estimated that nearly a million pounds of supplies had been sold and approximately $60,000 realized. More than 10,000 persons, men, women, and children, availed themselves of the opportunity to buy Government food at prices varying from one-half to two-thirds of the prevailing retail market quotations.

Erasmus Hall High School of Brooklyn made the best record for amount of money taken in, its total being $1,516. The crowd of buyers was largest at the De Witt Clinton High School in Manhattan, literally hundreds finding themselves unable, because of the throngs about the doors of the building, to make a single purchase.

"It was a great day," said Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, yesterday evening, when he had returned from a rapid survey of the work of distribution. "We will be able to sell every ounce of food we can get from the Government, and we are going to get all that they will give us. The people have shown a splendid spirit in view of the trouble and delays experienced in putting the food on sale, and I hope that, until the supply is exhausted, we will be able to continue to distribute supplies to all who desire to purchase.

"We could have done twice the volume of business today if it were not for the difficulty in distribution. We had a hundred trucks going every minute, and even they were not able to cope with the situation. In my mind, the lesson to be learned from the present suffering, due to high prices, is that the main element in the cost of living is distribution. There is plenty produced, but it can't be distributed evenly and cheaply. That is the reason why I am in favor of establishing terminal markets.

Explains Transportation Problem.

"For example, today we load a truck with army food at the Port Newark army supply base. Then that truck has to carry the stuff to a school on the rim of the Bronx or to the Borough of Richmond. A truck at this rate can make about one trip a day. We are trying to arrange for lighters to bring the food to convenient piers in Manhattan, but nothing has been accomplished in this direction as yet.

"Ten more schools have been partially stocked with food supplies and will, I hope, be opened for distribution the first of next week. We are also working with might and main to stock others. I will issue a list designating them and naming the locations just as soon as everything is ready."

The sale opened at ten o'clock yesterday morning in nearly all of the schools named in the list given out by Commissioner Day on Wednesday. In the Bronx, however, lack of sufficient supplies postponed the opening in several of the schools.

Each building had two policemen assigned for duty outside to form the line of purchasers and to see that everything went along with the smallest possible friction. Inside, near the improvised counter from which the food was distributed, were two more uniformed men to keep order and to give what information was desired. Those in charge of the work last night gave the policemen in general high praise for the efficient manner in which they handled the rather novel situation.

When the hour for opening the sale drew near the crowd in front of each school house was remarkable. Housewives were, of course, in the majority. But there were many men and a great number of children. While most of them came on foot many vehicles brought buyers. Limousines, touring cars, large and small, as well as horse-drawn carts and wagons of every description, lined the streets for blocks near the schools. When the supplies were purchased every

LEAGUE OPPONENTS DISCUSS PROGRAM TO REJECT TREATY

Eight Irreconcilables Would Kill Entire Document if Plan to Separate League Fails.

KNOX DRAFTS RESOLUTION

PITTMAN TO DELAY ACTION

But Hopes to Get Vote Later on Resolution Asking for Interpretations, as President Suggested.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—As an offshoot of the Senate situation, which has crystallized during the last two days into focusing the fight of the opponents of the League of Nations covenant upon drastic reservations, rather than interpretative ones, eight of the League opponents conferred today at luncheon in Senator Knox's office at the Capitol, and talked over a program for the flat rejection of the treaty.

The eight Senators, who comprise a group characterized by one of their number as the "battalion of death," agreed to fight for the elimination of the League covenant from the treaty. If that attempt fails they will endeavor to muster enough votes to defeat the entire treaty.

In the conference were Senators Knox, Fall, Johnson, Moses, Brandegee, Borah, and Poindexter, Republicans, and Reed, Democrat. Senator Lodge, the majority leader, joined the conference before it ended, but did not assent to the program to reject the treaty if the League of Nations covenant is not taken out of it. Senator Lodge's attitude, as explained by one of the Senators, is that of a leader who is trying to unite the elements of opposition. His appearance at the conference, it was stated, was merely to ascertain the trend of mind of the eight irreconcilables.

Senator Reed, one of the most pronounced enemies of the League of Nations, joined the conferees, as one of them said, because there was "no other place where he could find a formidable group of Senators who thoroughly agreed with him."

All the eight Senators, it was said, spoke unreservedly of rejecting the treaty out of hand if the League covenant is not separated from it, or drastic amendments adopted. Besides the eight, they assert, there are at least eight more, making sixteen in all, who are in sympathy with the "battalion of death."

Apart from the group of sixteen there are enough more Senators opposed to the League of Nations covenant, it is said, to make sure the rejection of the treaty unless drastic amendments are adopted. These latter Senators favor a league, but would not accept it, the leaders say, unless strong reservations are made.

Still Plans to Separate League.

The eight Senators talked for nearly three hours in Mr. Knox's office. During the conference Mr. Knox asserted his intention of bringing up in the Senate, when the treaty is reported out, a resolution to separate the League covenant for an independent vote. Mr. Knox did not prophesy that he would get support enough to achieve his object, but the eight agreed to aid him in his effort.

Senator Knox, who joined the radical Senators only recently in the move to reject the treaty, unless the League covenant is emasculated, or appreciably amended, argued at the conference that the safest way to assure America's independence would be to keep out of the League entirely. If the effort to separate the covenant from the treaty failed, he said, he would press a resolution of reservation which he has already drafted, under which the United States would be relieved of any obligation imposed upon it by the League unless assented to by Congress.

Under Mr. Knox's resolution, Congress alone would decide whether any decision of the League council would be binding. This would affect a determination as to the Monroe Doctrine, purely American questions, withdrawal, and sending soldiers to fight abroad.

One of the eight irreconcilables explained after the conference that the tentative agreement to vote for rejection of the treaty, rather than accept the League of Nations, did not mean that the program for drastic reservations would not be supported. This Senator indicated that the Senators would undoubtedly vote for the reservations, if they were drastic enough, just as they would vote for amendments to any bill that might be pending. This they would do, he said, so as not to allow the Administration forces to defeat the reservations. Upon final vote those who were utterly opposed to the League in any form, the Senator said, would then have the opportunity to vote against it without prejudice to the reservations already adopted.

Judging from the remarks of members of the group of eight, there was no opinion voiced at the conference that the fight to reject the treaty would prevail if the reservations suggested were put through. But, win or lose, several of the Senators, it is said, declared their intention to vote for rejection anyhow.

Senators Borah, Reed, Johnson, and

STAGE WRITERS ORGANIZE

Movies Take Over First-Class Houses — Actors' Show Draws Crowds.

Musicians and stagehands at the Booth Theatre, where "The Better 'Ole" has been playing, went on strike shortly before 8 o'clock last night. The actors accordingly added another to the list of closed houses, and have now caused approximately twenty-five attractions to suspend or postpone.

Half a dozen or more players in "The Better 'Ole" were called out on the first night of the strike, and the attraction has been playing in the meantime with substitutes in their places. The closing of the play leaves but a single attraction, among those operated by members of the Producing Managers' Association, still playing as usual. This is "At 9:45," at the Playhouse, and there the cast is almost entirely new. The Winter Garden, with a single set of scenery and a solitary piano in the orchestra pit, last night continued to offer vaudeville.

The return of Governor Smith to New York today is expected to bring about a renewal of peace negotiations, but scant hope is entertained that a settlement can be reached. In some quarters it is believed that the arrival of Samuel Gompers from Europe on Saturday or Sunday may result in a clearing of the atmosphere.

The playwrights' meeting at the Hotel Astor yesterday resulted in the formation of the Stage Writers' Protective Association, and application will be made to the Secretary of State today for a charter. Otto Harbach was elected President, Owen Davis Secretary, and Silvio Hein Treasurer. The playwrights announced that they would maintain a neutral attitude in the present trouble and that they had organized solely for self-protection. Among those who attended this meeting were Rupert Hughes, May Tully, Eugene Walter, Roi Cooper Megrue, Eugene Presbrey, Gene Buck, Earl Carroll, Augustus Thomas, and Leroy Scott.

At the Forty-fifth Street headquarters last night Roi Cooper Megrue and Irvin S. Cobb made addresses in support of the actors.

"I came here tonight as an American who believes in justice," Mr. Cobb said, "to congratulate you on your wonderful fight. When a man refuses to arbitrate it shows he is in the wrong. Men don't get drunk on rum alone, but on power as well, and today the managers are drunk on power."

The actors announced that an Equity Association ball will be held at the Hotel Astor on Thursday night of next week. The Equity performances at the Lexington Theatre continue to draw huge audiences, and the second week will begin next Monday night with the first appearance of Ethel Barrymore as Juliet. She will play the balcony scene, with Conway Tearle as Romeo. It was unofficially reported last night that the actors had obtained four other theatres or halls in New York, as well as a house in Philadelphia and another in Chicago.

Frank Gillmore, in a statement issued yesterday in reply to that of the managers on Wednesday, said in part:

"If the managers' interest in the theatre had been as sincere as they claim they would not have helped to degrade it to the condition against which not only the press but a long-suffering and indulgent public has murmured, or even shown its disgust by staying away. Many a time an actor has protested against objectionable things he had to do or say on the stage—things that were never planned by the playwright, but interpolated by the insistent authority of the manager. He often usurps the position of a producer, playwright, and actor in the exercise of his powers within his realm, his theatre, and in his misleading claim that he must give the public what it wants."

P. A. Powers, Treasurer of the Universal Film Company, yesterday resigned from the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry owing to the stand taken by that body in the actors' strike. The motion picture body allied itself with the Producing Managers' Association.

The managers met as usual yesterday, but gave out no formal statement. Speaking privately, they repeated that they would never recognize the Actors' Equity Association, and expressed willingness to fight on for months. That all hope of an early settlement has been abandoned is indicated by the fact that motion pictures are being put in one theatre after another. Announcement was made yesterday that "The House Without Children," a motion picture, would begin an engagement on Sunday afternoon at the Gaiety Theatre, until recently the home of "Lightnin'." A film will take possession of the Central Theatre on Sunday night.

The employment agency started by the managers has registered hundreds of names since it opened—all players who are willing to go to work immediately.

WESTCHESTER LINE TIED UP BY STRIKE FOR BIG INCREASE

AMOUNTS TO 30 PER CENT.

Judge Lydon Grants Injunction Checking Agitation Among "Red Car" Men.

The motormen and conductors employed on the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway went on strike yesterday morning in an attempt to compel the company to pay them the same rate of wages as those received by engineers and conductors on the federalized steam railroads. This would represent an increase of approximately 30 per cent. A demand for an increase of wages a short time ago was made and the company yielded on Aug. 17 by increasing the wages of the men 25 per cent. Then the company thought its labor troubles were over. But on the heels of this concession came the second demand, which the company says it cannot grant.

In a statement sent yesterday by L. S. Miller, President of the company, to Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon, the financial condition of the company was fully explained, and it was clearly indicated that if the men refused to return to work at the present rate of wages there would be nothing for the company to do but seek to operate the line with new help.

The company's line operates through central Westchester and serves White Plains, New Rochelle, Mount Vernon, Scarsdale, and the Bronx, with a terminal at 133d Street. Its daily patrons were estimated at 15,000. The stoppage of the line sent these scurrying to other systems, with the result that there was much congestion during the morning and evening on parallel lines.

In his statement to the Public Service Commission Mr. Miller said that the wages of the men had been increased in 1912, 1916, 1917, twice in 1918, and during the current year. He added this table showing how these increases affected the earnings of the men:

Total increase, (158%)	$1,678.62

Operating at a Loss.

The statement also says that since it began operation the company has never earned its operating expenses and taxes and that up to June 30, 1919, it had lost $473,913.32. In the same period, the statement says, the owners of the property have lost $6,238,762.50 in interest on the company's bonds which they have met.

After asserting that the men quit work at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, the statement of the company reads:

"The cause of the strike is a demand for an increase in wages that the company cannot meet.

"The motormen and conductors demand the standard pay of engineers and conductors on the federalized steam railroads, although the experience, qualifications and services required are materially less and in no way to be compared to those of Federal employes.

"The sole issue on which the men struck was the demand for steam railroad rates. The company has recognized the organizations to which these men belong in the conferences which have been had with the men during the past month, they have been met as representatives of their organizations, the company has agreed to all the men's demands as to working rules and an eight-hour day.

"If the company agreed to pay the wages asked it would increase the aggregate payroll of these classes of employes 30 per cent. in addition to an increase of 25 per cent. granted August 17.

"The financial condition of the company, as shown by its reports to the Public Service Commission of the Second District, demonstrates that it is in no position to meet the demands of these men, having in mind that it pays wages equal to those paid by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for similar services.

"The company hopes to be able in a few days to resume regular service."

Calls Work Simpler.

"The service which was performed by these men was simpler, less exacting, and required less experience than that demanded on steam railroads. There is no issue with the men as to collective bargaining, the right to unionize or the standard of a day's work."

It was said that the motormen joined the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers about a month ago and the conductors affiliated themselves with the Order of Railway Trainmen. No effort was made yesterday to operate and there was no trouble along the line. Police Inspector James Savage of the Eighth District kept enough uniformed

Mexican Opinion Calls Upon President Carranza to Change His Policy Toward the United States

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Advices from Mexico City received in Washington show that various groups there are demanding a change in Carranza's Government and policy toward the United States.

The Federation of Labor Unions at Mexico City has issued a manifesto asking President Carranza to form a representative Cabinet and immediately adjust the difficulties with the United States.

A circular of the Liberal Constitution Party has been published, calling on adherents throughout Mexico to work for a good understanding between the United States and Mexico.

A group of Deputies of the Mexican Congress will petition President Carranza to change his policy.

The Mexican Herald editorially says the Mexican Government is showing a disposition to change its policy, and urges the Government to listen to public opinion, which is not in favor of war.

According to El Universal, opinion in Mexico demands a complete change in the Mexican Cabinet. "Undoubtedly the key to our present difficulties," this paper is quoted as saying, "lies in Article XXVII. of the Constitution, especially as it pertains to petroleum. This must be faced squarely and patriotically."

The paper Excelsior publishes an article entitled "The Nation Has the Appearance of an Enormous Corpse," saying that among the obstacles to better international relations are the articles of the Constitution of Queretaro "so inimical to foreign capital." It expresses the wish that this cause of international friction be eliminated, and says:

"We have fought these precepts ever since the Constitution was promulgated, since we regard them not only as unfavorable to our domestic affairs, but as prone to create international complications. The pseudo-socialistic attempts of the Constitutional Convention of 1917 could not fail to bear this bitter fruit."

MEXICAN PRESS STIRS UP PEOPLE

BUT DEMONSTRATIONS FAIL

Government Understood Discouraging Expressions Hostile to the United States.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21. (Associated Press.)—The newspapers of Mexico City today continued their appeals to the Mexican people "to rouse themselves" to what is called an imminent danger to the country. They also print prominently telegrams to President Carranza from the Governors of the States of Sinaloa, Nuevo Leon, Queretaro, Yucatan, and Tabasco expressing the "unconditional adhesion" of the Governors to the Chief Executive.

All the newspapers contain editorial articles asserting that the situation is grave.

The Senate held a secret session last night and instructed the Committee on Foreign Relations to gather all possible details concerning the international situation and to make a report. Luis Cabrera, the Secretary of the Treasury, who, it was reported, had resigned or intended to resign, declared to the newspapers that he has no intention of leaving his post.

Aug. 20.—The Mexican Government's attitude was understood today to be that of discouraging demonstrations in connection with the United States punitive expedition across the Texas border, and a public meeting called for tonight on one of the principal avenues was not held as scheduled. The meeting was said to have been organized by a Cuban named Leon Osorio, who was connected with calls for a number of anti-allied mass meetings during the war. A demonstration set for last Sunday, which was described as anti-American in tone, was said to have been a fiasco.

The meeting called for tonight was to have been held a few hours after the Mexican Foreign Office issued a statement announcing that Ambassador Bonillas at Washington had been instructed to protest to the United States "against the invasion of Mexican territory" by the 8th Cavalry, and to request their immediate withdrawal. Two press bulletins were issued by the Foreign Office to describe the landing of the two American aviators on Mexican soil and to tell of the crossing of the border by American troops. The two aviators were said to have landed at Falomir in the State of Chihuahua.

BANDITS HOLD UP BOATS.

Special to The New York Times.

LAREDO, Tex., Aug. 21.—The story of a hold-up and robbery of Americans of the Tampico region a few days ago was brought here today.

Joseph Guffey of New York, President of the Agwi Petroleum Company, who recently arrived at Tampico for the purpose of making an inspection of the oil properties of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship Company interests, started for Tuxpam in a motor launch. He was accompanied by a number of other officials of the company, the party occupying five launches.

When about two miles from Tampico and just after entering the Intercoastal Canal the first launch, which was occupied by Mr. Guffey, was ordered to stop by bandits who stood upon the bank of the canal. Mr. Guffey ordered full speed ahead, and a volley of shots was fired at the boat by the brigands.

The two launches that came up next were held up, and the occupants robbed of their money and all other possessions. The two boats that were in the rear escaped by retreating to a village a short distance away.

MEXICO PROTESTS ON BANDIT CHASE

Carranza Note Handed to Lansing Requests Withdrawal of Troops at Once.

ANSWER MAY GO TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—President Carranza of Mexico, through his Foreign Minister, requested the United States Government today to withdraw immediately from Mexican soil the troopers of the Eighth Cavalry, under command of Colonel George T. Langhorne, who are now on the other side of the Rio Grande endeavoring to run down the bandits who captured and held for ransom two aviators of the American Army.

Secretary Lansing said that the protest was received late this afternoon, but he had no comment to make on the note, and it is understood that it is not to be made public until the American reply is handed to Señor Bonillas, the Mexican Ambassador, who delivered the Mexican note at the State Department today. This reply will probably be made tomorrow.

While no word was given out that would indicate the nature of the American reply, the opinion is that the reply will be just as positive as was the note of July 22 last, and the even stronger note that was sent to the Carranza Government several days ago regarding the Candelaria incident.

The fact that Carranza had protested was first made public in the following official statement authorized by the Mexican Foreign Office:

"Two aviators of the army of the United States, through error, so they state, flew over our territory, landing approximately 112 kilometers (70 miles) to the south of the frontier, where they were captured by a band of twenty bandits. They have now been liberated.

"Some troops of the Eighth Cavalry of the United States crossed the frontier in pursuit of the outlaws. The Department of Foreign Relations gave instructions at once to our embassy in Washington to make appropriate representations, protesting and requesting the immediate withdrawal of the invading troops."

Neither the embassy nor the State Department would make public today the text of the Mexican note of protest. In the Mexican reply it is expected that the State Department will not confine itself to facts arising from the capture and detention for ransom of the two American aviators, but will deal with other offenses against American nationals in Mexico and remind the Mexicans of the recent note from the United States in which Mexico was warned of a possible "radical change of policy" on the part of the American Government if the Mexican Government should prove unwilling or unable to take the measures necessary to secure protection of the lives and property of Americans.

It was also considered possible tonight that the State Department would inform the Mexican Government that the latter would be held accountable not only for the amount of ransom paid for the release of the American aviators, but also for the expenses incurred by the United States in punitive expeditions which this country is obliged to dispatch into Mexico.

It was pointed out today that only an indirect protest was made by Mexico when American troops some time ago

MEXICANS USE BLOCKHOUSE

NO AMERICAN CASUALTIES

NOW FAR FROM BORDER

American Says Mexicans Robbed Him of $12,600

LAREDO, Texas, Aug. 21.—Albert von Hoffman of St. Louis arrived at the border here today from Vera Cruz and reported to local Federal authorities that he had been held up on a train en route to Laredo and robbed of $10,000 cash and jewelry valued at $2,600.

He left tonight for Washington.

MARFA, Texas, Aug. 21.—Four Mexican bandits were killed by American troops in Mexico yesterday, Captain Leonard Matlack, who arrived here by airplane tonight, reported. They were surrounded in an adobe blockhouse that the Mexicans had constructed in a mountain pass.

The bandits fought desperately when they found they were trapped, and two escaped. When the American troops approached the blockhouse with the intention of searching it the Mexicans opened fire from loopholes.

The fire was returned and the blockhouse charged by the American cavalry troops.

Three of the four Mexicans killed have been identified as Jesus Janir, Francisco Janir, and José Fuentes. The identity of the fourth bandit has not been ascertained. All four are known to Captain Matlack as bandits operating along the Big Bend border for years.

The two men who escaped were pursued, but the trail was lost in the mountain canyons.

It was definitely established that Jesus Renteria, leader of the outlaw band that captured the American aviators, was not among the dead.

Captain Matlack said he passed a column of 200 Carranza troops below the border yesterday. The Carranza commander asked where the Americans were going. When he was informed they were pursuing bandits he waved his hand and said, "Go ahead."

Troops Well Into Mexico.

While the exact location of the troops was withheld for military reasons, it is known they have gone so far into the interior that it is necessary to send money to commanders so they may purchase supplies. The line of communication is getting too long to transport provisions, it was stated.

Captain Matlack came from Mexico at sunset in an airplane driven by Lieutenant Eugene Eubank, who landed in a Mexican mountain valley, picked up the Captain, and returned with him to report the progress of the punitive expedition to General Dickman. Matlack said the American troops are in high spirits.

"Every one in the expeditionary force is well," he said. "We have had no casualty except one man who had a cactus thorn in his hand.

"We are making progress in the pursuit. Hard storms have slackened our speed somewhat, but we consider that we made good time.

"After leaving the Rio Grande Monday morning, soon after daylight, the expedition followed a fresh trail. The four men to whom the money had been paid had a start of more than five hours on us.

"We followed them to a high mountain pass, where they scattered, one going north and three southwest, as indicated by the fresh tracks. They scattered like quail, and it was difficult to follow them because of the faint trail.

"The fight with the bandits in the fortified blockhouse started as soon as the American troops commenced to search the place, fire being opened by the Mexicans from loopholes. The troops returned the fire.

"Four bodies were found. Two of the bandits escaped. They are still being pursued. These two latter outlaws are believed to have been members of Renteria's gang, but the aviators could not identify them."

The bandits who fought were desperate characters, known on both sides of the border.

Captain Matlack will return to his troops in Mexico tomorrow. He held a long conference with General Dickman and Colonel George T. Langhorne, commander of the Big Bend district, tonight.

Carranza Leader Approves.

Fear of a clash between isolated Carranza troops and the American troops was relieved by a telegram from General Manuel Dieguez, whose command includes the Ojinaga district, to General Antonio Prueda, commander of the district, saying the American troops were wholly within their rights, under a treaty of 1882, in pursuing bandits.

The treaty is said to have originated when American and Mexican troops were pursuing an Apache leader back and forth between the two countries.

Major Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, Commander of the Southern Department, who arrived here today, declared tonight there was "nothing ready to give out about any plan to have flying columns of cavalry troops on the border to pursue bandits in the future."

General Dickman declined to make any statement regarding the border situation until he had gone over the entire subject with Colonel Langhorne and familiarized himself with details of the punitive expedition. He also refused to discuss the payment of the balance of the ransom money, but it was understood no effort would be made to deliver the remaining $6,500.

"I am making an inspection trip of the border stations between here and San Antonio," General Dickman said. "I have not had opportunity to go over this situation with Colonel Langhorne, and until I do I shall be unable to say anything about plans of operation."

He reviewed troops and wagon trains, the troops consisting of one squadron of the 8th Cavalry under the command of Captain Kloipfer. Later he addressed the troops, praising their work on the border.

Co-operate With Carranza Troops.

The Mexican Consul at Presidio, Texas, assured Colonel Langhorne today that he desired to continue the liaison between American and Mexican troops, now near Cuchillo, Parado, that was started yesterday when an American airplane carried a message from the Consul to General Pruneda, while the latter was on the march to Cuchillo, Parado.

Consul Bengochea told Colonel Langhorne he had a report today that Villa rebels had been seen near Palomas, southeast of Ojinaga.

Colonel Langhorne suggested that it was easier for American troops to pursue the bandits than for the Mexican troops, because of an early start and the availability of great facilities.

Consul Bengochea said that the Pruneda troops were attempting the same object as the American troops—to run down and capture the bandits. He said he anticipated no trouble between the two bodies of troops in the field. He also denied that Chico Cano, the bandit leader in Ojinaga district, was made captain of the Carranza column stationed at San José, opposite Indio, Texas, on the Rio Grande.

By sunrise the airplanes left the ground here for Presidio, sixty miles south, where a flying field base for the expedition had been established.

Landing there and getting gasoline and oil, the airplanes flew across the Rio Grande over Palisades, near Ojinaga, along the Conchos River Valley, to pick up the trails.

Dangerous Work for Airmen.

The work of the aviators is considered extremely dangerous, because there are few landing fields in Mexico. It is necessary to fly close to the ground, where the bandits may fire on the aviators, as they did Tuesday.

Fliers returning long after dark last night to headquarters here reported many narrow escapes.

One aviator had flown down a narrow cañon under a shelving rock to see if the bandits were finding concealment from the aviators under a shelf. Another came in with his face covered by red blotches, caused by driving through a hailstorm in Mexico at high speed.

Aviators located all American columns in Mexico yesterday. The fliers also found the Mexican Federal column under General Antonio Pruneda, near Cuchillo Parado, and reported the location of other small bodies of Carranza troops.

Few landings were made in Mexico. When the troops found a smooth landing place they placed a giant panel-shaped letter "T" on the ground for the guidance of the aviators. The aviators have been dropping orders to cavalry commanders from the air and returning to the Presidio base.

When the fliers left this morning they carried news bulletins furnished by The Associated Press, which they planned to drop for each cavalry troop operating in Mexico, to give them news of the outside world since they crossed the border.

Captain Jerry Gray, commander of the Texas Ranger company stationed here, accompanied by Captain R. W. Aldrich, Quartermaster of the Texas Rangers, left for the Rio Grande today to make an investigation of the situation there. They will report to Governor Hobby. The Rangers announced their intention of crossing to join the American troops if possible.

MEXICANS NOW SEEK TO AVOID INTERVENTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21.—The Senate has appointed a committee to meet an American Senatorial commission to discuss Mexican conditions.

The professional men, doctors, lawyers, dentists, &c., have called a meeting for Friday afternoon to discuss ways and means to avoid intervention.

The local labor leaders have appealed to Gompers to use the influence of American labor unions to prevent war.

SEVEN BANDITS PUT TO DEATH.

Identified as Men Who Held Up American Sailors Near Tampico.

GALVESTON, Aug. 21.—Seven of the Mexican bandits who robbed sailors from the United States cruiser Cheyenne off Tampico last month have been apprehended and put to death by the Carranza authorities, according to an official report from General Pueblo Gonzales to Mexican Consul Meade Fierro here, made public today.

The report states the bandits had property of the sailors in their possession.

LAREDO, Texas, Aug. 21.—Information received here today, in connection with the reported arrest of Mexican bandits who had robbed sailors from the U. S. S. Cheyenne off Tampico, early in July, included a report that one of the assailants of George N. McDonald, an American citizen, had been arrested. The United States Government had made urgent representations to the Carranza Government on both affairs.

McDonald, who was believed to have been killed at Pueblo Viejo, was reported to have arrived at Tampico, in a press dispatch from Mexico City last Sunday. McDonald was robbed near his residence, six miles south of Tampico, on July 12.

Carlos Orozco, a special Carranza police officer, caused the arrest of the bandits. He had been investigating charges that Carranza soldiers had been guilty of crimes.

REBELS OVERRUN MICHOACAN.

Guzman's Band, Mexican Paper Says, Controls Extensive Territory.

EL PASO, Aug. 21.—Rebels under Gordiano Guzman are masters of life and property in parts of the State of Michoacan, according to Excelsior, a Mexico City newspaper, dated Aug. 13.

Federal forces, it is said, have made no effort to pursue the rebel chieftain, who is reported particularly strong in the extensive district of Arteaga. Commerce and agriculture are demoralized as a result of Guzman's depredations, the article says.

Guzman is a native of the Arteaga district, and on the "few occasions" when pursuit has been attempted he has been able to escape, it is reported.

SENATORS TO HEAR 'SUBJECT PEOPLES'

CHINA'S ADVISER TESTIFIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Over the protest of Democratic members, the Republican majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today decided that a special meeting to lengthen the hearings on the Peace Treaty by letting representatives of "subject peoples" appear should be held.

Requests by Irish representatives, Egyptians, Greeks, and the spokesmen of mid-European peoples to be heard were acted on favorably. A definite time for the hearings will be set later. The Egyptians will be represented by former Governor Folk of Missouri.

Democratic committee members objected on the ground that to extend the hearings would further delay the committee's report on the treaty. They were overruled, however. Representatives of the peoples named argued that the committee should at least give publicity to the treatment accorded the subject nations at Paris, so the American people should know how the doctrine of self-determination was or was not carried out.

The committee today continued its examination of the Shantung provision by questioning further Dr. John C. Ferguson, adviser to the President of China. Following the conclusion of Dr. Ferguson's testimony Senator Johnson of California declared that the committee "has proved a perfect case of perfidy" in the award of Shantung to Japan. Senator Johnson indicated his belief that the evidence was strong enough to convince the Senate that an amendment of the Shantung provisions should be made.

Dr. Ferguson declared that the Japanese managed to obtain from the United States from the Lansing-Ishii agreement, a direct contravention of the policy inaugurated in the Root-Takahira agreement. He pointed out that though the Root-Takahira agreement affirmed the open door policy and safeguarded China's territorial integrity, saying nothing about any special Japanese interest in China, the Lansing-Ishii notes recognized Japan's special interests, and as a secondary clause of the treaty reaffirmed the open door and territorial integrity doctrine.

"Japan," said Dr. Ferguson, "regards the recognition of her interests in China as the important part of the agreement. The United States regards the reaffirmation of the open door policy as the important part. The Root-Takahira agreement was entered into at the suggestion of the United States, while the Lansing-Ishii notes were exchanged at Japan's suggestion.

"The Lansing-Ishii agreement's reference to special interest must be construed with regard to what Japan at the time regarded as of greatest importance to her in China, namely, Shantung. The recognition of 'special interests in that part of China to which Japan's possessions are contiguous' gives Japan a special interest in Manchuria, which is contiguous to Korea, and in Fukien Province, which is opposite Formosa."

Senator McCumber advanced the thought that declaration of special interest was not necessarily indication of vicious intentions. "We have repeatedly declared our special interest in Mexico," he suggested.

"But we do not keep American soldiers in Mexico to guard the railroads and mines in which Americans are interested," replied Dr. Ferguson. "We have no extra-territorial privileges and no special courts. Japan has all these in China."

Dr. Ferguson suggested that Secretary Lansing might not be responsible for the words "special interest" in the Lansing-Ishii agreement when he said that he supposed they were included against Mr. Lansing's advice and over his objection.

"But Secretary Lansing's testimony showed that he apparently acquiesced in Japan's claim that she did have a special interest," said Senator Moss.

Senator Johnson of California referred to a statement by the Russian Minister at Tokio, repeating a remark said to have been made to him by the Japanese Foreign Minister regarding Japan's "superior means" for enforcing her interpretation of the Lansing-Ishii agreement if a dispute should ever arise as to its meaning.

"What superior means does Japan possess in this regard?" asked Senator Johnson.

"Japan is nearer China than the United States," said Dr. Ferguson, "and it is easier for her to move ships and troops."

Discussing Japan's twenty-one demands on China, made in 1915, Dr. Ferguson said that Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, American Minister at Peking, persistently urged the Chinese Government not to grant them. He did not know whether the Minister did so upon orders from Washington or upon his own initiative.

"And then," said Senator Johnson, "we sat down with Ishii and disposed of China's fate, without even consulting her or letting her know we were in consultation with Japan?"

"We did," asserted Dr. Ferguson, "and I fear that under the League of Nation's provision relating to regional understandings will come the Lansing-Ishii agreement. I regard that as unfortunate, out of keeping with our traditional Eastern policy. The Root-Takahira agreement represented that traditional policy. The later agreement to the effect that propinquity creates special interest raises embarrassment in enforcing the open door doctrine. Between England and France such an agreement would have no significance, both being first class powers. Between a strong and a weak nation it would amount to a threat."

Dr. Ferguson said in reply to questions by Senator Moses that every opportunity was given to China to present her case at Paris, but she was unofficially advised not to hire foreign counsel, as that might prejudice it.

"Was the selection of advisers of any other nation so supervised?" asked Senator Moss.

"It was not," said Dr. Ferguson.

He said that the Chinese delegation was informed orally and not in writing of the Shantung decision by Ray Stannard Baker, of the publicity division of the American Mission.

The three articles in the treaty covering the transfer of Shantung to Japan, Articles 156, 157, and 158, were drawn, Dr. Ferguson said, by the Japanese member of the Drafting Committee.

Senator Knox interrupted the hearing near its close to suggest that Democratic members of the committee be asked to attend and "help us expedite the treaty."

entered Juarez and drove a force of Villistas out of that city after the Federal garrison had been defeated by the rebels under the personal command of Francisco Villa. Ambassador Bonillas at that time was in Mexico City, and Candide Aguilar, son-in-law of President Carranza, who was in Washington on a special mission for the Mexican Government, handed out to the press a protest against the American action, a copy of his statement being transmitted to the State Department informally.

The War Department had been expecting news all day from Colonel Langhorne but up to tonight not a word had been received from him. It was explained that this was probably due to the fact that the troops were operating in the wildest sort of a country and communications were difficult.

SENATOR FLETCHER HIT BY TROLLEY AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, was seriously injured shortly after 7 o'clock tonight in a street car accident at Thomas Circle, Fourteenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., within a block of his home.

He was just returning from the Capitol to his residence, and had just stepped from a northbound car at the Circle in a blinding rainstorm. He walked round the rear end of the car and stepped in front of a southbound car.

Dr. Herbert E. Martyn took the Senator to the latter's home at 1,455 Massachusetts Avenue, where he was found to have sustained a severe wound of the scalp, a contusion, and a badly bruised arm.

It was stated late tonight that he was resting comfortably. He is 65 years old.

ACTS TO RAISE PAY IN NAVY.

Acting Secrtary Roosevelt Says Best Men Are Resigning.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—With the resignations of more than 300 permanent officers of the regular navy already submitted to the department and more arriving daily, Acting Secretary Roosevelt today began work on proposed legislation to be submitted to Congress suggesting substantial pay increases for officers and enlisted men of the navy and Marine Corps. Present pay tables became effective in 1908 and have not been revised upward since.

High ranking officers who have given careful study to the situation believe the efficiency of the navy is seriously threatened. Most of the resignations have come from the younger officers in the lower grades, the men to whom the country looks for the leadership of its sea forces in the years to come. These officers receive from $1,700 to $3,000 a year, most of them Annapolis graduates capable of earning much higher salaries in civilian life, and say they find it impossible to support their families on their pay. In this connection one Rear Admiral called attention to the many classes of ordinary labor in civilian life who earn larger salaries than do naval officers.

For the present, Acting Secretary Roosevelt said today, no action will be taken on the resignations now on file pending attempts to readjust the pay tables. Already short nearly 2,000 officers on the basis of the navy's peacetime strength, Mr. Roosevelt said that unless the salary revision is obtained the navy faces the awkward choice of retaining a large number of officers against their will, with subsequent discontent and dissatisfaction, or accepting the resignations. Annapolis graduates have been trained at a Government expense of more than $20,000 each, he said, and even though other candidates might be obtained in the future to take their places it would take years to train them.

More resignations are now on file than had been received from the entire regular navy in the last thirty years. Since 1898 the average has been seven a year.

COLLECTOR EDWARDS SAILS

Will Spend His Vacation Visiting War-Devastated Regions.

With every cabin occupied, the steamer France of the French Line sailed yesterday for Havre with many prominent people on board. The ship had 370 first class, 430 second class, and 900 steerage passengers. Among those who sailed on the steamer was Collector of Internal Revenue William Edwards, who will spend his vacation in making an investigation of conditions in devastated France and Belgium for the Red Cross. He said he expected to be away about six weeks.

Wlaclaw Torski, stepson of Premier Paderewski of Poland, was also a passenger. He said he was going on a diplomatic mission to Poland, and was carrying many State papers with him.

William Barrett, who married Miss Alice Drexel, only daughter of John R. Drexel, with Mrs. Barrett, sailed on the steamer. They declined to be interviewed. Princess Murat, who was Miss Helen Stallo before her marriage, returned on the France to her home in Paris. Others on the steamer were N. H. Weber, Vice President of the Ohio Cities Gas Company, and Señora Hernandez Portela, wife of the Secretary of the Cuban Legation in Brussels.

RADIO STATIONS FOR FLIERS

In connection with the New York-Toronto airplane race, which starts on Monday, the American Flying Club announced yesterday that it would install and man radio stations between the two cities for the protection of the aviators. Practically all of the Government and many of the civilian planes are equipped with radio sending sets, and the pilots have been requested to report the progress they are making to the radio stations. In the event of accident, the Flying Club points out, the radio stations will be able to rush assistance to the scene.

Word was received yesterday by the club that all available machines from the flying fields maintained by the Government at Dayton, Ohio, and Mount Clemens, Mich., had been dispatched to Toronto to start the race. Under the rules laid down for winning the prizes aggregating $10,000, which were offered by the Hotel Commodore, contestants may start from either end of the course on the round trip flight.

WILSON IS UNABLE TO PROCLAIM PEACE

Tells Senator Fall He Lacks the Power and That if He Had It Would Be Dishonorable.

REPLIES TO 20 QUESTIONS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—President Wilson in a letter to Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, made public today, replying to the twenty questions submitted to the President at the White House conference, asserts that he has not the power to declare a status of peace as between Germany and the United States in advance of the ratification of the Treaty. The President goes further and says that he would regard it as a step that the United States could not take with honor.

The President wrote that there would be a "stain upon our national honor which we never could efface," if the United States, after sending its men to France to fight "the common cause" should abandon its allies in adjusting the terms of peace and "dissociate ourselves from all responsibility with regard to those terms."

The President's letter follows:

The White House,
Washington, Aug. 20, 1919.

My Dear Senator Fall: You left yesterday in my hands certain written questions which I promised you I would answer. I am hastening to fulfill that promise.

I feel constrained to say in reply to your first question not only that in my judgment I have not the power by proclamation to declare that peace exists, but that I could in no circumstances consent to take such a course prior to the ratification of a formal treaty of peace. I feel it due to perfect frankness to say that it would in my opinion put a stain upon our national honor which we never could efface, if after sending our men to the battlefield to fight the common cause, we should abandon our associates in the war in the settlement of the terms of peace and dissociate ourselves from all responsibility with regard to those terms.

I respectfully suggest that, having said this, I have in effect answered also your second, third, and fourth questions, so far as I myself am concerned.

Permit me to answer your fifth question by saying that the provisions of the treaty to which you refer operate merely to establish peace between the powers ratifying, and that it is questionable whether it can be said that the League of Nations is in any true sense created by the association of only three of the allied and associated Governments.

Expects Peace to Reduce Prices.

In reply to your sixth question I can only express the confident opinion that the immediate adoption of the treaty, along with the articles of the covenant of the League as written, would certainly within the near future reduce the cost of living in this country as elsewhere, by restoring production and commerce to their normal strength and freedom.

For your convenience, I will number the remaining paragraphs of this letter as the questions to which they are intended to reply are numbered.

7.—I have had no official information as to whether Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, or Switzerland will join the League.

8.—I answered your eighth question in reply to a question asked me at our conference the other day.

[In this question Senator Fall asked if the President was "issuing en bloc, or otherwise, licenses to do business with those recently our enemies," and allowing ships with cargoes destined for enemy ports to leave American ports. The President replied that licenses had been granted lifting the embargo on shipments to neutral countries which were suspected of getting into Germany.]

9.—In February, 1917, Spain was requested to take charge of American interests in Germany through her diplomatic and consular representatives, and no other arrangements have since been made.

10.—The committee to prepare plans for the organization of the League, for the establishment of the seat of the League and for the proceedings of the first meeting of the assembly, has been appointed, but has not reported.

11.—Article 118 of the Peace Treaty, part IV., under which Germany renounces all her rights to territory formerly belonging to herself or to her allies was understood, so far as special provision was not made in the treaty itself for its disposition, as constituting the principal Allied and Associated Powers the authority by which such disposition should ultimately be determined. It conveys no title to those powers, but merely intrusts the disposition of the territory in question to thir decision.

12—Germany's renunciation in favor of the principal Allied and Associated Powers of her rights and titles to her overseas possessions is meant similarly to operate as vesting in those powers a trusteeship with respect of their final disposition and government.

Depends on League of Nations.

13—There has been a provisional agreement as to the disposition of these overseas possessions, whose confirmation and execution is dependent upon the approval of the League of Nations, and the United States is a party to that provisional agreement.

14—The only agreement between France and Great Britain with regard to African territory, of which I am cognizant concerns the disposition of rights already possessed by these countries on that continent. The provisional agreement referred to in the preceding paragraph covers all the German overseas possessions in Africa as well as elsewhere.

15—No mention was made in connection with the settlement of the Sarre Basin of the service of an American member of the commission of five to be set up there.

16—It was deemed wise that the United States should be represented by one member of the commission for settling the new frontier lines of Belgium and Germany, because of the universal opinion that America's representative would add to the commission a useful element of entirely disinterested judgment.

17—The choice of the commission for the Sarre Basin was left to the council of the League of Nations, because the Sarre Basin is for fifteen years to be directly under the care and direction of the League of Nations.

18—Article 83 does in effect provide that five of the members of the commission of seven to fix the boundaries between Poland and Czechoslovakia should be nominated by certain countries, because there are five principal allied and associated powers, and the nomination of five representatives by those powers necessarily means the nomination of one representative by each of those powers.

19—No such commission has yet been appointed. [This referred to the commission mentioned in Question 18.]

20—It was deemed wise that the United States should have a representative on the commission set up to exercise authority over the plebiscite of Upper Silesia, for the same reason that I have given with regard to the commission for setting the frontier line of Belgium and Germany.

Sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

The Hon. Albert B. Fall, United States Senate.

Senator Fall has no comment to make on the President's letter tonight, saying he would take it up "in a few remarks" in the Senate within a few days.

DISCUSS PROGRAM TO REJECT TREATY

Poindexter, it developed, want to get away from the Capitol so as to make tours in opposition to the League of Nations. Their going will depend upon the action of the Foreign Relations Committee in reporting out the treaty.

They will await the committee's action, starting on their trips individually as soon as the treaty is in the Senate.

The treaty, according to the judgment of Senator Lodge, will be out of committee by Sept. 1. After that it is expected that debate will run for two months. That would give the League opponents time to make a complete tour of the country from east to west. They intend to speak in every large city on the way. Senator Johnson plans to start his speaking trip at California and work back East, while Senator Borah will begin in New York and travel westward.

The Administration forces refrained today from making any prophecy as to the outcome of their effort to put through interpretative reservations along the line of those offered yesterday by Senator Pittman of Nevada. They talked of fighting to prevent the Republican majority from adopting drastic reservations, but none of the Administration leaders would say he expected the opposition to be beaten.

The Republican majority was said by one of its leaders today to be absolutely assured of adopting drastic reservations as a part of the ratifying resolution. This Senator had taken a poll of the Republicans, and said there would be no difficulty in uniting upon reservation fashioned along the line of those suggested by Elihu Root. The so-called mild reservationists, he said, were now nearly in entire agreement with those advocating more drastic reservations. No longer, this Senaor said, could the Democratic forces hope to put through interpretative reservations.

Although Senator Pittman's interpretive reservations follow the lines suggested by President Wilson in his White House conference, as meeting his approval, if the Senate felt disposed to express its "understanding" of provisions of the treaty, it was made plain at the White House today that Mr. Pittman had not offered them at the instance of the President. Mr. Pittman said, as he told THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, that the President "had no knowledge of the resolution or its introduction."

Mr. Pittman's resolution will be brought up, he said, at an early opportunity and he will ask for a vote upon it. The Senator wants it adopted in advance of the ratification resolution, so that opportunity may be afforded for the four associated and allied powers to pass a similar resolution if they desire. The only effect of the resolution, he said, would be to express the "understanding" of the United States and the other nations, the reservations having no effect upon the body of the treaty.

Hitchcock Assails Committee.

Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democratic member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, in an interview tonight, charged that the Foreign Relations Committee, controlled by opponents of the league, is keeping the Peace Treaty in "cold storage" and making it impossible for the Senate to get a vote on it.

"I think the Senate is ready to ratify the treaty in some satisfactory form," said Senator Hitchcock. "The chief trouble now is that the Foreign Relations Committee, controlled by the enemies of the league and of the Peace Treaty, is keeping the treaty in cold storage and thus making it impossible for the Senate to vote on it.

"The President put his finger on the real trouble when he said we were still at war, although there was no real war. We will continue to be at war until this treaty is ratified. This alone will bring about peace and restore peace conditions. Until that act is done we cannot escape from the uncertainties of the present. Business cannot revive, labor questions cannot be settled, prices cannot be adjusted, and the cost of living cannot be materially reduced. The longer the Senate delays ratification, the longer the people will suffer from present conditions."

KAISER GOES DRIVING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, August 21.—I hear from Amerongen that the ex-Kaiser has taken a change of exercise lately and has been out driving now and then, always, of course, with the consent and under the supervision of the authorities. He will shortly be moving into his newly acquired residence at Doorn which is not far from Amerongen and where Dutch control will still be exercised.

It is also expected that the daughter of the ex-Kaiser and her husband, lately the Duke of Brunswick, will take up residence in The Hague in October next. They have purchased a large house from a private owner in one of the best neighborhoods. The ex-Duchess has already arrived at Scheveningen, where she occupies a villa which was used by the Y. M. C. A. as headquarters staff hostel during the internment of British soldiers in Holland.

FOREST FIRES SWEEP WEST.

Montana and Idaho Suffer Heavily—Ranch Homes Are Menaced.

MISSOULA, Mon., Aug. 21.—Forest fires continued their swift, steady sweep in central and western Montana and northern Idaho today, laying bare vast stretches of valuable timber and threatening the homes of ranchers and stockmen.

In the Coeur d'Alene forest $80,000 worth of white pine timber in one stretch was laid waste tonight and other sections of the same forest were aflame. Timber valued at thousands of dollars is being destroyed in the Selway forest, according to reports to Federal Forest Service officials.

In central Montana several fires are causing heavy damage in the Jefferson forest. In the Bitter Root forest efforts to check the flames have met with no success, but the situation about Missoula is improved, the flames that swept the Rattlesnake Valley having been intrenched.

CRITICISE WAR RISK BUREAU

Veterans of Foreign Wars Name Committee to Investigate Charges.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 21.—A committee was appointed by the National Encampment of Veterans of Foreign Wars here today at the closing session to investigate charges made by members against the War Risk Insurance Bureau and the Federal Vocational Training Board. Charges against the former are inefficiency and delay in settling claims and against the latter are delays in getting the vocational training program under way.

Resolutions were adopted condemning Bolshevism, Socialism, and the I. W. W. Resolutions were also passed urging Congress to grant world war veterans a bonus of six months' pay and advocating making May 30 a national holiday.

QUEBEC WELCOMES PRINCE OF WALES

French Canadian City Gives Cordial Reception to Heir to British Throne.

VISITS HISTORIC SCENES

QUEBEC, Aug. 21.—Welcomed by the strains of "God Save the King" and the roar of a royal salue from guns in the old citadel, the Prince of Wales landed here tonight shortly before 6 o'clock for his first visit to the ancient capital of French Canada.

The Prince was brought ashore from the battleship Renown on a fast steam yacht and landed on King's Wharf. The Prince, who was followed by Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, was greeted on the wharf by the Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, the Duke of Devonshire, Cardinal Begin, Mayor Lavigueur and an imposing array of military, civil, and ecclesiastical dignitaries.

The Prince was roundly cheered by the thousands which pressed as close as the guards would permit, and wave on wave of cheers greeted him as he proceeded from the dock.

While the big guns were booming their welcome a series of pyrotechnic bombs burst in the air above him, and at each explosion a flag of one of the Allies was unfurled. A squadron of airplanes circled above the royal party, adding the loud drone of their motors to the cheers of the crowd.

The wharf on which the Prince landed is on the same spot where Samuel de Champlain and his men landed 300 years ago. Here also George V. landed twice, once in 1901 when he was the Duke of York and again in 1908 as Prince of Wales. Other royal personages who have debarked at the spot where the King's Wharf stands were Prince Edward, the late King, in 1860, and Prince William Henry in 1787.

At 6:15 the Prince and the Duke of Devonshire motored together to Upper Town, through Mountain Hill and St. Louis Street. The Prince was cheered by large crowds along the route, while church bells tolled their welcome to the distinguished visitor.

Quebec was decked with a profusion of flags, bunting, and oriflammes, and in several places along the road leading to the Citadel arches of welcome had been erected.

The reception tendered the Prince by the French-Canadians was in every respect as enthusiastic as that accorded him at any other point visited.

The most conservative newspapers were as cordial in their editorial treatment of the Prince's arrival as were the more liberal.

TWO MORE AIRMEN MISSING.

Waterhouse and Connelly Fail to Return to California Base.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 21.—Colonel A. J. Hanlon, commanding the army aviation forces at Rockwell Field, North Island, announced tonight that two aviators from the Ninth Aero Squadron had been missing since yesterday.

They are Second Lieutenants Frederick D. Waterhouse of Weiser, Idaho, and C. H. Connelly of San Diego.

The two aviators, Lieutenant Waterhouse, acting as pilot, and Lieutenant Connelly, as observer, on border patrol work, started from Yuma, Ariz., to San Diego at 11:45 A. M. yesterday.

Colonel Hanlon said his conclusion was that they had been forced to make a landing, possibly below the Mexican line, near Jacumba, in San Diego County.

Fifteen machines were sent out from North Island today in search, but all returned without having found a trace of the men.

Lieutenants Waterhouse and Connelly were in a De Haviland machine with a 400 horse power motor. They left North Island on Tuesday morning. Near Yuma they ran into a severe storm, which damaged the propeller. A new propeller was sent out by automobile truck from North Island. After the repairs the machine went on to Yuma and started on the return trip yesterday. The aviators were due here at about 4 P. M. yesterday.

8 Boston Police Unionists Face Charges.

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—Charges were preferred against eight members of the Boston Police Department today by Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, for violation of the department regulations forbidding membership in a union. The men will have a hearing before a trial board of three Captains next Tuesday.

LLOYD GEORGE PLANS FULL ANTI-TRUST LAW

Is Designed Permanently to Protect the Public, the British Premier Says.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Premier Lloyd George has written to the press to the effect that the discussion of certain highly controversial points in his recent speech in the House of Commons has obscured other parts which are of vital concern to the country and deserve full discussion before Parliament is asked to legislate thereon.

He accordingly furnishes a summary of the Government's program as set forth in his speech, adding several proposals to which he says he did not have time to refer in his speech.

One proposal is to establish a Department of Standards, to promote and assist standardization in technical trade matters, which he regards as increasingly important to British industry.

Another point is his intention to introduce legislation to secure adequate measures permanently to protect the public from the harmful effects of trusts and combinations, should such protection become advisable. His mention of this subject in his speech referred only to a period of six months under the profiteering act.

HARBORD MISSION PLANS.

Personnel of Staff Who Accompany the General to Armenia.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, Chief of Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces, leaves Paris today at the head of the mission for Armenia and the Transcaucasus, under instructions from President Wilson.

Among the subjects to be investigated are the military situation and problems involved in policing the country; railroads, highways, harbors, agricultural and mining commission questions, and the maintenance of the population, finances, and commerce, as well as general economic conditions.

The mission includes Brig. Gen. F. R. McCoy, commanding the 63d Brigade during active operations, and Director General of Transportation since the armistice, who will be General Harbord's chief of staff; Brig. Gen. George V. H. Moseley, assistant chief of staff, who will report on military conditions; Captain Stanley K. Horsbeck of the University of Wisconsin, and Far Eastern specialist at the Peace Conference; Lieut. Col. E. Bowditch, aid to the commander in chief, connected with the administration of the Philippines for seven years; Lieut. Col. J. R. Jackson, former Labor Commissioner of Pennsylvania; W. P. Roland, engineer and head of American Relief in Belgium; Lieut. Col. Jasper Y. Brinton of Philadelphia; W. W. Cumberland, member of the War Trade Board; Commander W. Bertholf, United States Navy; Lieut. Com. H. B. Bryan; Major Lawrence Martin, University of Wisconsin; Major H. W. Clark, Captain D. Loring, Captain L. Hill and Lieutenant A. Kaochadoorian.

FINDS WIFE IN THE TOMBS.

Mrs. Salomon, Held as Shoplifter, Released Upon Identification.

After a search of five days by relatives and the police Mrs. Francis Salomon, 58 years old, of 1,181 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, was found by her husband yesterday, a prisoner in the Tombs. She had been absent from her home since August 15, when she announced her intention to go shopping. On that date Detective Jenkins was requested by a private detective employed by R. H. Macy and Company to arrest a woman on the charge of taking goods valued at $10. The prisoner, who said she was Bertha Hirsch, of 105 East 106th Street, was arraigned in the Women's Court and committed to the Tombs for trial in Special Sessions. On Tuesday she pleaded guilty before Justices Murphy, O'Keefe and Voorhees, but refused to give any information concerning herself.

Following her identification she was again arraigned in Special Sessions yesterday, where her husband, two sons and a daughter were waiting for her. Mr. Salomon told the court his wife had been in poor health and depressed by the absence of a relative and that the family had noticed that her conduct was irrational. The court suspended sentence and released her.

Women's Land Army to Hold Rally.

A public rally will be held by the New York State Women's Land Army on Wednesday night, Aug. 27, at the Amsterdam Opera House, as a forerunner to their coming campaign for funds. Rehearsals for a series of entertainments they will give during the "drive" are already under way, under the direction of the Volunteer Entertainment Bureau of the New York War Camp Community Service. Volunteers from the Land Army also are training under the professional staff of the bureau in preparation for staging shows among the farmers in the country district during the harvest season.

PRESIDENT EXPLAINS COSTA RICA'S CASE

NEVER RECOGNIZED TINOCO

Transmits Secretary Lansing's Reports of Efforts to Maintain Peace in Central America.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Senate was informed today by President Wilson that the United States Government was not aware of any armed interference by Nicaragua in Costa Rican affairs, and that the State Department repeatedly had urged Nicaraguan officals not to make any such interference. The President's message was in response to a resolution by Senator La Follette.

Answering another part of the same resolution with reference to why Costa Rica "was not permitted" to sign the Peace Treaty, though she had declared war on Germany, the President said the Tinoco Government in Costa Rica, having never been recognized even in a de facto sense by the United States, was considered "legally nonexistent and therefore not to be treated as a belligerent."

The President transmitted a statement by Secretary Lansing declaring the United States "has consistently used its best efforts to maintain peace in Central America," and had made the following representations to Nicaragua on the subject:

On Nov. 4, 1918, the President of Nicaragua was asked to exercise his good offices to prevent any revolutionary activities in that country directed against Costa Rica.

On Jan. 27, 1919, reiterating the position taken in the previous note.

On April 29, 1919, expressing the hope that "Nicaragua would be guided in this matter by the considerations of international comity," and

On May 23, 1919, urging Nicaragua to remain neutral in any conflict between General Tinoco and his enemies and to prevent organizations of any expeditions in Nicaragua.

"The President and Government of Nicaragua," Secretary Lansing wrote, "have responded in a gratifying manner to the requests for their co-operation, and the efficacy of the steps taken to preserve peace in Central America is indicated by the fact that the Government of the United States is not advised of any serious collision with defensive forces by any armed forces seeking to enter Costa Rica from Nicaragua or Nicaragua from Costa Rica."

President Juan Bautist Quiros of Costa Rica, successor of Federico Tinoco, has been notified by the American Government that the validity of the Tinoco constitution or any government acting under that constitution would not be recognized by the United States.

Ex-President Gonzales has been informed by the State Department of this action. He has been in Washington since his overthrow by Tinoco and has been in close touch with the revolutionary movement against the Tinoco regime headed by Julio Acosta, Minister of Foreign Affairs under Gonzalez.

It was stated here today officially that American citizens had been implicated in the Tinoco revolution. The State Department was said to have letters written by American conspirators telling of their investments with the Tinoco faction, but the department refused to make public either the letters or the names of the Americans involved.

MINOTTO SAILS FOR EUROPE.

Passenger on Frederick VIII. Believed to be Son-in-Law of Chicago Packer.

A man entered on the passenger list as D. Minotto, who is believed to be Count James Minotto, son-in-law of Louis Swift, the Chicago packer, sailed yesterday on the Frederick VIII. As soon as he went aboard the steamer, Minotto went to his cabin and remained there while the vessel was in port.

Count Minotto, who married Miss Ida Swift, daughter of the packer, four years ago, has had a varied career in this country, terminating in his internment at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., as an enemy alien. Although he has insisted that he was of Italian extraction, he was accused by Department of Justice agents in October, 1917, of being involved in pro-German activities. He was released from the internment camp in January of this year.

WANTS INCOME TAX CLUE TO PROFITEERS

PRESIDENT MUST APPROVE

Resolution Embraces All Who Have Profited Through War Contracts with Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Access to the income tax returns as an aid in detecting profiteering, especially during the war, is asked of President Wilson by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, Democrat, in an amendment offered today in the Senate to a resolution presented some time ago by Senator Owen of Oklahoma, another Democrat, providing for a committee of five Senators and five Representatives to examine into the high cost of living. The Walsh amendment empowers the committee to examine the income tax figures, with a view of ascertaining not only what the great corporations made, but to what extent the "dollar a year" men profited by their contracts with the Government. The amounts of the incomes of all persons who had contracts with the Government are desired by Senator Walsh.

"In my opinion," said Senator Walsh, "the chief causes of the present high cost of living are profiteering, avoidable waste in production and distribution, and unnecessary exporting of foodstuffs and other necessities of life for the sake of larger profits.

"The purpose of the amendment offered by me to Senator Owen's resolution is to make the inquiry into profiteering as a cause of the high cost of living more definite and specific, and especially to make use of the information regarding excessive profits contained in the income tax returns, which by law are public records, yet cannot be inspected except upon the express permission of President Wilson. It is believed that these returns will show that profiteering has extended far beyond the great combinations that have been investigated by the Federal Trade Commission, and indeed has been too general to be adequately reached or to be punished.

"As drawn the amendment does not admit of the use of evidence secured from income tax returns in criminal proceedings, but for publicity only, since in my opinion the holding up to public reprobation of the persons and corporations that have been so base as to seek to turn the nation's danger and distress to their personal advantage, whether or not they violated the law in so doing, will be a more adequate punishment and a better guarantee against future offenses than any amount of criminal prosecution could possibly have.

"The information obtained from these returns will also assist in preparing a roll of dishonor, so that the overwhelming element of the American people, who were patriotically sacrificing during the war, may know those few who were using the occasion for enriching themselves."

The amendment reads as follows:

"Whereas, there is widespread discontent due to the general belief that since our country declared war against Germany there has been profiteering by American citizens on an extensive scale; and

"Whereas, there is a very general belief throughout the country that the profiteering in foodstuffs and the necessities of life is in part responsible for the present excessive cost of living, and for the growth of un-American theories; and

"Whereas, there is a general demand that the persons, partnerships and corporations making excessive profits at a time when millions of American families were sacrificing and suffering for the cause of our country, and millions of American youths were serving in the army and navy, all of whom were ready to make every necessary sacrifice and, in fact, many thousands of them, did sacrifice their health, their limbs, and their lives for the preservation of America's honor, be known to the public in order that the people of this country may have in their possession the names of the persons, partnerships, and corporations that took advantage of the distressed condition of their country to amass wealth, as well by such publicity to prevent a repetition of profiteering in any future crisis in the history of our country; and

"Whereas, the obtaining of evidence of profiteering is most difficult because such testimony must come in a great part from those charged with such unpatriotic practices, but nevertheless there is in the possession of the Government much evidence, only obtainable by an order of the President of the United States, that would assist in detecting where and by whom excessive profiteering was done; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That Senate Resolution 159, providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate the high cost of living be amended by adding the following:

"Resolved further, That the President of the United States is hereby requested to issue, under the authority conferred on him by Sub-section 8 of Section 14 of Public Statute No. 27 of the Sixty-fourth Congress, entitled an act to increase the revenue and for other purposes, an order giving said committee full access to the income tax returns of all corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the large-scale production or distribution of food products or having contracts with the United States for furnishing military or other supplies;

"Resolved further, That said committee be authorized to annex to its report a list of all persons who were employed since April 6, 1917, by the Government either under a regular salary or on a $1 a year basis, to whom Government contracts were issued either as individuals or to any partnership or corporation with which said individuals were connected either as members, Directors, or stockholders, showing also if any of said individuals were connected with any governmental department having contractual relations with the partnerships or corporations of which they were members, shareholders, or Directors; and, further, what the income tax returns of said individuals, partnerships or corporations having contractual relations with the Government or other evidence may disclose as to the extent of their profits:

"Resolved further, That said committee annex to its report a list of all other persons, partnerships or corporations, that have had contracts with the Government since April 6, 1917, or who have been engaged in the large-scale production or distribution of food products, with the information hereinbefore requested regarding the profits derived by them from such contracts or in said production or distribution."

EXPECT FOOD ACT TO PASS THIS WEEK

rate or charge in handling or dealing in or with any necessaries; to conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other persons (a) to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, harvesting, manufacturing, supplying, storing or dealing in any necessaries; (b) to restrict the supply of any necessaries; (c) to restrict distribution of any necessaries; (d) to prevent, limit, or lessen the manufacture or production of any necessaries in order to enhance the price thereof; or (e) to exact excessive prices for any necessaries, or to aid or abet the doing of any act made unlawful by this section. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $5,000 or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both; provided that this section shall not apply to any farmer, gardener, horticulturist, vineyardist, planter, ranchman, dairyman, stockman, or other agriculturist, with respect to the farm products produced or raised upon land owned, leased, or cultivated by him; and provided further that nothing in this act shall be construed to forbid or make unlawful collective bargaining by any co-operative association or other association of farmers, dairymen, gardeners, or other producers of farm products, with respect to the farm products produced or raised by its members upon land owned, leased, or cultivated by them.'

"Section 3. That Sections 8 and 9 of the act entitled 'an act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel,, approved Aug. 10, 1917, be, and the same are hereby repealed, provided, that any offense committed in violation of said Sections 8 and 9 prior to the passage of this act may be prosecuted and the penalties prescribed therein enforced in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been passed."

The report quotes the President's message and statements from experts on the high cost of living, and then proceeds to explain the bill as follows:

"The bill reported herewith is identical with the recommendations of the Attorney General except in the following respects:

"'Section 1. In enlarging the definition of "necessaries" the Attorney General included the words wearing apparel, the containers in which foods, feeds, and fertilizers are sold." The bill reported uses the wording "wearing apparel, containers primarily designed or intended for containing foods, feeds or fertilizers."

"'Section 2 attaches to Section 4 the penalty recommended by the Attorney General but adds the following provisos:

"'Provided that this section shall not apply to any farmer, gardener, horticulturist, vineyardist, planter, ranchman, dairyman, stockman, or other agriculturalist, with respect to the farm products produced or raised upon land owned, leased or cultivated by him; and provided further, that nothing in this act shall be construed to forbid or make unlawful collective bargaining by any co-operative association or other association of farmers, dairymen, gardeners, or other producers of farm products with respect to the farm products produced or raised by its members upon land owned, leased or cultivated by them.

"Section 3, which is as follows: 'That Sections 8 and 9 of the act entitled "an act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel," approved Aug. 10, 1917, be, and the same are hereby repealed, provided, that any offense committed in violation of said Sections 8 and 9, prior to the passage of this act, may be prosecuted and the penalties prescribed therein enforced in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been passed.

"The change in Section 1 is a slight alternation of phraseology. In Section 2 the provisos were added because the recommendations submitted by the Attorney General of the enacted law would not give immunity to the farmers or retailers as in Section 5 of the Food Control act, which imposed for profiteering a penalty. Clearly the present act prohibiting profiteering is accompanied by a penalty in the license section, notwithstanding statements to the contrary.

"In view of the testimony before the committee, the apparent injustice done, the absence of showing of profiteering by the farmers, and the provisions of the so-called Sherman anti-trust law, recognizing collective bargaining by labor, it is not deemed wise to subject the farmer to the inconvenience and expense indicated by the witnesses, under the Federal law.

"Section 3 repeals Section 8 of the Food Control act. As Section 4, amended by the bill, imposes a maximum fine of 'not exceeding a fine of $5,000 or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both,' for the offenses defined in the same language in Sections 8 and 9, their continuance would be superfluous, especially in view of the fact that the maximum fine is not consistent. The proviso contains a saving clause to prevent inability to prosecute or continue prosecutions of offenses under Sections 8 and 9 committed prior to the passage of the bill."

Chairman Volstead of the Judiciary Committee conferred today with Attorney General Palmer and Chairman W. B. Colver of the Federal Trade Commission about plans for enacting permanent legislation to regulate business, along lines suggested in the President's message. The Department of Justice and the commission have been in consultation, with a view to offering specific suggestions for legislation, and will send representatives before the Judiciary Committee as soon as they are ready.

Tentative suggestions have been made for amending one or more of three existing laws for regulating business concerns, viz.: The Sherman Anti-Trust act, the Clayton act, and the act creating the Federal Trade Commission.

McCRATE ATTACKS PALMER.

Representative Contends He Has Failed to Use Powers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Representative John McCrate of New York issued a statement today relative to his resolution calling upon the Attorney General to report to Congress what has been accomplished by the Judiciary Department in food violation cases. The statement calls on the President, the Department of Agriculture, and the Department of Justice to employ existing laws to reduce high living costs. The statement reads in part:

"The time has come when Congress must refuse to submit to graceful battering in its own meeting place to cover laxity and inefficiency of members of the Cabinet. Congress by the Food Survey act, passed in August, 1917, granted power to the Secretary of Agriculture to go into every packing house, cold storage plant, food hoarding spot, and retail store in America and demand to be informed as to the cost, production, and prices of foodstuffs.

"What has Mr. Houston, the Secretary of Agriculture, done with these powers? Congress voted $2,225,000 in November, 1918, to the Secretary of Agriculture to get and give to the people the facts about the production, storing, cost, and hoarding of food, and to that sum added $1,000,000 to stimulate meat and food production. In July, 1919, it gave him $1,157,970 to lay food facts before the people. He now asks for $500,000 additional. Congress demands to know what he has done with the powers and millions already voted before it blindly grants additional moneys and continues in peace times war measures.

"The President chided Congress for not granting all moneys requested by the executive departments, and he asked that the hoarding of foodstuffs and fuel be made unlawful; yet for two years, by the very first section of the Food Control act, those subjects are stated to be necessaries, and by Section 6 a jail penalty is established for hoarding them, and by Section 7 they may be sold by the courts. Since January of this year surely the food question has been sufficiently acute to have demanded action under the law as it is. The President also asked that a penalty for profiteering should be added to the law; yet the Attorney General suggests only one penalty amendment, which tends to cut in half the penalty already in the law against enhancing the price of foodstuffs. By Section 9 of the same food law passed in 1917 persons combining or agreeing to enhance the price of food may be sent to jail for two years. Are there in jail today any convicted under that section through the activity of the Attorney General?

"If, with these powers and penalties under existing law the prices of life's necessaries have continued to increase, it is time to find whether failure to enforce the law is the cause, or whether, in spite of the strictest enforcement, prices refuse to halt. If the Attorney General has prosecuted to the limit all violations reported, and the Secretary of Agriculture has exercised all powers conferred upon him, let us look for remedies in other directions.

"Let the Secretary of Agriculture and the Attorney General show that conscienceless crooks have found their way to jail and that food prices have fallen under the laws on the books for two years—then the country will willingly give them additional millions. Prison, and not publicity, is the cure for profiteering."

WHOLESALEGROCERS CONDEMN PACKERS

Charge "Big 5" Controls 25 Per Cent of the Business and Seeks a Monopoly.

STOCK MEN DEFEND THEM

Regard Them as the "Selling End"—Meat Dealer Also Finds Them Fair.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Denunciation and defense of the "big five" packers, their methods and alleged control of the preparation and supply of foodstuffs, were mingled in about equal proportions before the Senate Agriculture Committee today, as witnesses discussed the Kenyon bill, which purposes to license the concerns and to deprive them of refrigerator car and stock yard facilities.

Henry W. Lynch, representing stock raisers and their association, of California and Arizona, led the defense, while Louis H. Haney of Jacksonville, Fla., appearing for the Southern Wholesale Grocers Association, made a direct and unqualified attack on the packers and all their activities.

The packers' growth and strength, Mr. Haney asserted, was due not to their efficiency, but to their financial power and control of refrigerator car service, "which gives them privileges of a common carrier without a common carrier's responsibility." They now have 25 per cent. of the wholesale grocers' business in the United States, he said, and were tending toward monopoly. The wholesale grocers' interest in the situation, he said, paralelled that of the public, because the temporary policy of the packers in underselling jobbers of food commodities would be abandoned whenever they attained virtual monopoly.

Stockmen Uphold the Packers.

Mr. Lynch simply said that "the packing industry represents the selling end of we stock raisers' business. When you demoralize or hamper that—as this bill does—you hurt us."

R. A. Eastwood of Norfolk, Va., a wholesale meat dealer, assured the committee that he had always found the packers "fair and square in their dealings."

"We owe our success and prosperity in business," he said, "to following as closely as possible the packers' methods."

Mr. Haney dealt at considerable length with the refrigerator pedler cars, which he classed as "storehouses on wheels, rendering an exclusive service, at prices cheaper than railroad service can be rendered to others, and at more speed."

"But they will make things cheaper for consumers, will they not?" Senator Kenyon asked.

"Not in the long run," Mr. Haney said.

"Well, suppose they go on underselling the jobbers and wholesalers," Senator Kenyon continued, "put them out of business and substitute their service. That will cheapen distribution?"

"Only while the process is going on," the witness returned. "Our experiences with large industrial combinations show prices come back when monopoly is completed."

Haney expresed the opinion that low profits advertised by the large packers were not fairly stated, and added:

"They juggle their business around; make one line of products carry the costs a while and then another does it."

Existence of independent packers, Haney said, was explained by their being permitted "to stay to prevent appearance of monopoly."

Senator Wadsworth, referring to testimony of independents, asked if they knew they were "only permitted to live."

"They've told us they were making money," Senator Wadsworth observed. "Are they fooled about their business?"

"I don't know the conditions," Haney said. "The giant corporation controlling 85 per cent. of the business could drive the little ones out of exerting their strength, but that would involve lowering their profits. They prefer to keep a fringe hanging."

When Senator McNary, of Oregon, asked for a method of giving equal access to the distribution facilities, Mr. Haney said it could be done easily.

"The packers ought to be required to sell their cars to a corporation organized as a common carrier," he said, "taking bonds in exchange. Then the rates could be made sufficient on their use to render a profit, and the company could operate them as efficiently as the packers."

"In the handling of the foodstuffs," he said, "the packers acquire ownership of factories, and can forego the wholesaler's profit if they wish, in order to undersell."

Look for Large Profits.

"Then they only deal in those grocery lines in which the most profit is made," he added. "They won't handle salt, sugar, or flour. They make immense purchases of a certain product in a territory where it is plentiful, and sell it where the prices are higher. They are only 'scalpers' in many of these products; speculating, getting in and out when the market suits them."

Senator Wadsworth, New York, wanted to know about the wholesalers' "propaganda" in favor of the bill, and Mr. Haney, who described himself as "economist and publicity manager," said the wholesalers had tried to counteract the packers' campaign against it.

"The fact of the matter is, you want this bill to give your people a business advantage over the packers who are now competitors, isn't that it," Senator France, Maryland, demanded.

"No. We feel there is a great monopoly in foodstuffs being established," Haney declared. "We are the first to feel the inroads."

He said that wholesalers would object to the licensing requirements imposed upon the packers, but Senator Wadsworth interrupted to say it "wasn't called for."

Senator Kenyon, with some asperity, announced that "wholesale grocers have nothing to do with this bill," when Senator Wadsworth pursued the point a little further, with especial reference to circular letters sent out by Haney's organization declaring that it would be "easy" to get the licensing sections of the Kenyon bill modified so that they would not apply to wholesale grocers.

"The packers' business is too big to be healthy," Mr. Haney said, finally, in defending the grocers' stand.

sort of contrivance was called into service to carry them away.

Some of the women carried old-fashioned market baskets, such as haven't been seen in New York in a generation. Others brought baby carriages. In several cases the infant owner of the carriage himself came along and went home nestled among cans of baked beans, corn, peas, or syrup and chunks of bacon.

Outside of School 94, at Amsterdam Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street, two women were present with machines and volunteered to carry the food home for any woman who had no other means of conveyance. The women declined to give their names, but they were kept busy all day long.

Volunteers for Clerks.

Inside the buildings in convenient places were arranged the stores of food. Near by a couple of boxes and some planks sufficed for a counter behind which women volunteers took orders. The order was written on a white original sales ticket and a pink duplicate slip. The money was handed with the white ticket to the cashier, an employe of some city department, who verified the amount. Then the purchaser took the pink slip and progressed down the line to where the food was handed out.

Probably the biggest source of disappointment of the entire day lay in the fact that in most of the schools the choice of food was strictly limited. In general what was sold yesterday was cans of baked beans at 5 cents each, peas at 11 cents, and canned tomatoes at 10 cents. In a very few of the buildings there were syrup, bacon, canned corn, some soup and condensed milk. But these buildings were few and far between.

The purchasers took the situation good naturedly and bought what they found was on hand in much the same fashion as the soldier takes his ration at a mess table. It wasn't exactly what they wanted, but it was there, and no wise housewife or man buying for his family was going to miss the opportunity to obtain wholesome food at reduced prices.

Dealers wherever recognized were not permitted to buy supplies, and here the policeman of the district was invaluable. Several were recognized and ordered to leave places of the sale by the patrolmen stationed there. Several fashionably dressed women drove up in an automobile at School 94 and attempted to buy $200 worth of supplies for an out-of-town women's country club. Patrolman James J. Gowan and Mrs. Fred S. Lorsch of the National League for Woman's Service declined to fill the order, maintaining that the food was not designed to be sold in such an amount. For individuals no limit was put on the amount which could be bought.

Public School 3, at Grove and Hudson Streets, was one of the more fortunate buildings in that there was a comparatively wide choice of supplies. In addition to the beans, peas, and tomatoes, there was a little bacon at this school sold for 34 cents a pound, string beans for 11 cents a can, and condensed milk at 15 cents. From the first thing in the morning, when more than 200 people stormed the doors to get food, until the sale was over at 4 o'clock, the rush continued. The police, however, had no trouble in handling the crowd.

One School Has Light Sales.

One of the schools where the poorest record of sales was made during the day was at Public School 161, at Ludlow and Delancey Streets, on the lower east side. There were comparatively few people present and the sales were extremely light. It was thought by the people in charge that the poor showing was due to the fact that a sign had not been posted in the school building inasmuch as most of the residents of the district would not be likely to see the notices of the sales published in the newspapers.

More than 300 people were in line when the sales were begun at Public School 89, 135th Street and Lenox Avenue. This is a colored community and the sales were conducted by George W. Harris, editor of a newspaper for colored people. Something over 500 cases of goods were on sale here, consisting of two sizes of cans of baked beans. They were bought with eagerness by the persons present and by 4 o'clock the supply was practically exhausted.

At Public School 186, on 145th Street, west of Amsterdam Avenue, nearly a thousand persons were in line when the school doors were opened, and that number of people was crowded outside the building practically all day, newcomers taking the places vacated by those who succeeded in getting their food or who turned away disappointed at the delay.

At Public School 40, at 320 East Twentieth Street, the sale was in charge of Miss Elizabeth Brannigan. About 600 persons were on hand when the doors opened. At night Miss Brannigan said that she hoped a few more women would be present to help today in order that the work of filling orders might go along a little more quickly. Many of the housewives in the district, she said, found it extremely inconvenient to be absent from home for the length of time it took to be waited on.

Acting Borough President William J. Flynn of the Bronx opened the sale in that borough. Owing to difficulties of transportation a number of the schools previously designated as distribution centres were not opened. Mr. Flynn promised, however, that they would all be ready for business this morning. In the schools that were open the municipal authorities had placed for sale some 200,000 cans of baked beans, corns, peas, tomatoes, soups, and condensed milk, as well as 1,500 pounds of bacon.

Employes Buy in Group Plan.

In addition to the sale of food at the school buildings, Commissioner Day pointed out, that concerns where 100 employes or more signified their intention of purchasing the army food were permitted by the Government to take the food direct from the Quartermaster Corps in exactly the same way the city did.

A number of such firms are taking advantage of this opportunity, the Commissioner pointed out, and are thereby lightening the burden carried by the city. A point which the Commissioner wanted stressed, particularly in relation to the sales, was that where the purchaser bought a can of food that seemed spoiled, the person in charge of the sales where the can was bought had instructions to replace the bad can with a good one.

Commissioner Day also said that he had been notified by the army authorities that there were several million pounds of frozen meats in this zone for distribution when the city would be able to sell the food without danger of its spoiling. The Department of Markets, he said, was considering the matter, but as there were no refrigerator plants to handle the meat the problem was a hard one. A plan that had been suggested, he declared, ane one that might possibly be followed, was to have the butchers of the city agree to handle the meat at cost. This is only tentative, and according to the Commissioner nothing will be done in the matter until the present sale is over.

While the food was being distributed from the school houses the other agencies in the city, Federal, State, and municipal, which have been enlisted in the fight to lessen the cost of necessities of life carried on their campaign.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams held two conferences at his headquarters in the Consolidated Gas Company's building at Fifteenth Street and Irving Place, one with the Master Butchers, and the other with the Retail Grocers Association, to discuss what might be done in the way of arriving at an agreement on a fair price list.

The conference with the butchers lasted nearly all afternoon, those present being unable to come to any agreement on the margin of profit that the butcher shall get over the price he pays the wholesaler for his goods. It was finally decided that the butchers should appoint a subcommittee to consider the proposition and be ready to submit figures and the reasons for those figures before the meeting of the Fair Price Committee next week.

Mr. Williams said that the butchers would cut down the price of meat a little no matter what margain of profit they agreed upon. The butchers confirmed this, promising that the price of meat would drop from 1 to 3 cents a pound under the present prices. Those present sent a telegram to United States Attorney General Palmer pledging their loyal support in the present crisis before adjourning yesterday's conference.

Agree Upon Marginal Prices.

After the conferences with the butchers, Mr. Williams met the grocers. After a short session the following list of marginal prices was agreed upon:

The foregoing prices, Mr. Williams said, are based upon a cash and carry basis. Mr. Williams suggested that food buyers pay personal visits to the stores instead of ordering by telephone or mail. The Food Administrator also suggested that the marginal prices listed here be kept for ready reference to act as a guide when making purchases.

The outcome of the conference called for the purpose of discussing permanent constructive measures for reducing the cost of food distribution in New York City, which was held yesterday afternoon between Dr. Eugene H. Porter, State Commissioner of Foods and Markets, and members of the State Council of Markets, former officials of the Federal Food Board, and others, was the adoption of plans for the formation of a permanent consulting board, the latter to advise and co-operate with the State Division of Food and Markets in investigations and the ultimate establishment of an effective system of State control in the handling of food products.

To Draw Up Food Bill.

The conferees agreed that all wholesale dealers of food commodities should be placed under State license. A comprehensive bill empowering the Division of Foods and Markets to license wholesalers, regulate malpractices, stop illegitimate speculation, and prevent hoarding, will be drafted at an early date and presented to the Legislature. Efforts should be made, it was agreed, to bring about standard rating of all farm produce, in order that the cost of handling and therefore the cost of food commodities may be reduced.

At Pier 12 yesterday the Quartermaster Corps attempted to deliver to the purchasers the 70,000 odd army blankets which were bought at last week's sale. More than a thousand people were on the pier when the distribution started at 9 o'clock, and the congestion was so great that many were unable to obtain the blankets. Those who had to go away disappointed have turned in complaints, and the army authorities promised last night that when the distribution starts today conditions will be improved. Captain A. A. Stewart, Zone Surplus Property Officer, estimated last night that about $50,000 had been received by the Government for the blankets.

FERNALD ATTACKS FEDERAL CONTROL

DEFENDS MEAT PACKERS

Asserts Their Affairs Must Be Conducted in Large Units to be Economical.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—An attack on the governmental tendency toward assuming control of business enterprises, with especial reference to proposed legislation for supervision of the packing industry, was made today by Senator Fernald of Maine, speaking in the Senate. Stamping the Kenyon and Kendrick bills, providing for regulating the packers and now under discussion, as examples of "stifling, throttling legislation," he declared his opposition to them, said they were extensions of the policy which had failed in the transportation and communication industries, and predicted that the public would suffer from higher costs and poorer service should they be enacted.

"I cannot believe the Senate of the United States feels after the experience we have had with Government control of railroads, telegraph, and telephone lines, that the policy should be continued," Senator Fernald said. "It would certainly lead to chaos and commercial bankruptcy. In behalf of the business men of the country, those who have had as much to do with making our country great as any other class of citizens, I want to protest here and now against this proposed legislation. It is filled with danger to our institutions and our system of Government. It is socialistic, it is un-American, and it should be defeated."

Defending the packers, Senator Fernald said their business had to be conducted in large units to be economical. Their development of refrigerator cars and ownership of stock yards, like their utilization of animal by-products, constituted valuable service.

"One of the most notable results of by-product utilization is the fact that all the meat from a steer can be sold by the packer for much less than he pays for the live animal." Senator Fernald said. "Swift & Co. in 1908 paid on an average of $92.70 a head for cattle and sold the meat for $81.45 a head. For by-products $22.08 a head was received. Thus $10.83 covered the expense and profit on each head, and figures show the profit per head was only $1.02.

"To my way of thinking the discovery made by the packers that by-products that were thrown away could be utilized is one of the great achievements of modern times. When the proposition to curb the packing industry is viewed in its proper light, I think it will be found that the present organization of the industry really meets the needs of the situation in this country and results in efficiency."

He attacked the Federal Trade Commission for "questionable methods" in its investigation and report on the packers, and said that it had very largely lost sight of its function to aid and guide business.

"The commission," asserted the Senator, "failed to get any evidence of combination. It is only by unfair methods, by misinterpretation, and misstatement of facts that it was able to come to the conclusion that there is a combination in restraint of trade. This report, so far as I have been able to investigate it, contains no evidence of monopoly. I am reliably informed that the commission in some instances actually used only such parts of telegrams taken from the files of the packers as appeared to bear out its case, omitting items from the same telegrams which were not useful evidence to the committee.

"So here we have an agency of the Government, constituting itself mainly as a prosecuting body, losing sight very largely of its function in the aid and guidance of business. The Federal Trade Commission, in place of co-operating and being of some assistance, is now badgering, harrying, and heckling American business interests."

"If there is any unfair competition or monopoly or any practices in trading that are not on the square, the Clayton anti-trust law and the Federal Trade Commission law give ample power to suppress such illegal operations."

DECISION ON EXTRA SESSION.

Governor Smith to Announce It Today.

ALBANY, Aug. 21.—Governor Smith, it was announced at the executive chambers tonight, will make known tomorrow his decision with regard to calling an extra session of the Legislature to consider legislation aimed at profiteering and to reduce the cost of living.

Former Governor Martin H. Glynn and John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education, recently appointed by the Governor to investigate food conditions, had a long conference with the Executive tonight. Their recommendations will be made public later.

LOWER LIVING COST FIRST, SAYS BLAND

More Important Than Protecting American Market, Asserts the Congressman in France.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Congressman Oscar E. Bland of Indiana, a member of the War Expenditures Investigating Committee which is here examining records pertaining to the liquidation of the affairs of the American Army in France, said today that he felt it was more important to lower the cost of living for the American public than to endeavor to protect market prices and prevent the market from breaking.

Mr. Bland said the pressure brought to bear by American dealers and manufacturers in an effort to prevent the return of war supplies from France to America were objectionable to him, adding that "when Americans so badly need shoes it seems strange that so many good army shoes should be sold at low prices to Belgium and other European countries, American workingmen in the meantime being forced to pay higher prices in the United States."

TO SELL ALL ARMY SUPPLIES.

213,000,000 Pounds of Bacon Added to Stock for Public.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The War Department announced today that plans have now been made for sale to the public of practically the entire amount of surplus foodstuffs in possession of the army. This includes about 213,000,000 pounds of bacon and canned meats, enough to supply two pounds to each person in the country, and about 135,000,000 pounds of canned vegetables, or one and one-quarters pound per person. A few surplus articles have not been made available for general distribution owing to the difficulty of shipment by parcel post.

The principal item of this character consists of frozen meats, including 60,000,000 pounds of beef, 7,000,000 of pork, 3,000,000 of poultry, and 1,000,000 of mutton.

War Department surplus materials sold during the week ended Aug. 15, 1919, amounted to $5,107,173.81, making a total of $396,336,100.42 for sales embraced in the period from Jan. 1, 1919, to Aug. 15.

Transactions by the surplus property division of the office of the Quartermaster General amounted to $3,458,289.24, the greater part of which was derived from the sales of food commodities. Canned corn and canned beans were the principal articles of food marketed during the week. Textile sales for the week also were comparatively large, amounting to $860,746.19.

WILL REVOKE SUGAR LICENSES

Food Administrator Will Act on Proving of Violations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Following word from Edgar Rickard, who has been acting as Food Administrator in the absence of Herbert Hoover, that he was prepared to revoke the license of any licensed dealer in sugar, on recommendation of the Attorney General after a hearing before his department had proved violation of the regulations provided in the Food Control act, Attorney General Palmer sent a telegram to all United States attorneys, Food Administrators, and Bureau of Investigation agents, in which he said:

"All dealers in sugar, from the refiner to the retail dealer, doing $100,000 business a year or more, are under license of the United States Food Administration and are subject to the rules of the Food Control act of 1917. Licenses may be canceled for violations."

The telegram explained how the Food Administration has arrived at a fair price of approximately 11 cents per pound for sugar to the consumer, saying:

"The United States Sugar Equalization Board, Inc., a Government corporation, purchased and now owns and controls the entire domestic and Cuban crop of sugar for the crop years of 1918 and 1919. All of this raw sugar is sold to the refiners at 7.28 cents per pound. Refiners are under contract with the board to sell this sugar at 9 cents, less 2 per cent. discount for cash or 8.82 cents per pound net.

"The margin allowed retailers under the Food Administration regulations was 1 cent per pound for sales in original packages, 1¼ cents per pound in broken packages. These margins are not now specifically in force, but under the law and the license regulations dealers are restricted to a reasonable profit and the former margins prescribed by the Food Administration are of value in determining reasonable profits. It is therefore apparent that sugar should reach the consumers at approximately 11 cents, subject to some variation on account of the flexibility of the word 'reasonable.'

"Resales within the same trade without reasonable justification, especially if tending to result in a higher market price to the retailer or consumer, will be considered and dealt with as an unfair practice. Unnecessary resales within the trade, and the passing of sugar from wholesaler to wholesaler, are undoubtedly responsible for much of the present radical increase in sugar prices in many localities.

"There has been some misunderstanding in the trade on the subject, and in some cases dealers have purchased sugar at an unreasonable price. When this is a fact it will not be profiteering for them to sell at a reasonable advance over the cost.

"Our desire is to secure a fair price for the consumer, and we do not wish to pursue a wholesale policy of recommending the cancellation of licenses. Where trade adjusts itself to a fair margin for the future, past transactions, unless flagrant, will not ordinarily be made the basis of a recommendation by this department for the cancellation of the license."

PRESENTS COLD STORAGE BILL

Measure Is Similar to New Jersey Act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—A cold storage bill along the general lines of the New Jersey law limiting cold storage to ten months and requiring that all cold storage articles shall be labeled, giving the date they were stored and withdrawn, was introduced in the House today by Representative Hutchinson of New Jersey. He said many of its features had the approval of the officials of the Department of Agriculture.

Any perishable food except liquid food is covered by the bill. Extension beyond the ten months may be granted by the Secretary of Agriculture. Shipment of perishable food that has been held in storage for more than ten months is prohibited in interstate commerce unless the fact that it is a cold storage food, and the date or dates it is placed in storage, and the name or names of the warehouses in which it is sold or placed are mentioned.

In case it is not commercially practical to mark the food containers, an invoice or other shipping document describing the food and the storage conditions may be used. Violation of this provision is punishable by a fine of $10,000, imprisonment for a year, or both.

The Secretary of Agriculture may reject application for extension if he shall find that such food is owned or controlled by any person doing business with such food in violation of the provisions of the act of Congress, approved July 2, 1890, commonly known as the Sherman Anti-Trust act, and the acts of Congress amendatory or supplementary thereto.

The bill further requires all persons operating storage plants to submit quarterly reports to the Secretary of Agriculture. Permission is given to any agent of the Secretary of Agriculture to examine the contents and operation of warehouses. Refusal to permit such examintions is punishable by a fine of $1,000 or one year's imprisonment.

The bill further provides that, whenever in the opinion of a court the perishable nature of a food shall make such action immediately necessary, the same shall be immediately disposed of by destruction or sale, and the same action may be taken if it shall be found that the provisions of the act have been violated.

Another section authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to investigate the supply, consumption, costs, and prices of and the basic facts relating to the ownership, production, transportation, manufacture, storage, and distribution of food and food materials.

RETAILERS' BIG PROFITS.

French Find They Are 25 to 40 Per Cent. and Plan to Reduce Them.

PARIS, Aug. 11, (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—A recapitulation of prices for provisions at the central markets compared with retail selling prices shows that the retailers' profits run from 25 per cent. to 40 per cent. M. Roy, the new Provisions Commissary, proposes to reduce these margins through more active competition by the government. The number of huts from which military stores are sold direct to the consumer will be doubled and provisions from government stocks will be withheld from all merchants who demand excessive profits.

The stocks bought from the American army, including a thousand tons of granulated sugar and an immense quantity of canned beef, will be marketed principally through co-operative stores at a very small profit.

SHOE RETAILERS PUT TOP PRICE AT $12

Head of Association Denies Reports That Footgear Will Mount to $50.

COURTS PROFITS INQUIRY

Declares the Dealer's Interest Is to Sell More Shoes to More People at Lower Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 21.—Vigorous denial that there is any organized profiteering among the more than five thousand retail shoe dealers of the nation was made today by officers and Directors of the National Shoe Retailers' Association in convention here.

A. H. Geuting of Philadelphia, President of the national body, commenting on a report from Washington that Congress had ordered or was about to order an investigation of the retail shoe trade, made this declaration:

"Retail stores of the United States represented in this association fear no investigation. We have nothing to conceal now or at any other time. We stand ready to place ourselves unreservedly at the disposal of the Government, as we did during the war, for the working out of any practical plan designed to solve the price problem."

Upon behalf of thirty State bodies and fourteen local organizations of retailers' officials at today's meeting issued a sweeping denial of widely circulated reports that shoes, during the coming Winter, are to sell from $25 to $50 per pair.

"These statements are absolutely false," said T. C. Mirkil of Philadelphia, Secretary of the association. "They are set adrift by individuals either for the purpose of diverting public attention from their own speculations or for other purposes we have not been able to fathom.

"As a matter of fact, the bulk of the shoes retailed in the United States the coming Winter will be sold at from $8 to $12 a pair. There will be higher priced footwear for those who want it, but the average purchasers will pay from $8 to $12.

"It is perfectly evident to the retail dealers that they are being made collectively the 'goats' of a political situation without precedent. We are not afraid of any investigation that is fair and under the right auspices. We are satisfied that the most searching investigtion will show there is no profiteering upon the part of the retailer of footwear.

"This association will take the stand that it is not only unfair but absurd to charge one branch of one industry with profiteering when it is conceded that high prices are universal and that there are basic fundamental reasons for this condition."

After a conference between J. A. Goldberg, Chairman of the styles committee of the national body, and the directors and national officers, Secretary Mirkil was authorized to inform the retail trade through the Philadelphia headquarters that all freak styles in footwear would be eliminated for the Spring season of 1920 in the interest of curbing sale prices.

"The entire style program will be formulated with a view to eliminating duplication of styles and all other conditions contributing to avoidable costs," it was announced. "Instead of the almost innumerable colors prevailing in footwear prior to the war, shoes for the Spring season of 1920 will be made up in only nine shades. Retailers are co-operating directly with manufacturers with the purpose of simplyfying the output wherever possible. Retail trade methods are to be revolutionized also, with a view to concentrating upon the styles which sell and avoiding crowding of shelves with stock for which there is little or no demand.

"These changes in trade methods will be general throughout the country. Retailers have no desire to see prices exceptionally high for footwear. They would rather sell more stock to a greater number of people."

SEES GERMANY SAFE FROM OLD REGIME

Evil Spirit of Prussianism Dead and the Ex-Kaiser Is Discredited.

MORE DISCLOSURES COMING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Given the conditions to which I shall shortly refer, I think the new Germany will be a democratic republic eventually, applying again in order to solve her tremendous problems that spirit of hustle which she showed before the war, and, in addition, calling to her aid the best in spirit of a new and adventurous time.

I do not think there is a likelihood of the return of the ex-Kaiser or of the Conservative régime. The fallen head of the monarchy disgraced himself irretrievably by his flight. All recent revelations show how closely he was identified with the reactionaries and jingoes who brought about Germany's fall.

How weak and pretty was that once imperial personage has been clearly demonstrated. He lacked decision at a serious crisis and at the supreme moment.

I am sure there is less pro-Kaiserism in Germany now than at any time since he fled. The conservative press, of course, indulges in a lot of loud talk about "Unser Kaiser," but that press is not worthy of much attention and represents little more than its own editors in the rage of bitter disappointment.

Though the attitude of the army and navy officers is understandable, I think the Germany that matters would not greatly object to seeing the ex-Kaiser and his warmakers brought to trial. Nor do I think Germany will restore the monarchical system, for who would accept, to borrow a phrase from 1848, "a crown of the stones of barricades"? And if the monarch in exile is deeply involved in all the costly tragedy of the past, so the Junker party even more heavily burdened with responsibility for the war, for its prolongation, and for the sordid misery and treasonable mischief of it all. Revelations made of late, it scarcely need be pointed out, have sealed the political fate of the Junker, and there are, I think, more serious revelations to come.

I believe that a war of revenge—prepared before a watching world—is impossible. Germany, all agree, is worn and half starving, and can only carry her burdens if the reduced strength of her workers is restored by supplies of food and her trade and industries are set going again by financial credits and raw material. It will be a long process, and at present Germany's fate does really hang in the balance.

She has suffered more mentally, physically, and economically since the armistice than during any period of the war. Outside help will not do everything or nearly everything. Her own leaders must bestir themselves. Her intellectuals, who so often failed the country at fateful junctures, must waken, for it is to her liberal minds that Germany must look. In all the darkness there are some good auguries. Germany now has a democratic Constitution, and it will lull many political passions.

Then there is the comparative calm of the last few months. The East has ceased to be a danger. The granting of a plebiscite to Upper Silesia took away the main grievance of that part of the country and made war in the East, always a gamble of desperadoes, an impossible thing. And the rights to be given to the Workers' Councils—opinions in other countries will naturally be divided regarding this move, but I should think a majority of the workers and employers in Germany wish to make the experiment—may be the remedy for much industrial unrest.

And little by little, too, facts about shameless profiteering of the great conservative industrial magnates will come to light. How they refused to carry out war work because exportation was more profitable. And soon there is a terrible story to be told of greed on one hand and inability to put it down on the other.

No, the reactionaries have had their day. Germany will not go to the Canossa of conservatism nor will she become Bolshevist of her own free, if weary, will. Not only is the whole mentality of Germany against it, but it would mean infinitely greater disaster to an industrial country like Germany than to an agricultural one like Russia, and the blockade as a weapon against the Bolsheviki would be quickly effective.

Germany is beaten and she knows it. The evil Prussian spirit which during nearly fifty years had leavened Germany to her hurt, which wrought such incalculable damage to the whole world, which roused a hatred and a justifiable anger not easily to be overcome—that spirit has gone. All investigators, I think, agree with me there.

BOLSHEVIKI PLAYED UP DISORDER IN GERMANY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—"What an exciting time you must have had in Germany," people say to me, but as a matter of fact the "time" I have had has often, as far as events were concerned, been almost dull. In reality Berlin since the beginning of March has been quite as tranquil as London. Munich and Frankfort, for instance, certainly behaved worse than Liverpool and London, but they did not, I am sure, any more seriously threaten the stability of the central authority. So if we are to grasp the German situation properly the general impression created by much of the "news" of the last four or five months must be revised.

In the first place, it is necessary to understand that the disorders which have taken place have been reported from "neutral" centres with the aid of much Bolshevist imagination. Disorders have often been reported which never took place at all. Semi-official sources in Germany herself are not entirely blameless for it, for by exaggeration, by suppressio veri and by suggestio falsi they hoped to lull the people, rebellious, angry, or alarmed, into calm. We have to remember, too, that there are agencies at work—not all unconnected with the Russian Bolshevist Mafia—with the intention of making still worse the relations between Germany and the other countries, bad as they are. Your Bolshevik does not wish Germany to trade and settle down eventually into an orderly State, nor does he wish other countries to benefit by trade with Germany. So, using various channels, he inspires "news" with the object of stirring up more bad feeling and its consequent unrest.

People point to Munich as an example of the degree of order which may be expected in new Germany, but the latest "revolution" there was the work of a group of non-Germans. Numerous strikes in Germany, as elsewhere, were caused in the first place by the high cost of living. The workers were naturally ready to profit by the fact that the iron authority of other days had gone. They suffered from the general lassitude to which I referred in a previous article and "holidays" were not unattractive. But failure in general attended the efforts to make these strikes a political weapon.

An impartial observer is forced to admit that the German has, since the fearful and final downfall of the old régime, shown to no small degree his characteristics of orderliness and discipline.

WARNS OF EXCHANGE PERIL.

London Writer Says It Will Force Food Prices Still Higher.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Chronicle's financial editor, in an article on the fall in New York rate of exchange, says:

"The only remedy is for us to import only the absolute necessities from the United States and at the same time strain every nerve to increase our exports of goods to that country.

"We must, to put it shortly, spend less and produce more. It is possible that artificial measures may be taken to check the decline, such, for instance, as raising of credits on the other side. Moreover, Americans are being urged to buy our securities—a very profitable policy for them at the present exchange—and if this query is acted upon to any appreciable extent exchange would benefit.

"But the real remedies lie in economy and hard work on the part of British citizens. Unfortunately, the gravity of the position scarcely seems as yet to be realized, but it will be realized when prices of food and commodities rise further, as they must do if exchange continues to fall."

PERSHING IN MILAN.

American General Gets an Enthusiastic Reception.

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 21.—General John J. Pershing, the American Commander in Chief, arrived here today from Verona. He was warmly welcomed by the military and civil authorities of the city and the American, British, and French colonies.

The populace of Milan is enthusiastic over the visit of the American General.

TURIN, Aug. 21.—General Pershing had a splendid welcome here. Replying to a toast in his honor at the Town Hall, he said that his tour of the battlefields made him realize the difficulties the Italian Army had overcome—difficulties which Americans had no conception of. Now he realized the extent of Italy's sacrifices.

General Pershing has started for Paris.

DECORATES OUR OFFICERS.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—General Pillot, commanding the Paris Garrison, decorated a number of American officers today. Colonels L. R. Khomer, U. S. Browning, W. B. Wallace, and T. H. Jackson, and Lieut. Col. Edmund Gros were made officers of the Legion of Honor.

Colonel G. N. Russel, Lieut. Cols. M. J. O'Brien, T. J. McGrath, and F. L. Whitley, Captains C. I. Morton and T. C. Montgomery, and Lieutenant H. W. Waters were made Knights of the Legion of Honor. Captain Morton and Lieutenant Waters also received the War Cross, as did Colonel C. A. Truesdell and Major W. W. Carr.

GO TO ENGLAND FOR GOODS.

American Buyers Change Their Minds About High Prices.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, writing in the British Weekly, says it is a significant fact that one of the largest of the Chicago departmental stores sent over a number of buyers to this country in January last. They returned to America without placing any orders and informed the English manufacturers that their quotations were "impossible."

Now they are over here once again, he says, and buying in very large quantities, indeed at prices higher than those quoted last January.

HOME RULE ACT'S REVIVAL.

Effective as Soon as War Ends, Nationalists Point Out.

DUBLIN, Aug. 9, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—The Irish Nationalist papers print the text of the act suspending the operation of the Home Rule act to make it plain that the Home Rule act must come into operation, not, as was supposed, within six months of the end of the war, but on a date to be fixed "not later than the end of the war."

It was provided by an Act of Parliament that the date on which the war officially ends shall be a date as near as possible to the date of signing the last of the treaties of peace.

LA GUARDIA MAKES REPLY.

Calls His Opponent, W. M. Bennett, a "Perpetual Candidate."

Replying to the challenge issued by ex-Senator William M. Bennett, his opponent for the Republican nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen, to debate with him the issues of the campaign, Representative La Guardia, in a statement yesterday, characterized Mr. Bennett as a "perpetual candidate."

"The difference between his position and my own," said Mr. La Guardia, "is that the office is seeking me and Mr. Bennett is seeking the office. Mr. Bennett has run for office so often that he uses stereotype forms and stereotype statements. He wishes to raise the question of our respective Republicanism. In 1916, a Democratic year, I captured a Democratic district and placed it in the Republican ranks. In 1917 Mr. Bennett deliberately delivered the City of New York to Tammany.

"Mr. Bennett suddenly becomes solicitous for higher wages for certain municipal employes. I have little faith in these promises, connected as he is with a large monopolistic fruit corporation employing help at starvation wages and keeping up the almost prohibitive prices of fruit in New York. As yet I have received no invitation or indication from Mr. Bennett that he really desires to debate with me."

NITTI NOW POPULAR THROUGHOUT ITALY

New Premier Won Support by Vigorous Measures to Restore the Country.

IS DISLIKED BY THE ARMY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 21.—That public opinion is as changeable as the wind has been emphatically proved in Italy during the last two months. In the closing days of June, when Nitti tried feverishly to form a Cabinet, when all the Roman newspapers, with very few exceptions, accused him of every imaginable crime short of being a traitor, when d'Annunzio damned him in the most eloquent terms, who would ever have prophesied that only eight weeks later Nitti would be one of the most popular figures in the kingdom?

I remember being on the Corso, the chief thoroughfare of Rome, amid an agitated and determined crowd of people, all crying at the top of their voices, "Down with Nitti! Death, death to Giolitti's catspaw!" Today on that very spot is exhibited behind a glass window a big photograph of the Premier. Two months ago it contained photographs of Ambassadors Pages of America, Rennell Rodd of England, Barrére of France. Now the smiling, energetic face of Nitti looks down upon the admiring crowd.

His first great move toward victory was the cessation of the food riots in a bloodless, peaceful way, within two days of the date set for the general strike. The people feel they have at last found a man ready to assume responsibilities, and capable to carry out with firmness the measures which are necessary to ensure peace and prosperity for Italy.

The Nationalists and the military, however, are still against the Premier. The latter accuse him of always having been hostile to the army and ready to make large concessions in the Adriatic. They say that it is owing to him that so many superior officers, including many Generals, are being put on the retired list with meagre pensions. In fact, the pensions are so small generally that the recipients start learning a new profession like any boy of 20 to enable them to live decently.

The army says: "After having taken the best we had to offer they throw us away like a squeezed lemon."

These same people whisper that Nitti rejoices at the result of the investigation held to ascertain those responsible for the disaster at Caporetto, as it greatly aids him in the policy which he intends to follow. Some parties are deeply pained that that investigation has been made public, as it brought to light some incidents which are revolting and others which are indispensable if a huge army of 5,000,000 men is to be kept disciplined.

Every one regrets that the affair was not judged immediately after Caporetto, as whatever sentence the commission would have passed then would have been unanimously approved by the country. The Dardanelles investigation in England is cited as an example.

Popular feeling having now much cooled down, it is considered undignified that men like General Capello, for instance, who have undoubtedly served their country well and faithfully, should now be censured. Capello was one of the best generals Italy had during the war.

In fact, his was the brain which planned the taking of Gorizia and the difficult, bloody victories on Bainsizza Plateau, just before the Caporetto disaster. Now he is being called an oppressor, a sanguinary savage. The only person who defends him is General Cadorna, who says he was a man of great military virtues, a strong leader of men with a quick grasp, and a great man with artillery, but who had his defects. The chief one was his excessive desire to reach his own ends without counting the means he employed.

Cadorna's defense of Capello is most significant as it is well known a certain party wished to place the latter at the head of the army instead of Cadorna. It is felt that this raking up of passed incidents is playing into the Socialists' hands, as they are doing their utmost to demonstrate that many Generals took advantage of their power and rights.

This exposure and stain on the army is pointed out by some of Nitti's opponents as a clear indication of his intention to propitiate the Extreme Left, which has as its program the abolition of the army as it now stands.

One great stroke of fortune for Nitti was the printers' strike in Rome, which lasted six weeks, as in this way he found himself freed from the powerful opposition of the press in the capital where most of the important newspapers are his adversaries and influence opinion throughout the kingdom. His enemies spread about a report that he saw to it that the strike should be prolonged.

Another step of the Premier's which led to this change in popular feeling toward him is his project of a forced loan on capital proportionally, thus striking the wealthiest in the land to the exclusion of those who have small fortunes.

The last, but not the leaset, of Nitti's indefatigable labors has been the improved relation between America and Italy, and England and Italy. This has been demonstrated by the tone adopted by the press, which might, now that the censorship has been abolished, have attacked either of these countries on the delay of the solution of the Adriatic question.

PRINCE MAPS MINES' DRIFT.

Monaco Ruler's Calculations Safeguard Voyagers Across Atlantic.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Calculations by the Prince of Monaco on the direction in which floating mines were drifting in the Atlantic have been confirmed as accurate by the Director of the Meteorological Service of the Azores, in a letter published here today.

The Prince, who is an authority on oceanography, gave his calculations on the mines to the Academy of Sciences on Dec. 30, 1918. A map showing where mines have been found in the North Atlantic from November, 1918, to April 17, 1919, was submitted by the Meteorological Director of the Azores to prove the accuracy of the Prince's calculations.

The map shows the mines have spread to the north, south and southwest of the Azores, and are floating toward the coasts of England, France and Spain. Navigating directions given by the Prince of Monaco were said to be the safest now available, for the Atlantic.

ARREST OF LAFEAN ORDERED

Former Banking Commissioner Is Sought in North Penn Wrecking.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—The arrest of Daniel F. Lafean, former Banking Commissioner of Pennsylvania, for alleged implication in the North Penn Bank wreck, was ordered today by District Attorney Rotan. A warrant charging misdemeanor in office, in not notifying the Attorney General of the unsound condition of the bank, was issued by a Magistrate and probably will be served on Lafean tomorrow at his home in York, Penn. He is accused of "gross violation of duty" in not acting upon a report of a bank examiner in October, 1918, that the bank was unsafe.

Lafean's arrest will be the fifth since the closing of the institution on July 18 with an apparent shortage of $2,164,000, and the second of a former State official.

Ralph T. Moyer, cashier of the wrecked bank, who was arrested shortly after the failure, was indicted by the Grand Jury today on four counts. True bills were found charging him with perjury, making and aiding in making false statements as to the financial condition of the bank, receiving deposits when the institution was insolvent, and the fraudulent conversion of a $5,000 Liberty bond.

Others under arrest are Charles A. Ambler, former State Insurance Commissioner; Louis T. Michel, President of the North Penn, and William T. Gabell, a Director and clerk, who will be given a hearing tomorrow on conspiracy charges.

Another arrest in connection with the failure of the North Penn Bank was made tonight, Evan L. Ambler, assistant cashier of the institution, being taken into custody. He was charged with accepting deposits, knowing that the bank was insolvent, and with unlawfully giving a depositor as reference to a depositor. At a hearing before a magistrate he was held in $2,500 bail for a further hearing tomorrow. Ambler is not related to the former State Insurance Commissioner.

Cheaper Living for Hotel Employes.

A co-operative store which expects to reduce prices from 10 to 20 per cent. was started yesterday in the Hotel Commodore by the employes of the Bowman hotels as a measure to fight the high cost of living. The plan for the store was originated by John McE. Bowman, and was put into effect by the employes in the hotels of the benevolent unit, which is made up of the 7,000 members of the Terminal Hotel Benefit Association, an organization embracing workers in the Hotels Belmont, Manhattan, Murray Hill, Biltmore, Commodore, and Ansonia. No sales are made outside the members' families.

A capias was to be issued for the arrest of G. O. Davis, President of the board.

LONDON EXPECTS BIG ANTI-RED DRIVE

DENIKIN STILL SWEEPS ON

But Moscow Soviet Claims Continued Successes on the Siberian Front.

LONDON, Aug. 21, (Associated Press.)—The London newspapers today feature various reports of activities against the Bolsheviki, inferring from them that the enemies of the Russian Soviet Government, including the Entente, are commencing operations aiming to dispose finally of Leninism.

By sympathizers with this aim the recent crippling of the Bolshevist fleet in the Gulf of Finland and the very substantial successes ascribed to General Denikin are hailed with the greatest satisfaction, as is a Paris report attributing to the Rumanians preparations to join Denikin's advance, thus closing the gap between the latter's left wing and the present Rumanian positions.

The newspapers while giving much prominence to the reported meeting at Stockholm of General Judenich, commanding the Russo-Esthonian army operating against Petrograd; General Lianczow, General Skoropadski, former Hetman of the Ukraine, and other representatives of the anti-Bolshevist movement for the purpose of planning an offensive against Petrograd are unable to add anything with regard to the conference.

Neither in London nor in Stockholm can anything be learned of the alleged impending participation of the former Russian Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, whose reported presence in England cannot be confirmed. It is recalled that his whereabouts has been a constant topic of rumor since the downfall of the Russian Czar. Reports of his death have been alternating with various accounts of his secret activities.

The correspondent of The Associated Press at Stockholm, in recording the conference of General Judenich and the other anti-Bolshevist leaders, says:

"Stockholm gradually is becoming the centre of Russian anti-Bolsheviki and, according to the Swedish newspapers, the movement is not quite without the influence of the Entente legations."

The London newspapers today comment on the outlook. The majority of the journals, which are anti-Bolshevist, are auguring hopefully from the reports received, while those opposed to British intervention in Russia reiterate their condemnation of the assistance given Lenin's enemies.

Advices received by prominent Poles in London today are to the effect that Generals Petlura and Denikin are continuing their offensives respectively in West and South Russia against the Bolsheviki, and with striking success. The correspondent was informed that General Denikin's advance probably soon would connect him with the allied troops, which would be the signal for the rising of the entire Ukraine and the driving back of the Bolsheviki into the desolate regions of Central Russia.

The Bolshevist drive, which heretofore had been toward Omsk, now is being centered against Turkestan, where the Bolsheviki would be able to secure cotton and other supplies, of which they would be deprived by the loss of the Ukraine.

Admiral Kolchak's Ural Cossacks and his Southern Army have been forced back to the Orenburg-Tashkent Railway. The Northern Siberian rearguards are retiring, and the Bolsheviki claim that they have crossed the Tobol River.

The latest information concerning the strength and the distribution of the Bolshevist army is as follows: On the north front 39,000, west front 167,000, south front 146,000, and east front 133,000. In addition, it is estimated that they have 727,000 men available in the interior.

The Armenians have taken the offensive southeast of Kamarla and are meeting with success. The belief was expressed today that the withdrawal of British troops from the Armenian region will not be likely to affect the fate of Armenia.

Ukrainian authorities here announce that an agreement has been reached between the Ukraine and Rumania under which the Ukrainians will be allowed to transport arms, munitions, and other supplies through Rumania.

It is announced also that the Ukrainian and Rumanian Governments have pledged themselves not to take up arms against each other, and that Rumania has agreed to be the interpreter of the Ukraine's claims before the Peace Conference.

The Ukrainians here say this is the first important step toward the recognition of the independence of the Ukraine and affording the country an opportunity for considerably developing the struggle against the Bolsheviki.

A Bolshevist wireless communication received here this evening says:

"Fighting is proceeding along the Murman Railway. Our advance toward the River Suna continues.

"On the southwestern front under enemy pressure we abandoned Kazatin.

"On the front of General Denikin after fierce fighting our troops are retiring to new positions west of Zubna. We have abandoned Korenovoe. Fierce fighting continues near Uchbokny.

"On Admiral Kolchak's front we have occupied villages on the right bank of the Ural south of Lubistchensk. We are advancing east of Orenburg."

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Announcement that the evacuation of Lithuania has begun is contained in a note sent today to the Entente powers by the German Government.

The Tageblatt's Tilsit, East Prussia, correspondent reports the transport of troops and provisions to Russia by night. This is considered here as confirming the assertion of Die Freiheit that there is co-operation between the German military party and the Russian counterrevolutionaries.

TOKIO, Aug. 17, (Associated Press.)—The All Russian Government at Omsk has transferred its gold reserve and archives eastward to Irkutsk, according to apparently reliable reports received here. Other information from Siberia indicates that the Omsk Government's position is growing weaker instead of stronger because of the advances of the Bolsheviki and the desertion of Siberian troops.

The Hochi Shiibun today published a dispatch from Peking that the Omsk Government had fallen, but added there was no confirmation.

It is believed here that the Japanese army, if it becomes necessary, will attempt to prevent an advance of the Bolsheviki east of Irkutsk.

EXPECT PETROGRAD'S FALL.

Washington Military Experts Say It Will Follow Kronstadt's Capture.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Great interest attaches in military circles here to the bombardment by the warships of the Fortress of Kronstadt, composing the main defense of Petrograd. With the fortress reduced, it was declared, Petrograd could be taken in ten days.

Strategists assert that with naval cooperation three simultaneous attacks could be launched against the former Russian capital, two by land, the third by water. Esthonian military forces are co-ordinating in a land advance against Petrograd with the Russian forces under General Judenitch, whom Admiral Kolchak has appointed commander in chief of all the troops operating against Petrograd.

It was recalled today that the Kerensky Government was overthrown only after the Bolsheviki had obtained control of Kronstadt. The Bolsheviki dispatched a cruiser up the river to Petrograd, and only after it had bombarded the palace did the Kerensky Government capitulate.

It is believed that after the removal of obstacles lying in the way of an advance of the British war vessels, the latter, simultaneously with the movement of the Esthonian and Russian troops in two columns, will proceed to Petrograd. The Russian and Esthonian forces have been supplied with sufficient equipment to warrant the land attack, and the only question here is when the British naval units will clear the water path to Petrograd.

BRITAIN MAY LEASE ISLANDS.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 21.—According to the National Tidende England is seeking a railway concession through Esthonia to reach the Russian market.

Negotiations are proceeding, the paper adds, with a view to leasing the islands of Dagoe and Oesel, in the Baltic Sea, to England for the construction of a commercial port.

WOULD CURB RAILROAD MEN

Illinois Manufacturers Want Law to Forbid Strikes and Lockouts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Illinois Manufacturers' Association today asked the House Interstate Commerce Committee for a law that would forbid either strikes or lockouts on railroads. Under this law employes on taking jobs with the railroads would be forced to waive the right to strike.

Charles Piez, late of the Shipping Board, who appeared for the manufacturers, said that the association indorsed the principles of the Esch-Pomerene bill with certain exceptions.

"The Illinois Manufacturers' Association," said Mr. Piez, "is strongly on record against Government ownership and operation of common carriers and recommends the return of the railroads to private control and management as soon as adequate legislation can be enacted which will be just and fair alike to the public, the employes, and the owners."

Regarding the prevention of strikes or lockouts, Mr. Piez said: "In order to carry out our view that the rights of the public are paramount, and therefore interruptions of transportation by strikes or lockouts must not be permitted, we recommend an addition to the act which will empower and instruct the Interstate Commerce Commission to appoint and provide the necessary organization and funds for an arbitration board consisting of six persons, two to represent the public, two to represent railroad managements, and two to represent railroad employes. This board shall, when appealed to by either side of a controversy, or upon failure of the carriers and their employes to agree, investigate and make a finding which shall be final and conclusive to both parties, subject only to final appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"As a part of the machinery thus created the employes of common carriers upon taking service with common carriers shall, as a part of the contract of hiring, accept the provisions of the act and subject themselves to the findings of this body, and waive their right to strike. The right of any individual employe to resign permanently from his employment shall not be denied."

Mr. Piez said that water traffic should be left under control of the Shipping Board.

Ex-Magistrate Testifies for Accused Navy Ensign.

Ex-Magistrate William Blau, of Manhattan, testified yesterday at a court-martial at the Brooklyn Navy Yard as a character witness for Harry Erlanger, of 790 Riverside Drive, accused of conspiring with Lieutenant B. J. Ellert to obtain promotion from chief yeoman in the Navy to ensign, a position he later obtained. The ex-Magistrate said he had known Erlanger twelve years and could not speak too highly of him.

Lieutenant Ellert, who is awaiting action by the Navy Department on his plea of guilty to six of fifty-two counts charging him with receiving "presents from soft-berth seekers," was further questioned by Judge Advocate Muir. The Lieutenant said he did not recall writing or considering a letter recommending Erlanger's promotion. He said he could recall no conversation about the letter with Commander Grady.

"I made no effort to further Erlanger's promotion, and he never suggested promotion to me," he said; "Erlanger was a personal friend, and when he finally insisted on my accepting $300, which I had previously refused, and told me that it was a present for a fur coat for Mrs. Ellert, I accepted as a consideration of our personal friendship, offered at the time of the holiday season."

Erlanger testified that the question of promotion was never raised by Ellert or himself. He said he had told Ellert that Commander Grady had promised to make an effort to obtain his promotion to Administrative Ensign.

BLACKJACKED IN HIS HOME.

Sinton Steele, 60 years old, of 120 West Forty-seventh Street, reported at the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station last night that he had been assaulted and robbed by two men who entered his apartment in the afternoon. He said the men took away a handbag containing clothing.

Steele had a cut in his head dressed at the Roosevelt Hospital. At the time of the attack his wife was out shopping. When he heard a knock at the door he opened it, thinking she had returned. Steele told the police one of the men struck him on the head with a blackjack.

Window Cleaners Enjoined.

Supreme Court Justice Lydon granted an injunction yesterday to the Window Cleaners' Protective Association of 61 Bible House restraining the striking window cleaners from improper picketing. The employers contend that the strike is in violation of a contract which did not expire until Nov. 21.

Serbia Asks Why Greece, Which Did Little, Should Get So Much.

INDIFFERENT AS TO THRACE

By CHARLES H. SELDEN.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Considering the Balkans as a whole, according to the old, before-the-war fashion, is not much more reassuring at present than considering each State separately. The old jealousies and bitterness exist and no one State seems to have a neighborly, friendly interest in the outcome of the troubles of any other.

For example, Serbia is quite indifferent as to whether Greece gets West Thrace or Bulgaria keeps it. Rumania is equally indifferent. Serbia has accepted without further protest the decision of the Peace Conference as to how the Banat of Temesvar, taken from Hungary, shall be divided between Serbia and Rumania, but she thinks the decision unfair to her and feels resentment toward Rumania on that score. On the other hand, Rumania is not only dissatisfied with the Banat award, but has not ceased protesting. She wants more.

Serbia was a party to the agreement by which Thrace was ceded to Bulgaria in 1913 to preserve peace in the Balkans, and despite the Bulgarian invasion of Serbia during the big war Serbia would not lift a finger to help Greece now or help Bulgaria for that matter.

But the Serbians ask why Greece, which came into the war very late and did little, should now expect to get large regions and most fertile territory in the Balkan Peninsula, while Serbia, in the war from the beginning, asks nothing of enemy Bulgaria except the rectification of the frontier. But Bulgaria's neighbors do not share the fear of the American Peace Delegation that taking away Thrace from Bulgaria would lead to another Balkan war in the near future.

"We need not fear that Bulgaria will start a war no matter what is done to her," said the delegate of one Balkan State to me today. "Bulgaria has finally learned something. She expected to win the Balkan war as a matter of course, but lost. She joined Germany in the big war, sure of Teutonic success, and lost again. Furthermore peace in the Balkans is assured against any trouble Bulgaria might try to make by the combined influence of Rumania, Serbia, and Greece. Those three countries are far from cordial, but can be depended upon severally and jointly not to do anything which will bring the League of Nations down on them under provisions of Article 10. Serbia feels she has been cheated by Rumania, which came late into the struggle and surrendered early, and that she has been neglected and abandoned when in distress by Greece who was pledged to help her. But despite these elements of bitterness which less than a decade ago would have been causes of a Balkan war, there is little danger they will bring such a result now."

As to the Hungarian situation the Balkan States are not directly involved, and are enjoying the spectacle. Rumania is being reprimanded by the Paris Council, but they do not care what Rumania does to Hungary. On the other hand, the fact that a Hapsburg Archduke is now in control of the Hungarian Government does not arouse so much pious indignation among the Balkan statesmen as in some other quarters in the peace conference. There is a tendency to forget that there are more Kings and monarchs still left on the Entente side than among the recent enemies.

"Most of the oratory and propaganda we have heard about Paris in the last year," remarked a delegate who happens to represent a friendly monarchy, "has been based on the assumption that there is going to be nothing left in the world but republics in a very short time. Some people forget that condemning Archduke Joseph merely because he is an Archduke may be embarrassing to some Entente monarchies in close proximity to Hungary. I doubt if President Wilson would say in private conversation with his friends and allies—George of England, Victor Emmanuel of Italy, or Albert of Belgium—that all Kings are bad merely because they are Kings, and must go. He would not say it even if he thought it.

"But in the general atmosphere of so-called reform there is no taking into account of things that are. Among the nations which fought Germany are at least seven monarchies. On the Teutonic side with Germany and Austria become republics there is only Bulgaria and Turkey left to offset England, Italy, Belgium, Greece, Japan, Serbia, Rumania, and several lesser monarchies, so far as the non-republican form of government is concerned.

"And there may be here and there a nation trying too soon to be a republic. I expect that, in the course of their development toward orderly government, both Poland and Czechoslovakia will be obliged in the near future to convert themselves into constitutional monarchies.

"So nobody need be surprised that Hungary should have an Archduke in power, and there is no danger in the fact that he is a Hapsburg. With Austria and Hungary cut up, and with Italy, Jugoslavia, and other States in possession of the pieces, nobody need fear the Hapsburgs. That family has become a phantom of the past."

Athens Reports Greeks and Turks Preparing to Fight Bulgars.

ATHENS, Aug. 19, (Associated Press.)—Greeks and Turks, who form the majority of the populations in the district of Dedeagatch, according to trustworthy information received here, are greatly aroused over reports that the American peace delegates in Paris are favorable to continuance of Bulgarian rule in the district.

U. S. TARS FIGHT GERMANS.

Riot in Which French Join Follows Quarrel at Baltic Port.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 21.—Collisions occurred between German and American sailors on Tuesday at Neufahrwasser and resulted in the wounding of several civilians and one German seaman, according to Danzig dispatches received here today. Neufahrwasser is a seaport four miles north of Danzig.

The disorders, it is said, grew out of a quarrel that arose in a dance hall Monday night. Americans involved in the disturbance, which was continued in the streets after the sailors left the dance hall, returned to their ship, the American destroyer Hale.

On Tuesday seamen on leave from the German cruiser Frankfort came to blows with American sailors, and, it was said, civilians also attacked the Americans.

The Americans, supported by seamen from the French destroyer Claymore, charged the crowds. Shots were said to have been fired from the Claymore, wounding four Germans slightly.

Frontier guards who were called out dispersed the crowds and the Americans and the French returned to their ships.

HOLD UP TRAIN; GET $60,000

Bandits Loot Mail on L. & N. Train Near Columbia, Tenn.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 21.—Booty amounting to $60,000 in cash was reported taken from the mail pouches when four masked bandits early today held up Louisville & Nashville passenger train No. 7 ten miles south of Columbia, this State. An official estimate of the amount taken could not be obtained.

After rifling the mail sacks the bandits cut loose the locomotive, pulled the throttle wide open, and allowed the unmanned engine to run wild for twenty miles. It stalled near Wales station without having done any damage. The passengers were not molested by the bandits.

Three of the bandits commanded the engineer to run the engine, with the baggage, express, and mail cars attached, to a point half a mile beyond the scene of the holdup. Here a fourth bandit appeared from the bushes. The four then hurriedly ransacked the mail bags, sent the engine speeding off, and disappeared in the darkness.

Are American men the comrades of their wives?

A RECENT English visitor to this country, writing in the September number of Harper's Magazine, seems to doubt it. He says:

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

One of the best things for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than some expensive soaps or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

HOOVER SAYS OUST ARCHDUKE AT ONCE

URGES ACTION BY ALLIES

Thinks American Opposition to Magyar Government Would Prevent Return of Monarchy.

PARIS, Aug. 21, (Associated Press.)—Herbert Hoover, head of the International Relief Organization, who has just returned from a two weeks' trip through Central Europe, told American correspondents today that it was imperative that decisive diplomatic action should be taken immediately to displace Archduke Joseph as head of the Hungarian Government, and to give Hungary a chance to establish a popular government.

The new countries of Central Europe, Mr. Hoover said, were terrorized by the tolerance shown toward the setting up of the Hapsburg Government in Hungary.

Mr. Hoover, who left Vienna Monday night, appeared today before the Supreme Council, and made his comments on the Hungarian situation to American newspaper men after he left the council meeting.

Mr. Hoover asserted that Archduke Joseph's resignation could be forced within five days if the Supreme Council took a firm stand, but that bloodshed would result if such action were postponed for a month. The United States could prevent the restoration of the Hapsburgs by refusing to recognize or to deal with such a Government. It was beyond the endurance of any red-blooded American, he said, to see his Government tolerate the restoration of the Hapsburgs, as the United States entered the war to banish from the world that for which the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns stood.

The Rumanians, Mr. Hoover added, still were requisitioning Hungarian food. Only yesterday, he said, the Rumanians, under the eyes of American officers, seized eight truckloads of medical supplies and food destined for the children's hospitals of Budapest, paying no attention to the warnings of the Supreme Council.

Archduke Thanks Rumanians.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 20.—Archduke Joseph, the head of the Hungarian State, has sent a long telegram to King Ferdinand thanking Rumania "for having saved Hungary in crushing the Bolsheviski. Premier Friedrich has thanked General Holban of the Rumanian army for re-establishing order in Budapest.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 21.—Martial law has been proclaimed throughout Hungary, says a Budapest dispatch dated Wednesday.

VIENNA, Aug 19, (Associated Press.)—Dispatches from the Associated Press correspondent in Budapest say that the city is placarded with an anti-Jewish manifesto signed by "The Waking Hungarians." The manifesto calls upon all Christian Hungarians to oppose "the international destructive activity of the Jewish race in the interests of the peace of the world."

Vienna is full of reports of pogroms at Budapest, but these are not confirmed. They probably originated in the issuance of the manifesto.

WOULD CUT AUSTRIA'S LOAD

Morley Asks Revision of Terms, but Italians Prevent It.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—At the meeting of the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference on Tuesday, Viscount Morley, one of the British delegates, declared it to be in the interest of the Allies to alleviate the burden on Austria, and asked for a revision of the economic and financial clauses of the treaty with that country, according to the Echo de Paris.

Foreign Minister Tittoni of Italy protested, it is said, declaring that efforts making for the restoration of the former Austrian power would injure Italian interests. The newspaper says that no essential modification will be made in the treaty.

It is believed here that the treaty with Austria may be signed on Aug. 30.

REPUBLICANS PUT DUTY ON TUNGSTEN

DEMOCRATS OPPOSE BILL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The House today passed the first after-the-war tariff bill, in pursuance of the Republican program to protect American industry from German post-war competition, when the bill placing a high duty on tungsten was passed by a vote of 171 to 132.

Led by Claude Kitchin and Speaker Clark, the Democrats vehemently denounced the measure and declared in brief speeches, during unsuccessful attempts to amend the bill, that the tariff imposed was nine times as high as the tariff schedule on tungsten in the Payne-Aldrich bil. This bill, they said, brought about the defeat of the Republican party, and they predicted that the enactment of the present measure would discredit the party again.

Mr. Kitchin, seeking to force a reduction in the tariff rates, offered an amendment to substitute the rates for tungsten in the Payne-Aldrich law. This was lost by a vote of 138 to 180.

Ex-Speaker Clark, as Democratic leader, sounded the keynote for the opposition when he warned the Republicans that they had been driven out of power "more on account of the Payne-Aldrich bill than for any other operating cause." Mr. Kitchin and others stressed this point.

"The bill was ordered by Wall Street," asserted Mr. Clark.

"What evidence has the gentleman?" asked Representative Fordney, Republican, in charge of the bill.

"I have not anything but the regular evidence that they order the Republican tariff bills," retorted Mr. Clark amid applause from the Democratic side.

"What evidence have you of that?" insisted Mr. Fordney.

"I have been here twenty-five years," replied Mr. Clark, "and I have seen these fellows around these corridors even in these committees. And I have never seen anybody come here to represent the great body of the American people. It is always some fellow with an axe to grind."

Mr. Fordney said that the laboring men were asking for duties on articles produced in this country to protect them against the low German wages, and that the farmers also wanted high duties.

"Well, my opinion about this debate business is that there is too much said that says nothing," added Mr. Clark. "We have certain things that ought to be done in this Congress. We ought to do what we can to cut down the high cost of living."

"Oh, this is nothing but poppy-cock," said Representative Knutson of Minnesota.

"I'll tell you what kind of poppy-cock it is," said Mr. Clark. "It is the kind that is going to put all you people out of here. We ought to leave out speechmaking and do something to relieve the people. We ought to go after those things that are responsible for the high cost of living. Then there are the trusts and the profiteers. Every profiteer in America ought to be in the penitentiary. Let's quit these extraneous debates and get down to the work that we are sent here to do."

The House devoted hours to partisan debate with occasional rows. Representative Blanton of Texas almost came to blows with Representative Treadway of Massachusetts.

The bill as passed provides these new custom duties:

"First, crude tungsten ores and concentrates, $10 per unit of tungstic trioxide therein contained, a unit being herein defined as 1 percentum of a short ton of 2,000 pounds, namely, twenty pounds of tungstic trioxide.

"Second, metallic tungsten, tungsten powder, ferro tungsten (lump and pulverized,) ferro tungsten powder, commercial tungstic acid, calcium tunstate, sodium tungstate and all other salts of tungsten and other manufactured materials containing tungsten, including high-speed tungsten steel, all alloy steels containing tungsten, and all other compounds containing tungsten not specifically provided for in this section, $1 per pound of tungsten contained therein."

There is no tariff at present on tungsten.

CONFIRM PALMER BY ERROR.

Attorney General's Name Was Passed by Senate Without Reading.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Confirmation of A. Mitchell Palmer to be Attorney General was made yesterday by the Senate through mistake, it was discovered today, and the action may be reconsidered. While there has been opposition to Mr. Palmer, favorable action was unanimously reported by the Judiciary Committee, and the Senate had been expected to approve.

It was explained today that when the executive session of the Senate began yesterday a long list of nominations of postmasters was sent to the presiding officer's desk. A motion that they be approved without reading was adopted. By mistake the nomination of Mr. Palmer was included, but this was not discovered until today upon examination of the executive clerk's record. Meantime official announcement of the confirmation of Mr. Palmer had been made in the Congressional Record for today.

DANIELS OPENS DRY DOCK.

Officials at Naval Base Ceremonies in Honolulu.

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 21.—With Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, pressing the button that flooded the structure, the great Pearl Harbor drydock was dedicated by Secretary Daniels today.

Hawaii welcomed Secretary of the Navy Daniels and his party and the officers and men of the dreadnought New York, which arrived here today. The Hawaiians, attired in native costumes, greeted the Secretary and his party, which on landing passed between columns of warriors carrying spears.

Rear Admiral Albert M. D. McCormick underwent an operation for appendicitis at sea last Monday, it became known when the dreadnaught reached here. His condition is reported as dangerous.

Apprentice H. T. Smith of Chicago was crushed to death aboard the New York by the swinging of a 14-inch gun turret.

The United States naval drydock at the Pearl Harbor base is one of the largest in the world. It is 1,001 feet long and has an inside width of 138 feet and an inside depth of 32½ feet. It will accommodate any ship afloat, and represents an investment of more than $5,000,000.

The dock and naval base have a setting in what is considered one of the finest natural and most beautiful harbors in the world. Entirely landlocked in a rim of hills, Pearl Harbor could anchor all the naval fleets of the world out of view from the open sea. Pearl Harbor has an area of approximately ten square miles. Its depth is approximately 60 feet. Entrance to the harbor has been made safe for all time by dredging and other work done by the United States.

The dry dock had been under construction since 1910. Its opening had been planned to take place long before today, but various delays and the war caused postponement. The most serious delay occurred when the entire bottom of the dry dock upheaved suddenly, ruining all work that had been done and delaying construction for a year.

ACCUSES MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Broker Tells Magistrate She Prevents Him from Seeing Wife.

A mother-in-law, who he said accompanied him on his honeymoon and wouldn't even let him hold his wife's hand on the train, was blamed by Frank R. Kent, a young automobile broker, in the West Side Court yesterday, for all his marital difficulties. Kent was haled to court on a summons obtained by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Wiley of 2,612 Broadway, who said that he had threatened her.

"Why, your Honor," he told Magistrate William A. Sweetser, "this woman said she wanted to go along on our honeymoon after I married her daughter, Grace, seven weeks ago. I said no, but it didn't do any good. She went anyway. And then she wouldn't let me hold my wife's hand on the train.

"After we got back I tried to get an apartment, but Mrs. Wiley said she was going with her daughter. I told her she wasn't. Then she took her daughter with her, and now I can't even talk to my wife on the telephone."

Magistrate Sweetser decided that the matter was grave enough to warrant investigation by a probation officer, and assigned William Wier to the case. When he learned that Wier was a bachelor, however, he canceled the assignment.

"This is a case for a married man," the Magistrate said. "I'll assign some one else."

Stolen merchandise valued at more than $15,000 was recovered by the police yesterday for the American Railway Express Company, and two alleged members of a gang who kidnapped the express driver and escaped with his truck and its contexts on Wednesday night were arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday on charges of robbery. The prisoners said they were Harry J. McEwen, 26 years old, of 1,669 Third Avenue, an employe of the express company, and John Parker, blacksmith, 31 years old, of 592 West Forty-eighth Street. Magistrate Mancuso held each in $25,000 bail for further examination.

Maurice Griffin, of 31 Commerce Street, driver of the express wagon, who was attacked by four or five men when he resisted their move to loot the truck, is in Bellevue Hospital with a fractured skull and other injuries. He was beaten and dragged from his seat, he told the police, and was finally made senseless by chloroform, some of which got into his throat in the struggle and burned and poisoned him. Two of the robbers placed him in an automobile that had followed the truck from the Twenty-sixth Street branch. At Forty-seventh Street and Tenth Avenue Griffin was thrown from the speeding car when he revived from the effects of the drug and again fought the thieves.

Soon after the attack and robbery McEwen, one of the prisoners arraigned, who was a helper on Griffin's truck, reported the robbery at the Beach Street station. Detective Lahey kept him under surveillance and when Griffin denied McEwen's assertion that he had also been seized by the robbers, he was questioned. Lahey said McEwen finally confessed to complicity in the express robbery plot.

Following the examination of McEwen at the station the police went to 512 West Forty-eighth Street, a stable, where they found the entire ninety stolen express packages. Parker was arrested there.

CROPS ROTTING IN FIELDS.

New Jersey Farmers Face Heavy Loss Because of Rains.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 21.—Due to recent heavy rains, the outlook for crops and garden produce in New Jersey is not promising. Crops are rotting in the fields, and only the intervention of fair weather can prevent a great loss to farmers, with a resultant standard of high prices. The above statements are contained in the weekly crop and weather report issued today by the Department of Agriculture.

"A severe storm swept over the State recently, causing great havoc in southern and central districts among the crops, but the damage was less severe in northern counties," states the report. "Farming operations such as potato digging and plowing for Fall grains have been greatly hindered, while potatoes, peaches, and tomatoes show considerable rot, due to the wet weather. Truck is poor to fair, and the crop of lima beans and peppers is very discouraging. Corn is mostly good to excellent, but somewhat late, and may be caught by early frost in northern counties. Oats not yet under cover have undergone some damage."

SAYS CITY PAY IS TOO LOW.

Architect Writes He Can't Afford to Work for $75 a Month.

One reason why the Public Service Commission has difficulty in getting competent help of a technical character was given in a letter received yesterday by the Transit Construction Commissioner, John H. Delaney. The writer, an architect engineer, said:

"I have your letter of July 30 asking me to take a position with you at $75.08 a month. If you will notice, the window cleaners demand $36 a week, and refuse to arbitrate, and a man gets nearly $1 an hour for pulling a bell or closing a door on the subway or street car.

"Because of the above-mentioned facts I will be unable to accept your kind offer, for if I had to earn that amount of money a month I would rather go out and do hard labor than engineering, which requires many years of education."

FROM CONSTIPATION —TO WHAT?

Alfred W. McCann, Famous Food Authority, Warns of Dangers of Neglect

"The simplest of natural foods contain all the mysterious physiologically active principles required to maintain normal health," declares Alfred W. McCann in his surprisingly gripping and dramatic book, "The Science of Eating."

"Still," he says, "we find scientists blindly rummaging through fields of experimental darkness seeking complicated and highsounding explanations for diseases that go on defying all the cross-examinations, all the probings, all the analyses and all the theories of man. Why," he continues, "do we neglect the extraordinary medicinal properties of wheat bran in our vain efforts to obtain relief from constipation, a disease that if not corrected leads to many dreadful evils?"

Mr. McCann recently stated:

"There is no further need to neglect bran. W. K. Kellogg, the famous food manufacturer of Battle Creek, has perfected a product that contains all the vitalizing, tissue-sweetening and laxative properties of the outer layers of the little wheat berry.

"Kellogg's Krumbled Cooked Bran is a new food, the importance of which in the regulation of intestinal activity promises to make it one of the most popular dietetic achievements of the time. Bran, more than any other food, protects the body against the poisonous substances formed in the intestinal tract as the result of sluggish elimination. Not realizing the importance of the salts of phosphorus, iron, potassium and many other indispensable mineral properties found in bran, the American people have allowed themselves to be deprived of this wholesome and healthful food adjunct."

Kellogg's Krumbled Cooked Bran, containing all the vitalizing elements elaborated by Mother Nature in the outer coating of the whole wheat berry, is now within reach of everybody. A few tablespoonfuls daily will be found surprisingly helpful in stimulating the internal secretions that protect the body from constipation and autointoxication.

Writer Goes to Committee When Rate Jumps from $1,500 to $2,600.

Cleveland Moffett was among those who appeared yesterday before the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering to complain against what they believed to be unjust increases in rent. Mr. Moffett has lived at 153 East Fifty-sixth Street for seven years, and when his rent was raised from $1,500 to $2,600 a year he tried to compromise, and failing he took his troubles to the Mayor's Committee.

The owner of the house is the Wellsbourne Realty Company of 32 Broadway, of which Henry E. Coe is the President and Mrs. Herbert Parsons one of the large stockholders. Mr. Moffett said he had offered C. W. Cushier, the agent, $1,800, which he considered a fair raise. The offer was refused. His reason for coming before the committee, he said, was to go on record against landlords who were unduly raising rents.

The meeting of the committee yesterday was presided over by Alderman William T. Collins, Chairman of the General Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen. The Government was represented by Deputy United States Attorney Candler Cobb and the city by Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter S. Kennedy.

Questioned by Mr. Kennedy, Agent Cushier said it was true that the raise had been demanded. He said at first that Mr. Moffett was not a desirable tenant, but when the latter produced a letter offering to lease the house to him for a term of years at the rent demanded it was admitted that money was the crux of the situation. Mr. Moffett produced a letter from a man owning a house similar to the one in which the writer lived in, which the raise demanded would give the landlord a return of only 6½ per cent. on his equity.

There will be another hearing at 3 o'clock today, and it is probable that an adjournment will then be taken until September, when Mrs. Parsons will be in the city. Mr. Moffett is to deposit one month's rent at the new rate —$216.67—with Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the committee, and this will be held until the case is decided.

Joseph Smolensky, owner of seven houses, 1,157 to 1,167 Jackson Avenue and 705 Hoe Street, the Bronx, appeared before Captain Charles A. Goldsmith of the committee yesterday. He was accused by his tenants of raising rent from $10 to $22 a month since May. Smolensky said his equity on the houses was $21,500 and that there was a $1,000,000 mortgage on the property. In his statement he said he was going to spend $22,730 in repairs, and insisted that this amount should be added to his equity, which suggestion Captain Goldsmith and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter S. Kennedy disputed. Smolensky refused to make any concession to his tenants.

Five cases in which there are alleged violations of the Soldiers and Sailors' act concerning rent were turned over to Deputy United States Attorney Cobb by Mr. Kennedy.

DR. MUCK BITTER AT SAILING

Former Orchestra Leader Says He Leaves Country Without Regret.

Dr. Karl Muck, former leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who was interned during part of the war at Fort Oglethorpe as an enemy alien, sailed yesterday on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII. for Copenhagen. Dr. Muck and his wife, who sailed with him, were accompanied by an agent of the Department of Justice, who remained at the pier until the ship had started down the bay. He said he had warned the Captain of the liner to make sure Dr. Muck did not leave the vessel within the three-mile limit.

At first Dr. Muck, who was an interested spectator on deck while the passengers were going on board, denied his identity. Later he admitted it when a fellow-passenger, calling him by name, began hugging and kissing him. He said he had no plans for the future. He added that he was leaving the United States with no regrets, and with a bitter feeling toward the newspapers, which, he said, had treated him unfairly.

Reiterating his denial that he had refused to play "The Star-Spangled Banner," Dr. Muck asserted the report had been instigated by rivals. He said he did not believe the orchestra would be reorganized, as twenty-nine of the German members had been interned.

"I am not a German, although they said I was," he said. "I considered myself an American."

Commanders Johann Mentz and Paul Saabye of the aviation section of the Danish Navy, who have been here three months studying American types of seaplanes, sailed on the ship, as did Otto Morgenstierne, Secretary of the Norwegian Department of Justice, who came here to study prison conditions. Mr. Morgenstierne said he was bitter against Warden Brophy of Sing Sing Prison because Mr. Brophy had refused to allow him to inspect the institution.

Among the 520 passengers on the Frederick VIII. were D. Minotto, Victor Lassen, American agent of the Scandinavian-American Line, and A. R. Nordvall, a writer.

Prosecutor Wins His Suit Against Rival Candidate.

Judge Peter Stillwell in Bayonne awarded to Prosecutor Pierre Garven of Hudson County, yesterday, a verdict of $200 in his suit against Charles V. Finch of Jersey City, member of the State Republican Committee. The two men are running against each other in the primaries next month for member of the State Committee. Finch was alleged by Garven to have given out a statement in which it was declared that Garven had procured $5,000 from the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey to aid in the campaign of Governor Walter E. Edge for United States Senator. The prosecutor brought suit for the amount awarded in the District Court of Bayonne in order that a decision in the case could be had before the primaries.

Aaron Mernicker, one of Garven's attorneys, to whom the Judge announced his decision, announced that he would take up the matter of the alleged libel with the Grand Jury.

C., Aug. 21.—Walter Elliott, a negro, who is alleged to have assaulted a farmer's wife, was shot to death last night by a mob, which then carried the body to the scene of the crime and swung it to a tree in a country churchyard. The mob took the negro from Sheriff Kearney while on his way to jail.

SEEK $10,000,000 ENDOWMENT FUND

Massachusetts Institute of Technology Begins National Campaign to Obtain This Sum.

ANNOUNCE $4,000,000 GIFT

A nation-wide drive for an endowment fund of $10,000,000 for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was announced yesterday by H. Coleman du Pont at his office, 120 Broadway. The drive is to continue until Jan. 1. Four million dollars has already been promised by "Mr. Smith," the unrevealed benefactor of the institute, on the condition that at least $4,000,000 in addition be obtained from other sources. The appeal will be made largely to leaders in the industrial field who realize the necessity for the application of technical education to industrial pursuits, but it is hoped that patriotic men and women who desire to see the United States excel in the technical field will contribute liberally.

The Endowment Fund Committee is headed by H. Coleman du Pont. The other members are Theodore N. Vail, Charles A. Stone, Otto H. Kahn, and Charles Hayden of New York; Everett Morse of Boston, Edmund Hayes of Buffalo, and Richard C. MacLaurin, President of the institute. Contributions will be received by Mr. Stone or Mr. du Pont at the offices of the committee, 120 Broadway.

The unnamed donor has already given $7,000,000 to the institute and the latest gift brings the amount of his benefactions up to $11,000,000. In announcing the drive for the fund Mr. du Pont, who is a graduate of the institute, class of '84, said: "As citizens of the United States we realize that our young men must have opportunity for training in industrial subjects if we are to be a commercial nation.

"The increased cost of commodities and the necessity for increasing the salaries of instructors make the drive for funds necessary at this time. The withdrawal of financial support by the State of Massachusetts, due to a clause in the new Constitution, must also be made up."

Dr. MacLaurin, who was present when the announcement was made, said that the only thing that will permit America to meet future crises will be increased production and efficiency. "The only way of holding America in her position of world importance," he said, "is to have the highest type of men in industry. Such men, of necessity, must be trained technically in all branches of science in order to meet the industrial needs of the country.

"The value of technically trained men in the war is shown by the fact," said Dr. MacLaurin, "that 75 per cent. of the institute's men who went to war became officers. In peace," he said "and especially in the present world crisis, their value was even greater and they were destined to aid in curing industrial unrest."

The statement issued by the committee was in part as follows:

"It is not often that one hears of an anonymous gift of $11,000,000. Yet the 'mysterious Mr. Smith,' the fairy godfather of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has given that sum to the institute and only one man, President MacLaurin, knows who he is.

"Mr. Smith gave $7,000,000 and now is offering an additional $4,000,000 if the alumni and friends of the institute will raise another $4,000,000. He is not a 'Tech' man, but he believes in the value and importance to the nation and to business of the sort of education that 'Tech' gives and he is willing to back it up to the extent of $11,000,000 of his money.

"The tuition fee has been raised from $250 to $300. It already shuts out men who should have the opportunity to enter its courses. It must not be raised further. Even $300 meets only about one-third the expense of each student. Eight million dollars should be added to the endowment fund in order to adequately pay the faculty and make it possible to accommodate the increasing number of students who are applying."

What soaking in warm water for several minutes does to your fingernails, shaving soap must do instantly to the beard

Rubbing in is unnecessary for the wiriest beard. It is a sign that the lather is wrong.

Rubbing in with the fingers often irritates the skin, yet it has been necessary in order to soften heavy beards. This is the reason shaving is almost torture to so many men.

Each hair is covered with a coating of oil which must first be dissolved by the lather of your shaving soap, before the keratin of the beard can be reached and softened.

Softens the beard instantly

The new Woodbury's Shaving Soap softens the beard thoroughly and instantly. The lather dissolves the oil film and the keratin quickly loses its toughness.

From the first moment that the brush is applied you will experience a pleasurable sensation of lather comfort that you have never before enjoyed.

Every druggist is ready to supply you with both the stick in the metal container at 35 cents and re-fills at 25 cents. The Andrew Jergens Company, New York, Cincinnati and Perth, Ontario.

WOMAN PLAYS SICK TO TRAP PHYSICIAN

Husband Objected to Her Interest in Stocks When She Lost Suit Against Brokers.

Mrs. Sarah L. Robertson of the Hotel Webster filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday for a divorce from Dr. Joseph A. Robertson, house physician of the Hotel Albemarle, in which she alleges that her detectives raided the apartments of the physician in the hotel at 3 A. M. on Aug. 9 last and got the evidence on which the suit is based. She names a nurse, whom she alleges she saw in the apartment.

The plaintiff has been living apart from Dr. Robertson since 1915, when she sued the brokerage firm of H. Content & Co. to recover $62,778 lost in stock transactions, on the ground that the brokers had agreed to guarantee her against loss. She lost the suit and was directed to pay the brokers $90,166 on their counter-claim. The testimony showed that Dr. Robertson objected to his wife's speculation.

Mrs. Robertson alleges that she sought evidence against her husband for a long period and finally engaged detectives to operate at the Albemarle. A man and woman detective registered at the hotel as man and wife and several others took rooms there. Early on the morning of the raid one of the men rushed to the hotel office crying for a physician and stating that his wife was dying. Dr. Robertson was notified and the detective volunteered to meet him in his apartment and take him to the sick woman. When he opened the door it is alleged that the detectives and Mrs. Robertson, who had been waiting in one of the rooms, rushed in with her attorney, John Conville.

The witnesses allege that Dr. Robertson was angry and attempted to eject all the intruders, and that a large dog in the room went to his assistance.

Mrs. Robertson was the widow of Charles C. Miller, a Pittsburgh rubber manufacturer, and asks permission to resume his name. She married Dr. Robertson at San Antonio, Tex., in 1911.

This month read—

Full steam ahead!

Theodore N. Vail predicts the greatest boom in business this country has ever known—and Vail is perhaps the best business prophet of any man in business. He backs up his prediction with facts, figures and commonsense reasoning. He thinks enough of his opinions to advise his own company to invest $125,000,000 in improvements and extensions. Every man in business owes it to himself to read what this great business man has to say in the American Magazine this month.

Watch sharply—the next time you go to the theatre

See if you can detect the clever tricks actors use to make you see the things they want you to see. Jane Cowl discloses a number of them to you. This business of entertaining and amusing folks is as important as any other business and requires as much real salesmanship as any of them. It is based upon the same human traits. You'll get some tips for your own business from Miss Cowl's interesting story—and you'll take a new interest in the next show you see.

Stop helping swindlers swindle!

Pinkerton, the famous detective, apparently has all the business he needs—for here he tells us some of the ways we can make it impossible for swindlers to operate. "You may think you know how to look after your money," Pinkerton says, "but most of you are giving a daily performance of carelessness that might be called, 'First aids to the Forger'." If we take all the tips that Pinkerton gives us, we can put the forger out of business—and that will be an awful drain on Pinkerton's trade!

Does your husband make as much money as you think?

That is a question wives ought to ask. In many families, because he is proud, Father keeps on shelling out faster than he should. He hates to admit that he can't afford anything. Theodore H. Price, who has seen the inside of many businesses, says this is the cause of lots of failures. He says that children are even more to blame than wives. If you are earning money, or spending it, or both, here are some good suggestions for you.

Useful—

because it makes you think-about yourself, your family, and your job.

UNYIELDING OBSTRUCTION.

The President never appeared to better advantage than in the long conference with the Foreign Relations Committee on the Treaty; the Republican obstructionists never appeared to worse advantage than in the attitude they have taken since the conference. The matter before the White House conference was of unequaled magnitude, of very great complexity. Under the questioning of the Senators the President showed complete mastery of the subject. He was at all points fortified with his knowledge, and at all points he met his inquisitors with clear and illuminating answers. He was seeking no triumph, only to give information, yet for him it was a day of extraordinary triumph. The fullness and the frankness of his answers, the character of his statements, would have removed doubt from every open mind. He not only made out a case for ratification, he demonstrated the need of immediate ratification.

The obstructionists show by their behavior that their minds were shut to all proofs and demonstration. The Foreign Relations Committee, which Mr. Taft declared was packed against the Treaty, remains packed, and under the blazing light of reason remains perfectly opaque. Retiring from the conference, the Republican Senators instantly began to reorganize their party forces against the President, for it is against Woodrow Wilson, not against the Treaty, that their assault is directed. They have wheedled or browbeaten the "mild reservationists" into line, and now declare that nothing will satisfy them but reservations that actually amend the text of the Treaty. They know the consequences, the country knows them. Amended, the Treaty must be resubmitted to the other signatory Powers for their acceptance or rejection of the Senate's changes. That opens the door to amendment by every nation that took part in the Paris Council. There would be a multitude of amendments, insomuch that the Treaty would be destroyed and the League with it. Both would be made unacceptable to the nations that came to agreement on June 28, the Peace Conference would have to reconvene or a new one be summoned, and the dreary process of drafting a treaty gone through with again, but this time in circumstances of immensely greater difficulty and with far less probability of a satisfactory conclusion.

We have little liking for Senator Pittman's reservations, since nothing of the kind is necessary. The President showed beyond cavil that the Treaty carries its reservations of all sovereign rights of this and other nations, that it is not open to the objections urged against it. But in all conscience, what can Republican Senators ask that is not plainly embodied in the preamble of Senator Pittman's resolution wherein is declared the Senate's consent to ratification "with and in consideration of the following understanding as to the present and future construction and interpretation to be given to the Treaty"? Every reasonable ground of doubt and hesitation is covered by the resolutions and they are presented as a test and guide for "the present and future construction and interpretation to be given to the Treaty."

Dr. Eliot, in the letter we publish on this page today, makes an urgent and convincing appeal for the ratification of peace "with or without reservations." He assumes "as granted that the proposed reservations are not amendments or conditions, but only explanations or interpretations." Amendments prolong the war, they prolong the period of uncertainty for business, of dangerous unrest among many classes of society, evidence of which is forthcoming every day in ways that add to the prevailing anxiety. The future of the world, the happiness of its people, are at stake, but the Republican obstructionists put the interest of their party above everything else. At the White House conference the President removed all grounds of apprehension; he justified his own conviction that the Treaty in its own text carries reservations for which Republican Senators have contended. The conclusion is irresistible that they are no longer concerned about the Treaty, they are apprehensive only about the chances of their party in the next Presidential election. They feel that they must defeat the President now or he may defeat them next year, and to accomplish that purpose they are willing to kill the Treaty. If the country wants the Treaty ratified, it ought to make its desire unmistakably known to the Senate.

RETAIL PROFITEERS.

It is refreshing to note Attorney General Palmer's resolution to pursue the multitude of small profiteers. There has been a fear that spectacular and perhaps fruitless prosecutions of a handful of great establishments would divert attention from the real grievance which the public sees and knows and resents every time it goes to the ordinary retail shop. Always when there has been a tremendous flourish of the trumpets of wrath against "monopolists" the smaller fry have kept on charging all their traffic could bear. "The Department of Justice," says Mr. Palmer, "has had more complaints against the retail gougers than any other class. We have found that thousands of corner stores are taking advantage of the situation to charge exorbitant prices, and this is what the people are protesting about. The small dealer is the man they come directly in contact with, and it is he, as much as any other dealer in commodities, that they are demanding action against."

Exactly. The small dealer comes nearest home to their business and bosom and pocketbook; and they want him made to see the error of his ways or cool his heels in jail. Mr. Palmer and the House Agricultural Committee, at his instance, have decided that retailers doing a business of less than $100,000 shall no longer be exempted from the anti-profiteering sections of the Food Control act. The small dealer offending against those provisions is to be subjected to a fine of $5,000 or two years in prison.

This is a salutary purpose; and even if the farmers are to be held as a sacred class incapable of profiteering, it will be a consolation to the public to see the profiteering small dealers brought to book. But under Section 4 of the Food Control act, the section relied on to improve their behavior, can anything effective be accomplished? That provides, among other things, that "to conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other person * * * to exact excessive prices for any necessaries" shall be an unlawful act, which the amendment of the Food act will punish as above. Now, the small dealer does not, in a majority of instances, conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other person to exact excessive prices for necessaries. He says in his heart that he will squeeze all he can out of his customers. A conspiracy, &c., is always hard to prove. In most cases of retail profiteering there is no proof, for there is no conspiracy. The exaction of excessive prices for any necessaries should be the offense made unlawful and punishable. The law must be as simple as that if it is to have any terror for offenders. The fear of the penalty would probably make rare cases of its exercise. Profiteering retailers wouldn't be apt to find any friends in the jury box.

WAR NOT NECESSARY.

Chairman Kahn of the House Military Affairs Committee has decided what the solution of the Mexican problem shall be, or ought to be. "I am very, very tired of fooling with Mexico," says Mr. Kahn impatiently. He "stands ready to give the Administration any legislative aid needed in securing the protection of American lives and property." Mr. Kahn urges armed intervention upon the President "if another bandit crosses into the United States and destroys lives or property, or if they shoot across the border and kill or wound American citizens." On second thought, Mr. Kahn leaves a loophole for the Mexican Government: "if it is unable to restrain its citizens in these matters." Intervention means invasion, he admits, and invasion means war, "but in my opinion the time has come when we should act decisively." He estimates that one hundred thousand men would be able to do "the job." Obviously, he includes pacification, but does not look beyond it.

The speculation is rational—whether it is timely may be doubted—that 100,000 regulars could make a successful campaign in Mexico, and occupy the capital, forts, and larger cities in the interior; but that would be only a beginning of the business. Mexico is a country of great distances, of rugged mountain chains, intricate canyons, and savage deserts, in which guerrilla warfare could be carried on interminably by its 15,000,000 people, if they did not lack for leaders. In the past they have always had leaders when they believed that their independence was menaced, and it cannot be denied that they have fought bravely. The cost of policing Mexico would be immense for an American army of occupation, and civil administration would swell the total to a sum that Chairman Kahn has probably not calculated. It is all very well to be complacent about the efficiency of the American Army as a fighting force; we all know what it can do, and regard the Mexicans in arms as no match for it; but the "job" would be much bigger than beating them in the field, and it would run on for years, with divers kinds of perplexities and embarrassments, involving, too, political consequences that might alienate countries in South America from the United States. For these reasons Chairman Kahn was somewhat rash and emotional in declaring for armed intervention as the proper course to be pursued with regard to Mexico, instanter as it were.

Armed intervention is an alternative that can wait a while. There are other means of bringing the Mexicans to their senses, and they should be tried. There is the punitive expedition for outrages committed upon Americans. If President Carranza cannot suppress brigandage on the border, if he cannot protect our people in the Tampico region, it can be done in thorough fashion by American soldiers and marines. A few such lessons, and there would be order on the Mexican side of the border and peace along the coast—at no great cost, too. The trade boycott and the blockade would be efficacious if the Carranza Government, which has no naval resources, continued to be obstructive and truculent when demands were made upon it for satisfaction. The Mexicans cannot feed and clothe themselves without exporting to other countries, chiefly the United States. A blockade of Mexican ports would bring the Carranza Government to its knees, or it would give place to one stronger and more reasonable. Chairman Kahn might ponder this alternative. There is general agreement that something should be done, and done quickly, to convince the Mexicans that they must not go on killing and plundering American citizens; but to make war upon Mexico when a more sensible and humane method could be found to teach her the lesson needed would not be the part of wisdom.

UNIONIZING THE STEEL TRADE.

The struggle over the entry of the Federation of Labor into the steel trade is older than the Steel Corporation. When the great combination was formed the agreement left the labor policy in the hands of the component corporations. They did not change their open-shop policy, inherited from the Homestead strike, but rather transferred it to the parent corporation. In the opinion of the Federation this is "a relic of the brutal past," although the workmen have prospered under it beyond their expectations, and above the standard of working conditions in other related industries. The "brutal past" deserved its ill repute, but has little likeness to present conditions. The trust was born in times of distress for labor and capital. Competition was so strong that wages and profits were at the lowest point, and it was necessary to improve the conditions of business for the sake of all concerned. That objective has been reached. There has been competition, the attempt to prove bad trade conduct having failed, although pressed with all the resources of the Government. Now comes the renewal of an old attack from another angle. The Federation serves notice that > the autocracy of the steel industry must remove itself from the face of the earth, or be removed by the sweeping tide of progress that is today leading the people everywhere to better and higher concepts of life. No such industrial autocracy can continue to exist and function in this age of the world's development. As political autocracy has gone, so must industrial autocracy go. The roseate path of despots ended in the consuming fire of war.

This language should have better support in facts. On the record these despots have cut dividends and advanced wages to the maximum known. Not even the four railway Brotherhoods, with the Treasury to support their demands, have been able to get as good pay as the Steel Corporation has given without pressure. It is true that the Brotherhoods asked more than the Federation is now asking, but they gained rebuke rather than advantage. The comparison is between the Plumb Plan that the railways should be run at the risk of the country on a plan of profit-sharing with the Brotherhoods and the actual profit-sharing plan of the trust, at its own cost and risk, and for the advantage of the workers who wish to avail themselves of it, without other compulsion than their own estimate of the advantage to them. Both the railway and steel workers have improved their working conditions. Both were bad, and it may be that those of the railway worker are now rather better than conditions in the steel trade, but the higher pay has so far satisfied the steel workers that no complaint has reached the public.

The present demand had its origin at the Federation convention in June, when the heads of twenty-four unions pledged themselves to go to jail, if necessary, in order to unionize the steel plants, where the unions had slight membership, if any, then. Mr. Gompers told them that it was not necessary to go to jail to emancipate the steel workers. A committee was appointed to carry on the campaign, and a month ago it addressed a letter to Mr. Gary asking for a consultation. The letter recited that there are disturbing elements in the industrial world and a great spirit of unrest in the country, and there is no telling when the storm clouds will break. All good citizens should use their best efforts to stem the tide. A conference between him and them as the representatives of "many thousands" of his employés would promote harmony. In far fewer words Mr. Gary replied that those whom he represented were doing their duty in their own way in the direction indicated by the unions, and that, "as you know, we do not confer, negotiate with, or combat labor unions as such. We stand for the open shop, which permits a man to engage in the different lines of employment, whether he belongs to a labor union or not. We think this attitude secures the best results to the employés generally and to the employers."

The first demand on the list is for the right of collective bargaining. That would seem to mean of bargaining with them, since there follows a demand for "abolition of company unions," which means collective bargaining between workers and employers rather than with outsiders. The situation resembles that in our local traction strikes. Receiver Garrison was embarrassed when it was disclosed that the Amalgamated membership represented the majority of his employés. On the other hand, Judge Mayer's rebuke of unions intruding into labor bargains uninvited is equally applicable to the Amalgamated and the Federation in this instance. With wages 140 per cent. or more above the pre-war basis, and with prices recovering from a considerable decline of around 20 per cent., the outlook would seem promising if the workers would let well alone.

INEXCUSABLE DELAY.

Among the cogent and irrefutable reasons recited by the American Rights League for the immediate ratification of the Treaty of Peace, with no reservations that would force the reopening of the questions settled at the Peace Conference, this in itself is more than sufficient:

> The need for immediate action is urgent and pressing. In great districts of the world there is at this time no trustworthy government. Millions of people are starving and in need of all that is required to make life decent and bearable. The reorganization of industry can take place only when the terms of peace are assured and the World's League begins to assume the control that has been planned for it. Every day's unnecessary delay in bringing about this world's peace and world's order constitutes a crime against civilization.
> To end uncertainty, to end disorder and anarchy abroad, to set the world at work and begin the restoration and reorganization of its trade and industries, the immediate ratification of the Peace Treaty is absolutely necessary. The delay at Washington delays peace and order in the world, delays the rebuilding of national and international industry and commerce. It is bad morals, bad politics, bad business.

THE K. OF C. IN THE WAR.

In their report accounting for the use of the sum of $17,000,000 received up to June 30, 1919, from the United War Work Fund of $170,500,000 the Knights of Columbus lay stress upon the fact that they expended more money for free creature comforts to sustain and help the soldiers and sailors of the armed forces than any other organization that participated in the United War Work Drive, the amount being $7,000,000. By creature comforts is meant all those articles and supplies that the men felt a longing for in the trenches, in rest intervals, and in camp and cantonment. Thus, among other things, the Knights of Columbus distributed 900,000,000 beef cubes, 618,000,000 cigarettes, 3,750,000 pipes, 546,851 pounds of pipe tobacco, and 3,000,000 pounds of candy.

The allotment from the United War Work Fund was $25,000,000, but the exact sum received by the Knights of Columbus was slightly in excess of $17,000,000, and of this there was on June 30 an unexpended balance of $2,112,151.46. As the monthly outgo is about $2,000,000, fresh requisitions are being made on the War Fund originally collected, the organization continuing without charge its work for the temporal and spiritual welfare of the men still in the nation's service.

In the time covered by the report $9,550,082 was spent for overseas work, and for activities at home among the men in training the expenditure was $5,468,060. The work in this country called for the construction of 461 buildings and the use of thirty-two tents; for building, equipment, and operation the output was $1,303,022. Personnel expenses, excluding the headquarters staff, cost $1,046,680 for 1,134 workers. Abroad the Knights maintained 125 huts and clubs. The number of workers sent overseas was 1,075, every State in the Union being represented. Sports, motion pictures, and divers other entertainments for the men in France and at sea cost $745,659, and motor transport service $170,244. Whatever foresight and ingenuity could suggest was done by the Knights of Columbus to alleviate the horrors of war and cheer the fighters in their darkest hours. The Army, and the Navy as well, owed not a little of their morale to the friendly beneficient, and patriotic labors of the Knights, which were constant and not infrequently attended with danger.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Daylight Saving for Cities.

Daylight saving is defeated, but not conquered. The national association, which is very ably presided over by Marcus M. Marks, meets today, and will begin a country-wide campaign among cities and towns to induce them to jog the clock next Summer as usual. Many cities will be easily persuaded. Several years before we entered the war, Youngstown, Ohio, prided itself on beating the country by one hour daily. Our own Board of Aldermen has already passed a resolution in favor of an open Summer, openly arrived at, from May 1 to Oct. 3, 1920. Mr. Marks states that 90 per cent. of the people of the country are in favor of more play and smaller gas bills—a statement which does not seem unreasonable.

If the farmers wish to continue on the old-time schedule, they will be well within their constitutional rights. Local option is perhaps the really practical and fair solution of the question. The most serious difficulty will be in the matter of train schedules—or perhaps only in the matter of time-tables. It would be no impossible hardship to print for each train an O. S. column and a N. S. column, as the sixteenth century distinguished old-style dates from the new, when the calendar was changed. A time-table thus printed would undoubtedly give pain to the farmer, who is likely to be far-sighted and forgetful of his specs. It may even give him more pain than the dew on the grass when he goes forth to milk the cows. Much thought and exhaustive researches have not as yet revealed any ground for his dogged opposition beyond a certain conservatism—to which he used to be subject, but which in his modern advance as a business man he is generally thought to have outgrown. Some day perhaps we shall know which revolts him more deeply, a double-barreled time-table or a two-faced clock.

It is not well to be confident of this. The real cause of our defeat is not the persistence of the farmer, but our own negligence. President Wilson was prompt and resolute in the exercise of his veto, and there has never been a time when the cities did not command a sufficient force in Congress to check the repeal. But when the crucial test came our representatives were not there. Of late there have been many cases in which a minority has imposed its will, most unjustly, upon a majority; but in none of them has it been more evident that the chief fault lay in the supineness of the majority. If we really wish to save money and gain time for exercise and self-development, we shall have to put up a good fight.

Bread, Butter, Beans, and Bolshevism.

Two correspondents labor very seriously with another correspondent, (possibly less serious,) who signed herself Mae Zalinsky, in order to dissuade her from her professed Bolshevism. Miss Zalinsky complained that for her luncheon of only "one pickle, a cup of coffee and cream, an orange, and a loganberry sundae" she had to pay 55 cents. Wouldn't that make any one turn Bolshevik?

Her mentors advise her that if she would lay in a wholesome meal of bread, butter, and bean soup her digestion and her opinions would both be improved and her luncheon check reduced. It is an old philosophy. "A man is what he eats," as the Germans say in words that contain a rhyming pun. If Miss Zalinsky's corporeal parts had subsisted upon bread, butter, and beans her intellectuals would doubtless have resisted all temptation to fall into the alliteration. But the world would have missed her spirited complaint that she stood to lose her job as telephone girl "just when I have got a voice with a smile, hold the record in our office of only eighty-three wrong numbers in one day, and can say 'three' so it sounds like a tree-toad." Such a vocabulary and such powers of characterization would tempt many a novelist to a diet of pickles and sundaes.

Your true Bolshevik subsists upon different fare. Before the war the railroad brotherhoods were sound unionists, demanding high pay, to be sure, but pay not markedly disproportioned to the service they rendered. During the war they exacted increases that outran even the mounting prices of food and clothing. Now, though they receive pay approaching $5,000 a year—more than many a world-famous professor, many a Governor of a State—they demand a system of railway control which is essentially sovietism. They talk of "a continual defeat in the economic struggle," and propose to make themselves our masters. Such demands are nourished only upon roast beef and roast turkey.

Movies and the Childish Imagination.

A plea for the moving picture as pap for the infant mind comes from the graphic pen of Mr. Rupert Hughes. "From time immemorial children have been threatened with ogres and witches that eat children alive or change them to toads. Jack the Giant Killer, Jack and the Beanstalk, and other nursery pets describe cannibalistic orgies, the mastication of raw children, or the thrusting of them into ovens to make gingerbread." The moving picture, Mr. Hughes says, offers no such horrors. It is our plain duty, as he sees it, to banish the fairy tale and send the tots forth into the comparatively humane atmosphere of Broadway.

Somehow the mind balks at the suggestion. Is it not possible that the same incident may have different values when treated pictorially, realistically, and when the appeal is to the romantic imagination? Boys have often been prompted to wild conduct by the movies, but if any cases of juvenile crime have been traced to Jack the Giant Killer the fact has eluded public notice. The world of high imagination, whether in the fairy tale or in the bloodiest tragedy of Euripides or Shakespeare, has reactions all its own. Our primal passions are stirred, our sympathies quickened, our sense of the moral law vivified and strengthened. It is only the realistic portrayal of violence that makes our own hands reach out for blood.

When the witch in "Hänsel and Gretel" is thrust into her own oven, children cry out with delight—but also with innocent laughter. The moral law has been vindicated, poetic justice has had full sway; but they know that Mme. Homer is Mme. Homer still, not gingerbread, and will emerge unscorched to delight them again and again.

The Ritual of the Forest Spark.

Forest fires threaten in the Adirondacks, which all Summer have had little of the rain which we could so easily have spared. The Commissioner of Conservation, George D. Pratt, feels obliged to predict extreme measures. Already destructive conflagrations have been averted only by the vigilance of the mounted State Police. If the carelessness of motor tourists and sportsmen continues, Commissioner Pratt will ask Governor Smith to close the State preserves.

Among true sportsmen, it is a matter of almost religious ritual to put out every fire, cigarette or casting from a pipe to the very last spark. He knows the danger well. The mat of pine needles is often deep, and, though the surface is wet, there is often a dry substratum in which, if the least spark touches it, an invisible fire kindles and often spreads unseen until eventually it destroys miles of the most valuable timber. Where a campfire, even a small one, has dried out the surface, the danger is tenfold. The tourist or sportsman who omits the ritual of fire is guilty of a negligence which, in effect, is criminal.

A FARMER'S APOLOGIA.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

John W. Wood, in your Saturday issue, berates the farmer for profiteering. He particularly mentions blackberries and maple sugar and says he now pays 30 cents a quart for the former and 26 cents a pound for the latter.

Being a city dweller and also owning a farm in upper New York, perhaps I am in a position to explain why the farmer is obliged to increase the selling price of his products, as most every other producer has done. In the first place, tons of blackberries were dried up by the sun, eaten by the birds, and gone to seed on the bushes this year because it was impossible to obtain people to pick them when ripe. It is not every farmer who has a family of children available for berry picking, and with hired farm help almost impossible to secure at $4 to $5 a day for the regular farm work, who is to do this task of gathering in the berries? And even with fruit on the vines thickly clustered and within easy reach I defy Mr. Wood to pick more than a quart of berries in a half hour, to say nothing of the loss of time searching for new vines, going to and from the berry patch, &c. A fast picker can do no better than twenty quarts a day under ideal conditions. Pay for the labor, cost of baskets more than tripled in price, and how much profit is left, even at the high cost of 30 cents a quart? The farmer puts up berries enough for his own Winter use and lets it go at that.

The cost of maple sugar is affected by the extremely high cost of pails to catch the sap, spiles, and supplies such as cans, &c. The element of labor must also be considered; besides, last year there was little maple sap produced owing to the mild Winter. I have about 150 trees and did not get a gallon of sap from them. As it takes a barrel of sap to make a gallon of maple syrup, one can understand why maple products were high last year. I advise Mr. Wood to look up prices on farming utensils, machinery, and supplies. I doubt if he would ever consider farming as a money-making proposition if he realized how little the farmer gets for his sixteen hours of drudgery every day.

Jury Trial for Labor Disputes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In all disputes between employer and employe, such as the transit trouble in New York City, a third party is usually called in to settle or arbitrate the issue. Inasmuch as the most vitally interested third party in all labor disputes is the public, it does not seem amiss to have the public settle it.

The best possible way to do this, as it appears to the writer, is by jury trial. The jury could be picked from the great salaried class, such as teachers, salesmen, clerks, &c. The verdict could be for a period of years. There could be certain safeguards to prevent a biased verdict, and also certain penalties for any deflection from it.

The employes as a body or union could sue for increased wages or less hours. The employer could also sue for a lesser wage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your admirable editorial on the German Constitution you seem at a loss to find an equivalent for Reich—the monosyllabic residue of the quondam Kaiserreich—which is the Empire. The Republican Reich is (or should be) the commonwealth, if an Anglo-Saxon idea can be grafted upon the Borusso-Saxon mind.

WOOLWORTH TOWER.

Dull voids of sky, around, above, beyond—
Unnaturally dull; and down, straight down,
Nine hundred dizzy feet, the Demon City!
Cramped, ugly, Godless, wrangling—all of that;
But vibrant with a single mighty note,
INDUSTRY. Like a vapor, low and dank,
It hangs about the towers and factories,
Reaching its long, uneasy tentacles
Up fetid lanes and stifling passages,
Groping into dim lofts and dismal attics,
Crawling down filthy basements and sub-cellars,
Coiling its sinuous arms up elevator shafts,
In windows, past doors, and through smallest cracks—
Loathing the very thought of emptiness.

Dull voids of sky, around, above—then dark!—

Over in Brooklyn, many chimneys hurl
Hot flame against the stars. There Harlem lies,
A mist of red. There Flatbush sleeps and dreams.
Up the East River a slow craft comes steaming,
Full of the languor of old majesty;
And to and fro, across her sluggard path,
Ply small boats—schooners, ferries, barges, tugs.

The scene completes itself. New Jersey looms
Faint in the distance, a long line of hills,
Where quiet night gives rest to tired men.

I turn to go—and suddenly a hand
Invisible gropes out and clutches me,
And I am one with all the vast unrest.

By CHARLES W. ELIOT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On July 1, 1919, I printed in The New York Times a statement about the Covenant and Treaty, over which the editor, not I, placed the following heading: "It Confers Great Benefits on the World and Provides for Its Own Perfecting." I said in the first paragraph of this paper the Treaty "is by far the most promising agreement among the freer and more progressive nations that has ever been worked out." The paper then enumerated several of the manifold and extraordinary merits of the document. For my present purpose I summarize these merits as follows:

It rights great wrongs perpetrated by autocratic European Governments in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. It sets on foot several new republics, and makes free and safe populations that have endured for generations cruel oppression from alien autocratic Governments. It proposes to create and maintain the first international legislative body, the first executive council with adequate powers, and the first international court with a sanction behind its decrees. It suggests the reduction of competitive national armaments. It contains many provisions for the improvement of the League itself and of the various institutions it establishes. To carry into execution the new policies the Treaty embodies, the League of Nations which the Covenant establishes is indispensable. It is the League that must maintain order and peace throughout the world, while the new republics or constitutional monarchies set up in Europe and Asia are becoming stable and orderly, and are gaining experience in self-government. It is the League which is gradually to provide an intelligent and righteous way of giving aid to the backward peoples of the earth, and of protecting them from exploitation by any stronger power. It is the League which is to determine the admission of new members. Without the League the sacrifices of America made in the war will have been in vain. With it the treasure spent and the young lives sacrificed will have earned an immense gain for mankind. It is the League which is to find a way to suppress militarism; that is, to annihilate the military class of professional soldiers who have no occupation except war and preparation for war.

If the principles embodied in this Treaty can be fairly applied and the instrumentalities it creates wisely developed the welfare of humanity will be promoted to a degree unprecedented, and indeed quite beyond the scope of the human imagination. Its greatest beneficiaries will be the civilized nations which have through the war escaped from despotic rule. The free nations in Europe that have lived in constant fear of invasion by military despotisms will come next. Then the backward nations will reap lesser but enormous advantages. And finally America will be greatly benefited, because genuine democracy will be made secure and increasingly influential throughout the world.

In the American Senate certain objections are being urged against the ratification of this extraordinary Treaty and Covenant on grounds which look serious to some statesmen and Government officials, though not to the majority of them. These objections are based, first, on apprehension lest certain provisions in the Treaty or Covenant should limit the powers of Congress to decide whether America should or should not take part in conflicts which may hereafter arise between nations in other parts of the world. To some minds these apprehensions seem reasonable and only prudent; to others they seem small-minded, mean-spirited, and faint-hearted. Another objection is the fear lest, under some unspecified passage in the Treaty, the council of the proposed League might invalidate the American doctrine that foreign nations are not to establish on American soil colonies which remain subject to foreign Governments. Still another objection suggests that the council to be established under the Covenant might possibly interfere with the settlement of purely American questions, such as immigration and tariff. Still another looks to a modification of the clause which provides for withdrawal from the League of Nations on two years' notice by any member of the League. The Shantung objection seems to be no longer urged.

On comparing these objections with the immense improvements in human welfare which the Covenant and League propose to effect, it is manifest that the scope of the objections is minute compared with the immense possibilities of good for humanity contained in the Covenant and Treaty. If the allied and associated Governments that have made this Covenant and Treaty really desire to bring them into effect as promptly as possible—and there can be no doubt that they feel that desire very strongly—they will make no objection whatever to the adoption by the American Senate of all the reservations proposed. They will welcome the prompt ratification of the Treaty with or without the reservations, and they would be incredibly dull of apprehension if they did not.

The objectors to immediate ratification by the American Senate do not seem to have as much faith in the wisdom and morality of the American people in the future as the allied and associated powers have. The deeds of the United States since April, 1917, have completely convinced all the European powers that the American people can be relied on to interfere in an effective way in European contests, no matter on what scale the fighting may be or to which side victory inclines, if they think, as they did in 1917, that by interfering they can make this world, including America, a better place to live in. The European powers are perfectly satisfied that no American traditions of the eighteenth century, like that contained in the phrase "no entangling alliances," will prevent the American people from interfering in European or Asiatic conflicts, if they decide again as they did in 1917 that they can promote liberty and justice in the world by fighting in Europe, Asia, or Africa. There is not a Government in Europe that is not fully persuaded that America will interfere again with like energy if she has similar reasons for interference. And, indeed, she will. What Americans hope is that similar reasons for interference will not recur if the world learns to submit to the guidance of the proposed League of Nations, improved or unimproved.

Assuming as granted that the proposed reservations are not amendments or conditions, but only explanations or interpretations, I venture to suggest that it is the part of wisdom to ratify the Covenant and Treaty forthwith with or without the reservations proposed. What is desirable is that ratification should take place at Washington, with the consent of all political parties, and with an enthusiastic movement of national hope and expectation. Then, the measures already proposed for reconstruction, rehabilitation, and amelioration of the severe conditions of the armistice can be immediately prosecuted with diligence and a calm mind; and in a few years, or even months, the production and trade of the world can be brought back to something like normal conditions. Then the effectiveness of the American democracy in war and in peace, in politics, industry, and social construction will be seen and known of all men; and it will be quite unnecessary for American public men to keep shouting "America first" or "I am an American." Those praiseworthy sentiments will go without saying.

It will be of great advantage for the United States to get the Treaty and Covenant ratified at once, to count the superb undertaking of April, 1917, as achieved, and settle down to the study of the new political and industrial problems which confront the nation. It is nine months already since the armistice which settled the military issue. Cannot the whole people now unite in adopting the only means of winning the fruits of that victory? Surely no partisan contests, personal animosities, or differences of contemporary judgment concerning the wisdom and character of the statesmen who have framed the Treaty and Covenant ought to prevent or delay the entry of the American people upon the new crusade for public liberty, justice, and happiness.

THE EARTHLY PARADISE.

Joys of Peerless and Profiteerless Perkinsville, Vt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Were it not for The Times, received at 3 P. M. each day, we would not know that profiteering and strikes existed. Shoes and underwear are 50 per cent. cheaper than in New York City. I have saved my railroad fare to New York one way on a pair of shoes, slippers, and underwear. My brother saved his fare both ways on three pairs of shoes and underwear and will have a surplus.

Fresh beef is 10 cents a pound. Where is the Beef Trust? Eggs fresh from the hen are 55 cents. Wood, $20 a cord in New York, is rotting on the ground. We burn big logs in our six-foot fireplace each evening without a qualm. Hundreds of quarts of blackberries are spoiling. You eat and eat them and think you never want another. The next day they taste just as good.

Only the voice of the partridge and porcupine are heard in the land of peace and plenty. The wood thrushes with their sweet notes usher in the sunlight and moonlight.

The only fly in the ointment is that Henry Ford is erecting a plant two miles away, and an aviation field is to be near by.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, A. G. Randolph, voices the opinion of most of the world war veterans when he states that Congress should not be petitioned for a $300 bonus, but his remarks about the wonderful advantages of governmental insurance, when further amplified, really are not justified.

True, the premium rate on converted governmental insurance is about $3 per thousand cheaper per year than that of private companies, and, if the soldier or sailor earns a salary sufficient to carry $10,000 insurance, in case of his death his beneficiary would receive $57.50 per month. But how many returned enlisted men can afford to carry a $10,000 life insurance policy? If he takes out a $1,000 or $2,000 policy, in case of his death the beneficiary would receive $5.75 or $11.50, respectively, over a period of 240 months (twenty years.) What good is an income of $5.75 per month? On the other hand, under private insurance, his beneficiary could receive the full amount, and would at least be able to pay the funeral expenses.

THE THEATRE SURVIVES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What impresses the neutral observer most forcibly in the present theatrical controversy is the want among the managers of a sense of humor—a serious enough charge to bring against any one. Mr. Brady, following the lead of Messrs. Belasco and Cohan, solemnly announces that if the actors persist in their obstinacy he will cease to make productions! This, I presume, he wishes to be interpreted as a threat.

Does he really believe that the drama in this country will not survive his withdrawal from the managerial field, that the dramatists will cease writing plays, that all the theatres will close, and playgoing become a thing of the past? Surely, Mr. Brady knows that in the theatrical business, as in every other sphere of human activity, there is no necessary man. If the managers mentioned were to retire from the theatrical field—an eventuality which all lovers of the theatre would deplore—I venture to predict that the theatre as an institution would still go on and prosper.

Forty years ago, three important managers dominated our stage—Wallack, Daly, Palmer. In those days no one could imagine anything theatrically worth while that was not identified with their names. Yet how many among the present generation of theatregoers know they ever existed? They passed out and still the theatre continued and waxed more prosperous than ever before.

Lack of a sense of humor, above all lack of a sense of equity and justice, is responsible for most of our present-day troubles. A sense of justice would have shown the managers long ago that they could not expect an actor to play an unlimited number of performances on a limited salary. Since the strike started the managers have said they are willing to concede this point. If they had seen the justice of this and other claims before, the present strike might not have been precipitated.

When Can Regulars Enter Reserve?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is there any way possible of finding out what is to be done with the men in the army who have served their four years and over under the colors? There are quite a number of men here that have served their time, and they are anxious to know what is being done in order that they may know when it will be possible for them to get out on reserve. I have read in The New York Times about the demobilization of the army, but it does not say a thing in regard to the regular army reserves.

BARS AMALGAMATED FROM STRIKE MOVE

ASSAILS B. R. T. METHODS

Transit Committee's Report Also Criticises Mayor and Police on Recent Walkout.

The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, which won the strike against the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, but failed to rally enough employes of Manhattan traction lines at its meeting Wednesday to call a strike for the reinstatement of men discharged for joining the Association, received further checks yesterday.

Injunctions were served on the leaders directing them to refrain from attempting to induce employes of the Third Avenue lines to break their individual contracts with the company, which were signed by each employe who received the 25 per cent. increase. At the same time, Federal Judge Mayer approved the action of Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, in making individual contracts with the employes, embodying the increase. While employes are at liberty to quit under these contracts, it becomes a criminal conspiracy, it was said, for outsiders to combine to induce them to strike.

The injunctions obtained by the Third Avenue Railway Company were issued by Federal Judge Lydon. Judge Mayer also approved of the action of Receiver Hedges in discharging men who had joined the Amalgamated Association. Louis Fridiger, counsel for the Amalgamated, said that the officials of that organization would make a legal fight against the injunction.

The Local Transit Committee, of which ex-Controller Herman A. Metz is Chairman, made a report to the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce on the strike of the employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. The report criticises Mayor Hylan, the Police Department, Receiver Lindley M. Garrison, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and its striking employes.

The report scores the police and traces their attitude to that of the Mayor. The committee asserts that the police paid no attention to attacks on cars, and did not try to prevent the strikers from intimidating men who remained at work. The only real activity of the police, the report says, took place on Saturday, the last day of the strike. The report states that "the inactivity of the police in not dealing with the situation prior to Saturday night is inexcusable and indefensible."

The Mayor is blamed in this paragraph: "It is a fact that the police permitted disorder. For the Chief Magistrate of the city to take a position which could be interpreted by any chance as neutral to disorder places the responsibility for the disorder that followed."

The report characterizes the strikers as "un-American and profiteers for seeking a wage increase in excess of the rate of increase of the cost of living." Concerning Judge Mayer's attitude the report says: "It is the opinion of the Committee that the attempt of an officer of the court to deny the right of collective bargaining or of the right of the men of association with the American Federation of Labor was of itself a challenge from which the strike was natural and to be expected."

The Committee blames the financial condition of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to mismanagement and to bad financial practices in the past, as well as to increasing labor and material costs. The Interborough Rapid Transit Company is criticised along the same lines. The Committee argues that any increase in fare must be accompanied by the surrender on the part of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and the Interborough of opportunities to profit beyond a reasonable figure by such increases and by their assuming further obligations to give good service. The report further says:

"The high cost of operation due to war conditions is merely the proximate cause of these local bankruptcies. The rapid growth of population and the consequent decrease in the per capita operation costs under a 5-cent fare during the last twenty years has so far carried the heavy burdens incident to previous bad financiering and company mismanagement. It is generally believed that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company was formed upon the basis of heavy overcapitalization and leases at excessive rentals, and that the lines were operated to produce excessive dividends while the rolling stock and physical properties were allowed to depreciate. The history of the Brooklyn lines is open to the fair criticism that they were managed from the standpoint of exploitation and stock manipulation and not upon the basis of conservative financing and adequate service to the public.

"These past sins of company mismanagement have other and wider effects. With the resulting bad service and collisions between public and private interests, the public believes, and with large justification, that the companies have no real end in view but to exploit the public. The public at large, therefore, has no confidence in the statements of the companies, nor in their good faith. This situation can be met in but one way. The companies must adopt the policy of the most rigorous fair dealing with all cards on the table, face up, and in return for public help must surrender rights and powers antagonistic to the public interests."

District Attorney Swann was away from his office yesterday and during his absence Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley took up the investigation into charges of conspiracy between the Interborough officials and leaders in the recent strike. Three witnesses were questioned during the day by Mr. Talley, who refused to discuss the developments, except to say that they were not officials.

Mr. Talley also examined witnesses connected with the investigation into the raising of milk prices. The Extraordinary Grand Jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court will meet on Monday to inquire into both charges and to continue its inquiry into anarchistic activities.

Five Concerns Take Issue of Receiver's Certificates.

The Bankers Trust Company, the Central Union Trust Company, the Chase Securities Corporation, Hayden, Stone & Co., and J. & W. Seligman & Co. have purchased $18,000,000 Brooklyn Rapid Transit 6 per cent. two-year receiver's certificates. No syndicate is being formed and it is understood that the notes are being distributed privately.

The certificates are dated Aug. 1, 1919, and are due Aug. 1, 1921, and are part of an authorized issue of $20,000,000. They are in denominations of $1,000, and are redeemable on any interest date at par and accrued interest on thirty day's notice by the receiver. The proceeds from the sale of the notes to the extent of $13,000,000 or $15,000,000 will be used to complete subway contracts made between the company and the city, and proceeds from the sale of the balance of the issue will be put into powerhouse development necessary in connection with the company's new lines.

The certificates will be secured by the pledge of a like amount of joint certificates of the receiver of the New York Municipal Railway Corporation and the New York Consolidated Railroad Company, which are in turn secured by a first lien on all the property of the two companies and income from these properties. They are subject to underlying liens of the first mortgage of the Brooklyn Union Elevated Company and other liens.

TRACTION STRIKE DEFERRED.

Queens Men Will Wait to See Whether Fares Are Raised.

George A. Stanley, President of the New York and North Shore Traction Company, which operates lines in Queens and Nassau Counties, issued an appeal yesterday to the men not to go out on a threatened strike tomorrow. He requested them to wait until the first of September, at which time, he stated, "if we have not received an increase of fare we can shake hands and quit together."

The Public Service Commission has called a hearing for tomorrow night in Flushing, at which Deputy Public Service Commissioner Alfred M. Barrett will preside. The company will explain its crippled financial condition.

"We are tired of suffering a loss, and unless we receive financial relief by that time we will suspend operations at 1 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 1," said President Stanley yesterday.

The employes will defer action until after the meeting tomorrow night.

TELEPHONE SERVICE STOPS.

"Main" Exchange in Brooklyn Out of Order an Hour.

For more than an hour, from 10:30 o'clock until 11:35 last night, the telephones in the "Main" exchange of Brooklyn were out of order owing to an accident to the generator supplying the current. The generator is in the building at the corner of Willoughby and Lawrence Streets.

Until the damage could be repaired no outsider could get any number in the "Main" list nor could any one having a "Main" number call the outside. Citizens were unable to call either police or fire headquarters. The accident not only put the signal bells out of order in the homes, but it also made it impossible to get the central operator. Officials of the company who could be reached last night were unable to assign any cause for the accident.

DANCES RESTORED AT NEWPORT CASINO

Sunday Night Band Concerts for the Public Are Also to be Given Again.

MAY FLY TO DENVER HOME

Mrs. J. J. Brown Is Considering Trip—Mrs. Goelet Entertains for Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 21.—Dances and band concerts at the Casino, which on account of the war had been suspended, will again take place because of the constant requests of the members of the Summer colony to the Governors of the Casino. The first subscription dance since their suspension during the war will be given on Friday evening, Aug. 29. This will be by invitation throughout the Summer colony with a supper served on the veranda and music by Conrad's orchestra.

The same committee will also inaugurate the former Sunday night concerts for the public by holding one on Aug. 31, at which a small entrance fee will be charged. Community singing and a reel of travel pictures for the War Camp Community Service as well as other means of enjoyment are expected to bring the Casino back to its former popularity. The committee includes Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Barger Wallach, and Miss Ruth Twombly.

Miss Florence Loew, débutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Loew of New York and Newport, struck a canoe this afternoon after diving from a raft at Bailey's Beach, gashing her forehead over the right eye. The canoe was being paddled by Miss Emily Pierson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Pierson, Jr. Miss Loew was taken to the Newport Hospital, where she was treated by Drs. Stewart and Sullivan.

Mrs. James J. Brown of Denver and Newport, who recently returned from war work, having been summoned to Denver because of important litigation late in September, may make the trip by airship. Mrs. Brown has been in consultation with a representative of the Curtiss Aeroplane Company, who has taken the subject of cost and other details of such a trip. If satisfactory, Mrs. Brown will make the trip to Denver.

Tomorrow afternoon the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. A. Clark will be the centre of attraction on the lawn in a Greek theatre where the children of the Summer colony will present the play, with music, "The Magic Lesson," book written by Mrs. Clark, with Stuart Hendy of the public schools supplying the vocal numbers. The play is being given for the poor and their needs under direction of Dr. M. H. Sullivan.

With the links of the Newport Country Club in fine condition after the rainfall, the course was dotted with members and subscribers and guests this afternoon, giving the links a holiday appearance.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet entertained a dinner company tonight in honor of her son-in-law and daughter, the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe. This afternoon Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt gave a luncheon in their honor. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer will give a luncheon tomorrow afternoon and Mr. and Mrs. William Fahnestock will give a dinner tomorrow. ACTRESS MARRIES BROKER.

Gertrude Hamilton, Just Divorced by Army Officer, Weds D. Harvey.

Miss Gertrude Hamilton, an actress, who has been appearing in "Maytime," and David Harvey, a real estate broker of 16 West Seventy-ninth Street, this city, were married on Wednesday in the License Bureau at about its closing time by Clerk P. J. Scully, having just obtained the license. Miss Hamilton said her father was Thaddeus Leighton; that she was born in Long Island City, and that she made her home with her sister, Betty, at 370 Central Park West.

It is her second marriage, as in November of last year she was married to Lieutenant Bruce Field Higgenbotham, 36th Infantry, U. S. A., and was divorced from him ten days ago. He saw her in the Century Grove Midnight Review, and they were married inside of twenty-four hours. It was stated, however, by a friend of theirs that they had known each other two years before in Chicago. They went to Detroit, but in two weeks Mrs. Higgenbotham came back to this city and consulted a lawyer about suing for divorce, but Lieutenant Higgenbotham, who charged cruelty, obtained the decree.

Miss Hanson to Wed Captain Obear.

George Blumenthal Returns from Abroad, Where He Engaged Singers

George Blumenthal, who was associated with the late Oscar Hammerstein, was among the 682 passengers on the Holland-America liner Noordam which arrived yesterday. He returned from a trip abroad to engage German singers for a season of German opera at the Lexington Opera House. He said he did not go into Germany, but conferred with Dr. Carl Leipsiger of Berlin. He said he had engaged a number of prominent German artists.

Sir Alfred I. Davies, an English educator, who was accompanied by Lady Davies, also arrived on the Noordam. They will make a tour of the United States and Canada. Sir Alfred said he would deliver two lectures at Columbia University in October.

One of the steerage passengers on the Niagara of the French Line yesterday was Lieutenant Demeter Duncacesso, military courier of the Rumanian Government. He said that he left his country with several thousand francs, but the rate of exchange was so low in Paris that he did not have enough funds for a first-class passage. He said he decided at the last minute to come in the steerage rather than wait until he could get additional money from his Government.

The Touraine also docked yesterday, bringing 289 passengers to this port. Among the arrivals were Professor William W. Campbell of the Lick Observatory, Mount Hamilton, Cal., and Dr. Frank Schlessinger of the Allegheny Observatory, Pittsburgh. They were members of a committee of American scientists who were sent to Brussels to co-operate with European scientists in forming an international association for scientific research.

GOLIATH GIVEN UP AS LOST.

French Plane Flying to Dakar Not Heard From.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—The French airplane Goliath, which has not been seen since it left Mogador, Morocco, for Dakar last Saturday morning, generally was given up as lost in aviation circles today. The Farman Company, builders of the airplane, which carried eight passengers, was still without news of the machine.

The Goliath left an aerodrome near Versailles on Aug. 11 and arrived at Casablanca, a distance of 1,200 miles, the same day. It was commanded by Lieutenant Bossoutrot. After taking on machine guns, revolvers and rifles to be used against savage tribes if necessary, the Goliath left Casablanca on Aug. 14 for Dakar, a distance of 1,600 miles. It was forced to land at Mogador after crossing the Sahara. Since it left Mogador the only word received from it was a wireless message picked up at Dakar at 5:45 o'clock last Saturday morning. The message indicated that the airplane was within sixty miles of Dakar.

The attempt to fly from Paris to Dakar has caused misfortune to other French aviators. Lieutenant Jean Fontan four times started from Paris for Dakar. Three times he landed in France and the fourth time, on June 10, he was forced to land near Zaragossa, Spain, because of engine trouble.

On May 25 Lieutenant Roget, on the first leg of a projected transatlantic flight by way of Dakar to Brazil, landed at Kenitra, near Rabat, Morocco, a distance of 1,116 miles from Paris.

Lieutenant Lemaitre and Adjutant Guignard on June 19 arrived at Casablanca from Paris after an enforced stop near Madrid. After several days' delay the aviators arrived at Mogador. On June 26 their machine was smashed when they were forced to land at Port Etienne, Mauretania, 450 miles north of Dakar. Lieutenant Lemaitre had intended to attempt to fly across the Atlantic if he had reached Dakar.

SHOT FOR NOT BUYING MEAL

Because he refused to pay for a meal eaten by two men in a restaurant last night Louis Sawitz of 27 Messerole Street, Brooklyn, was shot and mortally wounded. He died soon after reaching Beth Israel Hospital. The shooting occurred in front of Stein's café at 117 Monroe Street, Manhattan, shortly before midnight.

Sawitz was seated outside the restaurant with a young woman named Kate Hyatt, according to the police version of the affair, when Dan Coffey of 80 Monroe Street and a companion named Martin, whose first name and residence are unknown to the authorities, came out of the place and walked up to him. They demanded that he pay for the meal they had just eaten. Sawitz refused and an argument followed. Suddenly, the police say, Coffey drew a pistol and shot him through the throat.

So quickly was the shooting accomplished that several men near by could not interfere. They caught Coffey, however, before he could escape and gave him a severe beating before the police arrived. Martin escaped. Coffey is at present confined in a ward at Gouverneur Hospital charged with homicide.

No action was taken by the Public Service Commission because Commission Nixon was ill and was ordered by his physician to go home and to remain there until he had fully recovered. It is likely that the commission will call a hearing on the matter and summon representatives of both sides to the witness chair. The only jurisdiction the commission has over the men is that of persuasion, but it can order the company to keep its line in operation, and to afford it all the protection possible if an attempt is made to operate with non-union employes.

SAVED BY PRESIDENT, SOLDIERS MAKE GOOD

ONE KILLED IN BATTLE

The Other Wounded Twice, but Restored to Health—President Is Pleased at Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Correspondence between President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker concerning the war records made by two young soldiers who were sentenced to death when found sleeping at their posts in France, and later were pardoned by the President, were made public today at the White House. Here is Secretary Baker's letter:

The Secretary of War,

My Dear Mr. President:

You will recall that early in 1918 four death sentences were presented to you from France—two, for disobedience of orders, you remitted to terms of imprisonment, and two young boys, Sebastian and Cook, who were convicted of sleeping on outpost duty, you fully pardoned.

It will interest you to know that upon restoration to duty both made good soldiers. Sebastian died in battle in the Aisne offensive in July, 1918. Cook was wounded in that battle and was restored to health in time to fight in the Meuse-Argonne battle, when he again fought gallantly and was the second time wounded. He has now been restored to health through medical attention and has been honorably discharged from the service. Respectfully yours, NEWTON BAKER.

The President's reply follows:

The White House,
Washington, Aug. 21, 1919.

My Dear Baker:

Thank you for your thoughtfulness in telling me about the records made by Sebastian and Cook, the two youngsters who were pardoned for sleeping on outpost duty. It is very delightful to know that they redeemed themselves so thoroughly, and it was very thoughtful of you to give me the pleasure of learning about it.

Cordially and faithfully yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

TO REVIEW 699 LICENSES.

Drys Obtain Order for Inquiry Into Jersey City Saloon Permits.

A writ of certiorari for the review of the granting of 699 liquor licenses by the Jersey City Commissioners on June 30 last was issued yesterday in Jersey City by Justice Charles C. Black of the Supreme Court on the application of Rowland Munro, counsel for the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League. The case covers all of the saloon licenses granted by the Commissioners for the year beginning July 1, except the license given to Hugh Meehan, which has been pronounced illegal by Justice Francis J. Swayze of the Supreme Court. Justice Swayze, at the request of John Milton, Corporation Counsel of Jersey City, deferred until Sept. 11 the signing of an order to make his decision in the Meehan case effective.

Justice Black refused to sign an order to make operative Justice Swayze's decision in the Meehan case. On Sept. 11, if not before, Mr. Milton will appeal to the Court of Errors and Appeals against the decision in the Meehan case.

Policeman Says Woman Abused Him.

A woman giving the name of Mrs. Fannie Rogaboy, 29 years old, of 446 Manhattan Avenue, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct last night by Policeman Frederick Prigge of the Old Slip Station, who asserted that she had abused him and called him a grafter, because he had ordered several peddlers and two blind mendicants to move on at Church and Cortlandt Streets during the height of the rush-hour. The policeman made the arrest, he said, because the woman asserted that Prigge would not have arrested them if they had given him 50 cents apiece. At the address given by the woman, it was said that Mrs. Rogaboy was the wife of a former member of the New York Symphony Orchestra, who is now in Seattle, Wash.

BILL POSTERS STRIKE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Prospects of an early settlement of the actors' strike faded still further today, when the Bill Posters' Union, the Baggage and Parcel Delivery Drivers' Union, and the Switchmen's Union joined in the sympathetic strike of musicians and stage hands. All major theatres in Chicago with one exception remained dark again tonight.

Union men say no theatrical bills will be posted, no cars of scenery switched, no baggage hauled to theatres, and that burlesque, vaudeville, and motion picture houses will be closed if orders from New York authorize a strike of musicians, stage hands, and film operators in these theatres.

Officials of the Stage Employes' Union said that the International Union of Moving Picture Operators had voted to support the actors. They said a message to this effect had been received from headquarters in New York.

GIANTS BEAT CARDINALS BUT FAIL TO GAIN ON FLYING REDS WHO DOWN BRAVES ONCE MORE

CARDINALS SUBDUED BY NEHF'S PITCHING

McGRAW'S MEN BAT WEAKLY

Are Still in a Slump as Regards Prowess with Cudgel, but Show More Zip in the Field.

The Giants' most costly piece of pitching bric-à-brac, Art Nehf, southpawed the Cardinals to defeat up at the Polo Grounds yesterday. The count was 5 to 2, but as the Reds beat Boston there was no change in the six-and-a-half-game barrier which separates New York from Cincinnati. McGraw's $40,000 flinger did a nice job yesterday after he had weathered a bad first inning. He gave St. Louis two hits in the first inning, and after that they got only one hit. That was a scratch infeld tap by Heathcote in the sixth, and he would never have turned it into a hit save for the fact that he can run faster than a jackrabbit.

The sort of pitching the Giants have flashed during the past few days was the kind that was needed so badly last week. The batting strength of the New York crowd is still slight, and they got five hits off Goodwin and one off Leon Ames. Their only consistent hitting came in the opening inning, when they grouped three bangs and tied the score after the Cards had reached Nehf for two tallies in the opening chapter.

The weak spot in the Cardinal crowd is at shortstop, where Doc Lavan has made a flock of errors in the past few days. Yesterday Lavan was juggling the ball more than usual, and the crowd back of third were shouting for Hornsby to play shortstop. Hornsby was back at his old position at third, while Jack Miller was back at first. The Cards have a good-looking ball club, a club which looks capable of playing better ball than it has shown here.

Giants on the Up Grade.

The Giants have spruced up quite a bit since the Cincinnati disaster last week, but, although they display more life and dash, they still lack that concentrated batting power which made them such a dangerous combination over such a long stretch of the season's strife. Yesterday's game reflected the subdued spirit in which McGraw's men are playing. At no time was the crowd roused to a very high pitch of excitement. It was rather colorless, listless baseball.

The strengthened pitching staff got a hard jolt yesterday when Shuffling Phil Douglas deserted the New York Club. Phil failed to appear for duty at the Polo Grounds on Wednesday, and it is said that he has gone to his home in Chicago. Douglas has been placed on the ineligible list indefinitely for leaving the club without permission. There is something mysterious about his sudden leavetaking. The club officials do not seem to know just what reason prompted the pitcher's departure.

Scale Is Balanced at Once.

The Giants got these two counters right back in the same inning. Burns beat out a bunt and continued to second on Goodwin's wild toss to first. Young's single to left sent Burns to third. Fletcher soaked a single hopping through the infield and Burns scored. Zimmerman sent the runners along with a sacrifice. Frisch rolled to Miller and Young was nipped at the platter. Kauff's hot liner was knocked down by Stock, who tossed to Lavan to force Frisch, but Lavan dropped the ball, as he has often done before, and Fletcher scored. Kelly pumped a fly to Heathcote and the combatants went into the second round all square.

New York stretched to the front in the third. Young was safe on Lavan's low toss to first and galloped to third on Fletcher's rap to right centre. As Zimmerman was being tossed out at first by Hornsby, Young tallied. The Cards threatened to tie the score in the sixth, but the Giants thought otherwise. Heathcote was so fleet of foot that he beat out Snyder's throw to first when he laid down a tap on the infield lawn. Frisch made a fine catch of Stock's rocket back of first close to the foul line. Heathcote had his eyes open and went to second on a wild pitch. Hornsby smashed a terrific drive to right. Young misjudged the ball, and, after running back for it, changed his mind and ran in and made a pretty grab. Heathcote raced to third after the catch. McHenry spoiled the St. Louis chances when Nehf chucked him out at first.

Frisch Makes Trip Homeward.

McGraw's lads added another run in their portion of the same inning. Frisch walloped a double to right, a Texas Leaguer close to the foul line, and went to third on a wild pitch. After Lavan tossed Kauff out at first, George Kelly, the Rochester slugger, hoisted a long sacrifice fly to center and Frisch scored.

Goodwin was extracted from the game by Manager Rickey in the seventh to give Leslie a chance to try his luck as a pinch hitter. The experiment wasn't much of a success. He nearly knocked Nehf over with a red hot bounder, but the pitcher choked the ball and threw the pinch hitter out at first.

Leon Ames, who has already seen 16 years of service in the major leagues, took Goodwin's place. This was the first time that Ames has appeared on the mound in New York this season. Leon can still bend them wider than many of the present flock of youngsters.

New York annexed another in the seventh. With one down, Burns walked and stole second. Young rolled an infield hit along the third base line and beat out Hornsby's toss.

After Fletcher fanned, Young and Burns staged a double steal, Burns scoring. Young over-ran second, and he was caught between the posts for the third out.

PHILADELPHIA, August 21.—Luderus's double against the fence, after Chicago had allowed Williams to steal second in the ninth inning today, saved Philadelphia from a shut out, the score favoring the visitors, 5 to 1. Hendrix outpitched Hogg, and errors by Bancroft also helped Chicago.

Georgian's Play Main Factor in Mackmen's 2 to 0 Defeat.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—Three hits in the first inning and the effective pitching of Leonard won for Detroit today from Philadelphia, 2 to 0. Cobb's hitting and base running were the features. The Georgian beat out two infield hits, drove out one for three bases, and slid home in the first inning for Detroit's second run, beating the return throw of Veach's sacrifice fly.

Curves and Bingles.

The crowd became deeply interested in the game when the score board showed Boston leading Cincinnati and there were visions of the Reds' big lead shrinking to five and a half games. No such luck.

The sudden departure of Phil Douglas is a big disappointment to Manager McGraw because he depended on the strong right hander to help make life miserable for the Reds before the season ends.

McGraw and his Giants will not yet concede the pennant to Cincinnati because many things may happen between now and the end of next month. Cincinnati, however, acts as if there wasn't a slump left in the club.

Rogers Hornsby, the crackerjack of the St. Louis outfit, hasn't made a hit in the series yet. Nehf got a round of applause from the crowd yesterday when he struck him out in the third.

George Kelly's contribution to the batting strength of the Giants yesterday was a sacrifice fly in the sixth which scored Frisch.

Manager Branch Rickey tried to turn both major leagues upside down to get Doc Lavan to play shortstop for his club. Now that he has him, Lavan is not playing nearly so good a game as he used to play when he was a member of the St. Louis Browns.

Benny Kauff was handcuffed at the bat again yesterday but he ran in about a mile and made a fine running catch of McHenry's skyrocket in the ninth.

The Cardinals will play their last local game of the season this afternoon, and tomorrow the Pittsburgh Pirates will pay a visit to the Polo Grounds for their last series of the season here. The Pirates will play here on Sunday.

The St. Louis players disagreed with the decisions of Umpire Barry McCormick on balls and strikes. Their objections became so strong at one point in the game that McCormick halted hostilities while he put the Maxim silencer on the Cardinal chin music.

Leon Kalamity Ames, widely known in these parts, pitched a slow ball for the last two innings and the Giants only got one hit. This with the aid of a pass and a double steal gave the Giants their last run. Ames has been pitching for sixteen years.

YANKS AND BROWNS DIVIDE TWIN BILL

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—Derrill Pratt and Joe Gedeon, second basemen, exchanged by the Browns and Yankees in a big deal a year ago last Winter, alternated this afternoon in delivering the blows which defeated the teams with which they were formerly affiliated. Pratt got a single in the ninth inning of the opener, sending Baker home with the run that gave the Yanks a 3—2 victory over the Browns. In the second game, which went fourteen innings, Gedeon delivered a two-bagger on which Jimmy Austin rode home from first base, giving the Browns the verdict by the score of 2 to 1.

The closing engagement was a grand pitching duel between George Mogridge and Allan Sothoron. The honors, as far as hitting went, belonged with the local right-hander, but the veteran southpaw gave a fine account of himself. Mogridge might have had a shutout but for the fact that a blazing sun threw its rays directly into Ping Bodie's eyes in the sixth inning and a drive that Bodie probably would have caught went down as a triple, chasing a run over the plate. This marker evened up for one which the Yanks had collected in the opening frame and it carried the Browns into the overtime session, and to victory. The one New York run also was tainted, an error making it possible.

Mogridge yielded eleven hits, two of them coming in the fourteenth inning, and he walked four men, as did Sothoron. With runners threatening to score, each boxman tightened and the battle settled down to one of endurance. Sothoron blanked the Yanks for thirteen consecutive frames and then launched the winning rally himself with a double off the New York southpaw.

New York's only run in the second game arrived after the first two batsmen had been retired in the opening inning. Baker drove out a single, Pipp followed with another, and the ball got away from Jacobson, allowing Baker to score and Pipp to reach third base, where he was left.

Sun Shines on Ping.

The Browns tied the score in the sixth when Sisler landed on Mogridge for a single and finished the journey on Williams's drive to centre for three bases. This was the hit which crossed the sun's rays when it appeared to be a putout for Bodie.

Sothoron opened the fourteenth with a double, but was thrown out at third on Austin't infield roller. Then Gedeon brought the long battle to a close with a two-bagger which sent Austin home.

The opening battle, like the extra-inning finale, was a pitching duel between a New York southpaw and a St. Louis right-hander. Huggins called upon Herb Thormahlen, who is showing signs of regaining the form that made him recognized among the topnotch southpaws, while Burke relied upon Urban Shocker, a former Yankee, who had scored six victories in seven starts against the New York team since his transfer to the Browns.

Thormahlen outpitched Shocker, but he had two very troublesome innings. In the fourth frame the Browns collected three of the six hits which Thormahlen allowed, and Chick Fewster turned in the only error charged against the Yankees. In the eighth Thormahlen handed out three passes, one an intentional walk to Big Bill Jacobson, but the side was retired in this frame without any scoring. In the other chapters the home team got no more than one hit, and only once did the Browns threaten to score. Then a squeeze play turned into a dismal failure.

Shocker was not hit hard in any particular frame, but he could not curb Frank Baker and Derrill Pratt, these two collaborating in scoring or driving in all three runs made by the Yankees. It was the irony of fate that Pratt, who was in the same deal which sent Shocker from New York to St. Louis, should deliver the decisive punch in the ninth inning and bring about the defeat of his old team. Baker's stickwork was a feature of this contest, the Yankee third baseman getting a single and two doubles in four trips to the plate.

Yankees First to Score.

Huggins's men went to the front in the second inning after both sides had been retired in order in the opener. After Pipp had been the victim of a fancy catch by Sisler Pratt hit to deep centre for a triple, held third base while Lewis was going out on strikes and then cantered home when Bodie lashed a single to centre.

The Browns threatened in the second, but a poorly executed squeeze play kept them back. Sisler was hit and Williams, attempting a sacrifice, forced George at second. Then Johnny Tobin pushed a double to right and Williams pulled up at third. Gerber was sent up to work the squeeze play, but he hit the ball too hard, Fewster caught it and then hurried it to Baker for a double play on Williams.

The Yankees' increased their lead by another run in the third. With two out Fewster hit to the left field fence for three bases and Baker chased him home with a double to centre.

The Browns tied up the game in the fourth. With one out Jacobson was safe on an error by Fewster and Sisler hit over the right field fence for a home run, scoring Jacobson ahead of him. Williams and Gerber also got hits in this inning, but there was no more scoring.

The Yankees did not get a runner to second base from the third inning to the ninth, and then they pushed over the winning run. After Fewster had been thrown out Baker got his third hit, a double to left. Pipp popped to Sisler for the second out and Pratt followed with a single to centre on which Baker rode home with the winning run.

ROCHESTER DIVIDES WITH JERSEY CITY

With Zellars Pitching Skeeters Win First Game, 6 to 2, but Drop Second, 6 to 5.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Rochester made it three out of four from Jersey City by dividing a double header today with the Skeeters. Rube Zellars pitched Donovan's team to a 6 to 2 victory in the opener, while the Colts bunched hits off Biemiller to win the second game, 6 to 5. It rained intermittently during both games, the first affair being held up for fifteen minutes during a heavy shower.

Paddy Bauman was the hero because of his hitting in the first game, and his keystone base playing. He made a leaping one hand catch of Kost's liner in the fourth inning of the opener that robbed the batter of a triple and shut off two runs for Rochester. A single by Bauman, Nagle's error, and two sacrifice hits counted for two runs in the fourth inning of the first game for the Skeeters. Joe Cobb drove the ball over the left field wall for another tally in this session.

Singles by Cobb and Fitzsimmons, with Denoville's sacrifice fly, gave the Skeeters a run in the seventh. Bauman and Wigglesworth doubled in succession in the eighth, the former scoring on the second hit. An out and a sacrifice fly by Kane scored Wigglesworth. Two wild throws by Mooers helped Rochester to its runs in this game.

Jersey City came within one run of tying the score in the seventh round of the second game. Brogan walked three men in a row, but Acosta was rushed to the rescue and retired the side after three runs had been scored.

DODGERS ARE SAVED BY FAST FIELDING

Brooklyn moved a peg nearer the first division in the standing of the National League Clubs yesterday when, at Ebbets Field, the Dodgers took the measure of the Pittsburgh Pirates by a score of 3 to 2 in the last of their two-game series. It was a scant measure to be sure but it sufficed as long as Hugo Bezdek's Buccaneers were successfully checked.

The Robins had lost three successive games when they engaged the Corsairs and there were grave doubts in the minds of the Brooklyn fans as to whether they would be able to dig their spikes deep enough into the green sward of the Flatbush playgrounds to keep them from skidding still deeper into the mire of defeat. The doubts were expressed by the size of the crowd that saw the Dodgers hold the first line trenches in the ninth inning when the Pittsburghers counterattacked and almost carried the day by storm. There were not more than 1,200 persons present to see Big Jeff Pfeffer wander to a more or less fortunate victory over Babe Adams.

Outhit more than two to one, it was a strange sensation for the Brooklyn players to finally emerge from the fracas in front. Usually the Robins are able to pound the ball harder than their opponents but seldom are able to bunch their hits sufficiently to enable them to grab a nourishing victory. It was quite a novelty for them to get but five hits against Pittsburgh's twelve and still be able to hold a margin of victory. But they did it, and they did it because Jeff Pfeffer's team mates were able to so place their comparatively few bingles as to get the most nutriment out of them. Twenty bingles that fail to furnish a cup of victory broth are not nearly so good as five that produce a full grown winning meal even if the margin between victory and defeat be not more than one run. A puny run becomes a mountain of advantage once the last man has been called out in the ninth inning.

It was a close call, however. In the ninth inning the Pirates came within the proverbial ace of tying the score. Only until Bigbee was thrown out at the plate for the third down in the final canto, just when he was trying to register the tying run, was there any assurance that the Dodgers would seek the quiet of their club house with the laurel jauntily perched on their perspiring brows. To the contrary, there was imminent danger in the final round of Brooklyn relapsing into that palsied form of baseball which has been theirs of late, and losing out at the eleventh hour.

After the game Charley Ebbets, President of the club and otherwise known as the "Squire of Flatbush," heaved a deep sigh of relief and, summoning a smile to deck his rotund face with a veneer of pleasure, remarked: "Well, conditions were reversed today. We were outhit, but we won. Usually we are able to outhit the other club and still lose."

Pfeffer On the Job.

Because the ninth inning really told the story of Brooklyn's victory, the festive happenings that filled it should be chronicled first. As the Pirates went to the bat for their last time they were lolling along two runs rearward. They had made several futile efforts to catch up but had failed. Caton, who had replaced Terry at short, was the first man to face Pfeffer. He fouled weakly to Mack Wheat, but Schmidt waded through with a single to right and Cooper was sent out to run for him. At the same time Nicholson was delegated to bat for Adams. He singled to centre and Cooper did a hop, step and jump for second. Then Bigbee, who had been decidedly delinquent all day, butted into the mêlée with a single to centre, on which Cooper scored from second. Nicholson tried hard to reach third from first, but a perfect throw by Myers to Ward cut him down. The atmosphere was cleared somewhat, and not a few of the few in the stands heaved sighs of relief. But the joy, or, rather, the relief, was destined to get an immediate shock. The fact that Bigbee stole second and as Olson went over to the bag to take the throw the Brooklyn shortstop's spikes ripped a yawning gash in Lord Byron's pants did not mean a great deal, but when Carey promptly crashed a sizzling bounder to Konetchy midway between first and second and Carey was able to beat his throw to Pfeffer for a hit it looked bad. Tearing from second base toward home in a determined effort to register the tying run was Bigbee, and only prompt and accurate action by Pfeffer saved the day. Heeding the warning shouts of the crowd, he whirled toward the plate and quickly relayed the ball to Mack Wheat, who caught Bigbee by the scantiest of inches, and the game was over.

The Dodgers got the jump on the Pirates in the first inning when, after Olson had been thrown out by Barbare, Johnston hit one to Barbare that was too hot to handle, but which the official scorer decided was an error. Griffith then flied to Carey. Johnston was able to score all the way from first base when Zach Wheat hit to Barbare, who threw wild to first. Whitted partially blocked the toss with his glove, but the ball hit Wheat and trickled into right field just for enough out of reach of every one to enable Johnston to count.

Doubles by Olson and Myers, with a base on balls to Zach Wheat sandwiched in between in the third inning, netted the Dodgers their last two runs and the winning margin.

Pirates' Late Start.

In the sixth the Pirates counted for the first time. Whitted singled to left and Barbare crashed one over first that looked good for two bases, but Griffith's fine throw to Olson retired Barbare at the midway, Whitted, of course, reaching third. Terry tripled to centre and Whitted scored. As Terry was sliding into third Olson attempted to relay Meyers's throw to Ward and the ball hit Terry in the head. He was knocked out for a few minutes, but resumed playing, only to retire because of a terrific headache as Brooklyn went to bat in the seventh inning. He was replaced by Caton.

Since returning to its home hearth the Brooklyn club has lost eight games and won but five. Pittsburgh won two in the first series. The Dodgers then took three out of four to the Reds. In the three out of four to the Reds. In the last series with the Pirates the Dodgers split even in two games. Today will be an off day and the last Western series of the season to be played at Ebbets Field will be started tomorrow against St. Louis.

BRITTON TO FIGHT FOR O'DOWD'S TITLE

Jack Britton, welterweight champion, and Mike O'Dowd, middleweight titleholder, will clash in an eight-round bout at the Newark Sportmen's Club at Sussex Avenue and Jay Street, Newark, tonight. Britton is taking on a large task, because O'Dowd will have an advantage of about ten pounds when they enter the ring. There has been a large sale of tickets for the bout, and New Yorkers are going over in large numbers.

Britton in this bout sees a chance to annex another title, and the event is sure to produce plenty of action and high class ring work. The champions will come together about 10 o'clock. The boxers will divide 66 2-3 per cent. of the gate receipts equally.

Both Britton and O'Dowd have trained hard for the bout and are in good shape. Britton put in a strenuous day yesterday, paying most attention to the heavy punching bag. It is evident from the manner in which the welterweight is working that he is trying to perfect a knockout wallop.

O'Dowd boxed twelve rounds at top speed with his sparring partners. It was no secret around the camp at Lakewood, where O'Dowd is putting the finishing touches to his training, that the middleweight star was being coached as to how to evade Britton's left jab.

The question as to whether the men will box straight rules or clean break will be decided this afternoon, when another conference will be held among the managers of the boxers, the promoter, and the referee.

The Newark club may be reached by Hudson Tube to Park Place Station, where Central Avenue cars and jitneys run to the Armory.

KOLEHMAINEN IN N. Y. A. C.

Veteran to Wear Winged Foot in Senior Championships Tomorrow.

Hannes Kolehmainen, Olympic champion, who is entered in the five-mile run of the A. A. U. senior track and field championships, to be held at Pershing Athletic Field, Jersey City, tomorrow afternoon, has joined the New York A. C.

The entry rules for the meet state that only competitors belonging to recognized clubs will be allowed to try for honors. Kolehmainen's application for entry was accepted on the condition that he attach himself to some club, since the Irish-American organization, to which he formerly belonged, is no longer in existence.

Kolehmainen won fame in the Olympic games at Stockholm, and since then has competed in this country, collecting additional laurels. Among his titles for distance running is the national trophy for the ten-mile run.

The first event of the program tomorrow will be the 100-yard dash, which is scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock. The favorites in the century sprint are A. B. Kelly, Jr., B. D. Wefers, Jr., and R. Patterson, all representing the New York A. C.; Fred Teschner and E. Hosmer, Glencoe A. C.; Frank Conway, Morningside A. C.; F. W. Markes, Knights of St. Antony, and P. J. White, Salem-Crescent A. C.

The 880-yard run will probably come near to record time, with a field of fast runners entered. Among the leading lights are Homer Baker, Glencoe A. C.; Jack Sellers, L. C. Scudder, A. L. Hulsenbeck, C. A. Peterson of the New York A. C.; Arthur C. Reilly, Knights of St. Antony; Robert Crawford and Michael J. Devaney, Millrose A. A.

The five-mile run is scheduled to be started at 5 o'clock, and is one of the features on the program, drawing a field of stellar performers. Charles Pores, Millrose A. A., present national and metropolitan champion, and Max Bohland, Paulist A. C., national and metropolitan cross country titleholder, are among the more prominent runners who will race against Kolehmainen.

The order of events follows:

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 21.—While the heavens wept wildly over the tragedy and flashes of lightning were answered by the deep, re-echoing crashes of thunder, Francis Ouimet of Woodland, former national amateur and national open champion, conqueror of the redoubtable Chick Evans, was himself humbled in defeat on the thirty-eighth green of an extra-hole match today in the national amateur title hunt over the Oakmont links.

J. Wood Platt of North Hills was the hero or the villain of the day, depending upon the sympathies of the observers. After fighting a magnificent uphill battle, the Boston golfer squared the match on the home green, only to lose, in a heart-breaking finish, on the second extra hole.

The survivors for the semi-final round are J. Wood Platt, who earned his place if ever a golfer did; W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, national amateur champion in 1910; S. Davidson Herron of Oakmont, who tied for the medal of this tournament, and Bob Jones of Atlanta, who is now looked upon as the probable titleholder when the last putt goes down.

Tomorrow morning little Bob from Atlanta hooks up with W. C. Fownes of the Home Club in the upper bracket, while S. Davidson Herron will try to prove, at the expense of J. Wood Platt, that a medalist is not necessarily doomed to defeat.

Valiant Struggle by Ouimet.

Ouimet made no excuses for his defeat. He needed none, for it was a wonderful battle that he waged, and the reaction from his terrific struggle with Evans was more than enough to cause the reversal in his play. Yesterday, in his contest with the defending champion, the Bostonian had shot a 74 in his morning round. Today he was just ten strokes worse, with an 84. The real truth of the matter is that yesterday's match was more important to Ouimet and Evans than is the title for the year. Each just had to beat the other for the sake of "auld lang syne" as well as future prestige. Therefore, Ouimet is now content to rest and regain his health, for the taste of victory when he toppled Chick Evans from his lofty throne will be sweet in his mouth for years to come.

Ouimet's defeat was a great surprise, however, as Platt was regarded only as good warming-up material for a coming champion. This is where the North Hills players fooled the experts. He was as cool and collected as the water that tumbled out of the skies in bucketsful toward the end of the match. He played as though he refused to recognize Ouimet as differing from the worst duffer in the land. He took his time on all his shots, even his putting line, as deliberately as Walter J. Travis, and in the tight place on the thirty-seventh green came through with a championship shot that kept him in the game when it looked all up with him.

No one seemed to bother when Ouimet lost his first two holes, especially when the Massachusetts champion holed a fifteen-foot putt for a 2 on the sixth and came to the ninth tee, 1 up. On the long ninth, however, the former champion was bunkered and the match was squared. Another ten-foot putt for a 2 on the short thirteenth put the Boston youth in the lead again, but Platt showed that Ouimet was not the only one to hole long putts by sinking a fifteen-footer for a birdie 3 on the seventeenth, which squared the match again. A half in 5 on the home hole left the match all even over the rest period.

Rain Falls Throughout Match.

It had been raining all through the morning, a heavy, cold rain, and the umbrella-covered gallery, the officials with their yellow flags, and the expert enthusiasts in fishing costume decided that Ouimet was conserving his energies in the heavy going and would easily pull through in the afternoon. But the fates ruled otherwise.

The heavy thunderclouds came up again in the afternoon, with Ouimet battling at every stroke to stay in the quest for the title, and the sick man was drenched to the skin in the terrific downpour that accompanied the thunder and lightning. Visiting golfers held an indignation meeting in the clubhouse after the match, the subject of the war council being Pittsburgh weather. It was ultimately decided to define Pittsburgh in all future golf guides as "a small, blunt town lying between two thunderstorms."

All square, the match started in the afternoon, but J. Wood Platt soon took a hand in the proceedings and was shortly 3 up. He lost one hole of this by taking 3 from just off the eighth green, but regained it again and was 3 up at the turn, when Ouimet bunkered his tee shot and took 2 more before he could persuade his ball to emerge from its cosy bed in the sand. It was 3 down at the turn in the second round, and the Ouimet supporters began to worry. Was the strain telling on Ouimet? When he lost the eleventh with a 5, it looked, indeed, as though ill-health and the excitement of the preceding day had worn him out.

Ouimet 4 Down, Seven to Play.

Ouimet was 4 down, with only seven holes to play. Now was the time to display the fighting qualities which had won him name and fame on the links, and he brought them all out, one after the other. Playing the long and difficult twelfth in perfect form, he scored a birdie 4, cutting the lead to 3 holes. After he had pitched to a trap on the short thirteenth, Platt hit wide on the other side of the green and joined Ouimet later in the same trap. When the Bostonian came well out he netted another hole and was but 2 down.

The fourteenth was a heart-breaker and three New Englanders collapsed into a bunker when Ouimet trapped his tee shot and, after coming out short, pitched over the green into another trap. With 3 down and only four holes left on the course strenuous measures are called for. Platt helped provide them. He hit strenuously into a bunker on his drive, came out strenuously into another, short of the green, and shot across the green in another earnest effort to extricate himself. Ouimet was now 2 down and 3 to go, and, as the gallery had decided that Platt was weakening fast, the outlook for the Bostonian seemed rosy.

But the blond-haired boy from North Hills had no intentions of throwing away the match. He halved the sixteenth with a nice 3, leaving himself dormie 2, a rather comfortable position when playing most golfers, but not at all certain when holding a links argument with those of the Ouimet type. Francis proved this on the seventeenth, after his opponent had followed a fine drive with a good approach that left him a sure 4. The Massachusetts champion knew he had to get 3 to stay in the tournament so he pitched up dead to the pin and holed out in 3.

Squared Match on Home Green.

As the former titleholder stood on the home tee, with the handicap of four holes cut to a single hole, the rain began to come down on his weary shoulders and he hooked his drive to the rough. His opponent was no better, however, and Ouimet courageously played over a long bunker to the edge of the green, on his second, while Platt played out safely, but short. The North Hills player was left on the green in 3, with Ouimet about ten feet from the pin on a like score. Platt chipped out well, but missed his putt for a five, and when Ouimet squared the match, a roar went up that shook the clubhouse.

It was Platt who proved the sensation of the first extra hole. He was short of the green on his second, while Ouimet played a beauty squarely to the middle of the green. With a difficult downhill chip shot to play, he not only laid it right up to the pin, but came within an ace of holing it out. This halved the hole, and, going to the thirty-eighth tee, the favorite son of New England hooked his tee shot behind a ditch. Platt was well out in the open, and pitched squarely to the green, the ball sticking just where it landed, with terrific backspin.

Down came the rain in sheets, flooding all the land. Casual water appeared here, casual lakes there, and soon the whole landscape looked like a very casual ocean. Platt stood bareheaded out in the open while Ouimet, with a raincoat thrown over his shoulders, trudged through the water to the rough, where his second shot had found a resting place short of the green. In the seven seconds that elapsed between the time he slipped off the raincoat and the hitting of the ball he was as wet as if he had fallen overboard. The violence of the rain was enough to make a good shot almost impossible, and the ball never got up to the pin, but rested far short on the edge of the green.

Ex-Champion Misses by Inches.

With his white shirt clinging as closely to him as the last of the seven famed veils, the blond youth from Philadelphia braced his sturdy form against the downpour and putted up dead to the hole. When Ouimet missed a twenty-footer by inches, for a half, the match was over, and the former national amateur and national open champion had been eliminated after a wonderful uphill fight. Platt's supporters went wild with delight. No rain could balk them. One of them dashed madly out to embrace the winner, but his heel tore a big black divot out of the smooth and slippery surface of the green, with the result that the congratulator went flat on his back in the water and was tramped on for his pains by succeeding well-wishers. To make matters worse, one of the greens committee who was there saw to it that he personally "replaced the divot."

The card of the match follows:

MORNING ROUND.

Ouimet out	6	6	4	5	4	2	4	4	6	—41
Platt out	5	5	5	5	4	4	5	4	5	—42
Ouimet in	6	5	5	2	6	4	5	5	5	—43—84
Platt in	6	5	6	4	5	3	4	3	5	—43—85

AFTERNOON ROUND.

Ouimet out	5	5	5	6	4	4	5	3	7	—44
Platt out	5	4	5	5	4	4	4	4	5	—40
Ouimet in	5	4	5	4	7	4	3	3	5	—40—84
Platt in	5	4	5	5	5	5	3	4	6	—42—82

These scores tell the ultimate story. Yesterday Ouimet scored 74 and 76 against Evans, for a total of 150. Today he was 168 strokes for the thirty-six holes, half a stroke a hole worse.

With Ouimet out of it, only one of the six former national titleholders who entered the tournament now survives. They have been dropping out day after day. Eben Byers, winner at Englewood in 1906, qualified the first day, but did not qualify the second. Jerry Travers, four times titleholder in the amateur ranks and once national open champion, was eliminated in the first round of match play by C. G. Waldo, Jr., of Detroit. On the second day Bob Gardner, winner in 1909 and 1915, was ushered out respectfully by Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, and Francis Ouimet persuaded Chick Evans, defending titleholder, that he might as well retire, too, and make it a complete exit for Chicago. Today Ouimet stepped down, content to leave with the Evans victory to his credit, and W. C. Fownes of Pittsburgh, 1910 winner, is the last of the former champions. His path is not a rosy one, for either "Davie" Herron or the calm and calculating Mr. Platt stands between him and the title, even if he survives his match tomorrow morning with Bob Jones of Atlanta.

Jones played well enough to win today from R. E. Knepper of Sioux City, and that is about all. However, it is considered a wise move to play this sort of game in a championship tournament, and perhaps the youngster was using good judgment when he got a 6 on the tenth hole in the morning round, a 7 on the eleventh, and an 8 on the twelfth. It is just as well that he stopped at this point for propriety's sake. Playing from the bottom of one bunker to the top of another, and down again to the bottom of a third got him the 8 without any trouble. After being 1 up to the turn in the first round, with a 38, he was 1 down at the eighteenth, coming home with all of 46 strokes.

After exchanging a few holes on the outward journey in the afternoon Jones took three putts on the ninth green and his two-hole lead was cut to 1 up. Knepper put his second into a trap on the tenth, and lost the eleventh also, when the young Southerner holed a long putt for a birdie 3. The youngster from Sioux City was showing lack of competition with high-class golfers, and Jones was easily holding his own, though he was not playing his game. The match was finally ended on the sixteenth green when Knepper missed his tee shot for the second successive time and was short on his next shot. Jones won easily with a 4, and the match was over, 3 up and 2 to play.

Herron Day's Best Golfer.

S. Davidson Herron was the best golfer of the day. In his match against W. J. Thompson, the Canadian, he went to the turn in 35 with a 6 on the fourth hole. Coming back with another 6 on the twelfth, he had a card of 38, with 73 for the entire round. This was one of the best rounds played in the tournament, and it must have seemed inhospitable for a home player to greet a visitor from Canada with a score like that. It was no wonder that Thompson was 8 down at the end of the first round. Playing easily in the afternoon, Herron held his lead and won 8 and 7.

Fownes had a close match with George Huffner of Baltimore. The Philadelphia youngster jumped into an early lead of four holes, but the veteran not only overcame this in the morning round, but was 2 up at the end of the eighteen holes. He stuck closely to his game in the afternoon, maintained his lead, and won 2 and 1 on the seventeenth green.

BROOKES DEFEATS MATHEY ON COURT

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Charles S. Garland, Lyle E. Mahan, Willis E. Davis, and Norman E. Brookes reached the semi-final round of the invitation singles at the Meadow Club today and will meet in that order tomorrow morning to decide the contestants in the final bracket. Garland had the greatest difficult in advancing, his victory over Leonard Beekman requiring three sets, scored at 6—3, 2—6, 9—7. Mahan eliminated the Australian, Randolph Lycett, in surprisingly easy fashion, while Davis disposed of C. B. Doyle and Brookes ended the victorious career of Dean Mathey.

Three teams entered the semi-finals of the doubles event, Doyle and Morgan, and Thomas and Lycett in the upper half, and Tilden and Garland in the lower, with Hall and Beekman and Murray and Mathey still to be heard from. A start was also made with the mixed doubles and consolation singles.

Brookes and Mathey occupied the grand stand court in the early afternoon, and the veteran's reappearance as a singles player was watched with the greatest interest. The former Princetonian made a strong showing in the first set, after presenting his opponent with a lead of 3—1 by serving three double faults in a single game. A love game made it 4—1 in favor of Brookes, but Mathey came back with a splendid uphill fight, winning his own service and then breaking through the Australian's with a good smash and a brilliant cross-court placement. A long deuce game squared it at 4-all, but Brookes again went into the lead on service, and when Mathey served two more double faults in succession the set was scored against him, 6—4.

Easier in Second Set.

Brookes had a far easier time in the second session, winning three in a row before Mathey broke into the score sheet with a love game on service. Another break, for a lead of 5—1, came when the Australian topped the net-cord with a beautiful volley. He led on his final service, but Mathey twice staved off defeat with good placement shots. Then Brookes found an easy one, close up, and sent it across court with lightning speed for the winning point and set, 6—1.

While the veteran in general showed himself the complete master of the situation today, his play was far less impressive than in doubles, and, without the help of Mathey's errors, his road to victory would have been a hard one. Uncanny anticipation and steadiness were his greatest assets, but the old speed of foot and stroke was rarely in evidence.

SECOND SET.

Yale Versus Princeton.

The meeting of Garland and Beekman today was strictly a college affair, the former having captained the Yale tennis team during the last season, with the latter acting in the same capacity for Princeton. Beekman was already credited with a victory over his rival in an intercollegiate match and tried hard to repeat the trick this afternoon. After losing the opening set, 6—3, he struck his stride in spectacular style, volleying with great accuracy and finding nothing too hard to return. Garland at the same time seemed to lose confidence in his shots, netting often because of his unwillingness to stroke the ball freely. By breaking through service twice Beekman rushed into a lead of 5—1, and, although he lost his own delivery on the next game, succeeded in upsetting the Yale man once more for the set, 6—2.

The rubber was a see-saw of service, but in the early games the Princetonian was scoring easily, while Garland had constant difficulty in accumulating his points. At 3—all, however, the latter began to brace, just missing several chances to break through in a long deuce game. Beekman was tiring rapidly, but held on up to 7—all, when his service lost the odd game. Garland had to fight for the deciding score even then, coming from behind to deuce the points, and having the vantage four times before being able to put across the winning shot with a good volley, closing the set and match at 9—7.

Australian's Errors Help Mahan.

Mahan's victory over Lycett was won largely on the Australian's errors, the New Yorker proving far too steady at the net, and using his great reach to advantage in cutting off his opponent's fast drives. The first set was close, running to 6—4, but in the second Mahan forged ahead quickly, taking the match with a 6—2 decision. With Patterson defaulting to Dudley Morgan this defeat left Norman Brookes as the only Australian representative in the singles. The decision of Washburn not to play made another big hole in the entry list.

Against Doyle, the Southern chop-stroke expert, Davis showed the same brilliant service and volleying that carried him successfully past Hall yesterday and have made him the favorite with many for the first leg of the new challenge cup. He started today with two clean aces, but then proceeded to lose the opening game with a corresponding pair of double faults. He immediately squared the count, however, by breaking through Doyle's delivery, repeating the trick in the sixth game for a lead of 4 to 2. After a single alteration of service, the Californian took the set, 6-3, with a love game, finishing with a fine volley across court.

Doyle's chops, which had been going none too well against the speed and accuracy of his opponent, weakened still more in the second session, while Davis came on with a rush which left the Washingtonion scoreless. He broke through Doyle's service in the first and third games, allowing Doyle only three points while rolling up a lead of 3-0. Trailing at 0-4, Doyle rallied and led, 40-15, on his own service. But a double fault spoiled his chances and the points were deuced when he volleyed wildly on a fast drive down the side line. Successive nets eventually cost him the game, and, after this brief flash, the match ended quickly, Davis cleaning up at 6-0 with dazzling volleys. The point score follows:

Davis	2	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	4	—33—6

Patterson Strains a Ligament.

There was disappointment today over the default of the new national doubles champions, Norman Brookes and Gerald Patterson, the latter suffering from a strained ligament in his arm, which would have made it impossible for him to play through the tournament. In spite of this handicap the Australians played what was practically an exhibition match against Major Harran and F. F. Derham this morning, winning the first set, 6—3, and defaulting with the score at 7—6 and 40—30 in their favor in the second. The English Army officer and his partner surprised the gallery by their stubborn resistance, being far from overawed at their opponent's reputation and holding their own in a majority of the rallies. After trailing at 1—3 in the opener they broke through the service of Brookes and then tied up the set, 3-all, only to lose three in succession for a 6—3 decision. In the second set they upset the delivery of Patterson when the latter ran into a wild streak overhead and the play was absolutely even up to 6-all, when a rather lucky volley caused a break through Harran's service. When within one point of the match, on Patterson's delivery, the Australians left the court and Umpire Robert D. Wrenn announced their decision to default, which was accepted regretfully by the committee and spectators alike.

The second Australian team, however, kept its place in the doubles by a well-earned victory over Willis Davis and T. R. Pell at 7—5, 6—4. Lycett showing the best form that he has commanded thus far, with Thomas not far behind him. The Americans were ahead 5—2 in the opening set before their opponents found themselves. A break against Davis at the start had been equalized against Thomas, with Lycett later going down on a double fault. But Davis paid too little attention to the increasing wind from the sea, and in his crucial service he allowed several lobs to drop safely, with the result that he eventually lost a long deuce game.

Thomas's Service Squares Score.

Thomas immediately served the set square at 5—all, and Lycett's fine driving overcame Pell's delivery for the odd 6—5. The set ended at 7—5, with Lycett serving and the American's big opportunity was gone. In the second set they trailed up to 4—0 and then started a belated rally. Davis won his service and Thomas was upset for a love game, a double fault and other errors contributing to the break. Pell also won, but Lycett served a love game, and, although Davis duplicated the feat, Thomas proved too good in the pinch. He double-faulted after leading, 40—0, but when Pell lobbed out it was all over, at 6—4.

Tilden and Garland, playing for the first time with real team work, triumphed over Leroy and Mahan in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4, their combination of brilliance and steadiness proving entirely too much for the Columbia veterans. Murray and Mathey also made a successful début in winning from Taylor and Gerald Donaldson in straight sets, although the juniors put up a great battle, carrying most of the games to deuce. But the closest doubles match of the day resulted from the encounter of Doyle and Morgan and Harran and Derham, the Southern team winning at 4—6, 7—5, 6—3, after being close to defeat in the second set. Doyle's steadiness was the deciding factor, his younger partner playing brilliantly at times, but with too many streaks of wildness and costly errors mixed in.

TENNIS PLAYERS VERSATILE.

The claim has sometimes been made that tennis players are necessarily limited to their own game, and have neither the time nor the inclination for any other form of athletics. This is manifestly unjust, for an examination of statistics shows that the majority of the racquet swingers are proficient in some other line of sport of well, while a number of them hold high rang as all-around athletes.

Probably the most versatile of them all is Richard Harte, the white-headed collegian who made such a notable record in the Longwood singles and Eastern doubles this season. Harte was Captain and catcher of the Harvard baseball team, one of the best ends in football, of All-American calibre, and a member of the track team, besides guiding the destinies of the Crimson tennis players and three times sharing in the intercollegiate doubles championship. Watson M. Washburn, also of Harvard, was noted as the hockey team's best goal keeper, while G. Colket Caner, Harte's partner in doubles, played football successfully.

Golf and tennis are not generally supposed to go well together, yet a number of tennis players have made good records at the ancient Scotch game. Norman Brookes of Australia is practically as skillful with his golf clubs as with his tennis racquet, and also has the reputation of being a first-class cricketer. William A. Larned, in the many years that he won the American tennis championship, made a practice also of winning a special golf tournament held at Newport each year, and both R. N. Williams and Maurice McLoughlin can hold their own on the links. The late Anthony F. Wilding, perhaps the greatest tennis player of all time, was a splendid all-around athlete, proficient at any sport to which he turned his hand. George M. Church was a good hurdler at Princeton, and Karl Behr played both hockey and golf at Yale.

Among the lesser lights in tennis are some remarkable athletes in other lines. E. J. Clapp of Yale, formerly the intercollegiate champion hurdler, still plays first-class tennis, and was once good enough to win the intercollegiate doubles title, while J. D. Ewing of the Williams baseball team is rapidly gaining a real reputation on the tennis courts. Both of the Anderson boys, Fred and Frank, play good golf, as does young Cecil Donaldson. Abraham Bassford, Jr., was a great all-around athlete at Cornell, and Francis T. Hunter, at the same university, by no means limited his athletic activity to tennis.

300-MILE HORSE RACE.

Endurance Contest for Saddle Mounts to be Held in October.

The Arabian Horse Club of America is planning a 300-mile endurance race for saddle horses, which is to be held during October. It is intended to start this interesting contest at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., and to finish it at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.

Three cash prizes totaling $1,750 will be offered to the winners. Some of the best horseflesh in the country will compete and the winner will receive a cash prize of $1,000 and a silver cup on which will be engraved the name of the winning horse and that of the owner. The second prize is $500, and show money will amount to $250.

According to the plans of the race, it will start on Oct. 14 and will continue for five days. It is for the purpose of stimulating interest in the breeding of cavalry horses throughout the country and also to determine the performances of various types of horses under the severe conditions of a forced march. One of the horses that has been entered in the event is Kingfisher, owned by Colonel Frank Thompkins.

The race is open to all who will comply with the conditions, which, subject to modification by the judges, are in brief as follows:

The distance, approximately 300 miles, is to be covered at the rate of sixty miles a day for five consecutive days, rain or shine, each horse carrying 200 pounds, inclusive of rider and equipment. Equipment will be optional.

All contestants will follow the same route and all horses will stop at approximately the same place every night. Each horse will be ridden and cared for solely by its rider, except that a farrier and veterinary will be in attendance for those who desire their services. The rider will continue in the saddle while the horse is in motion.

F. G. ANDERSON TELLS HOW.

"How do you get that way?" is a question frequently asked of tennis players. In other words, and more politely, "How does one come to take such an interest in the affairs of the court as to develop into an expert?" Frederick G. Anderson, the Kings County veteran, for many years champion of Long Island, and once a member of the sacred "first ten," has an unusual reply, so far as his own case is concerned.

It is not generally known that Mr. Anderson is a Canadian by birth, and that in his youth he was a devotee of cricket, as well as hockey and other Canadian sports. At the age of 17 he was selected to play in an important all-day cricket match, and was placed in the field at "long leg."

"I stood out there in the field all morning," says Mr. Anderson, "and not a single ball was hit to me. When we finally had put the other side out, I looked forward with pleasure to doing some batting, after my long hours of absolute inactivity. But unfortunately we passed the opposing score before my turn came, so stumps were drawn and the game was over. As I wandered disconsolately from the field, I happened to see some tennis players hitting the ball across the net. I watched them for a while and then I said: 'This game seems to have some action to it. Give me one of those bats and let me try it.' Before the end of that Summer I had won my first tournament."

MISS JEMIMA THIRD IN SCHUYLERVILLE

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 21.—There was another upset in the two-year-old division here today when Miss Jemima, C. E. Rowe's fleet filly, met with her first defeat in the East in the running of the Schuylerville Handicap at five and a half furlongs. The Western Miss, which had bid fair to be crowned queen of her age this season, was forced to bow to the greater speed and endurance of Homely, which had just come into possession of Lawrence Waterbury, the noted polo player, and J. K. L. Ross's Constancy, which finished second.

The victory of Homely was a surprise to most of the patrons at the track, who had come to think the Westerner was invincible, but it was highly pleasing to the owner. Mr. Waterbury had purchased Homely only a few hours before the race and too late to have his name placed on the program. He bought the filly from Sam Lewis for a price that was said to be $20,000, on the recommendation of Trainer Max Hirsch, and the winner earned back $2,325 for him. Homely had won but one race before today, but had made a good impression in events in which she suffered from bad racing luck.

Miss Jemima was decisively beaten and there was no excuse that could be offered in her behalf. She got a good start and was in front during the early running, but the weight and the pace told on her and she tired in the stretch run. Constancy ran the best race of all, and would undoubtedly have been the winner had she been better handled. Loftus took her outside all the way and allowed the winner to save several lengths at the turn into the stretch, enough to defeat the Ross filly.

Winner Entirely Neglected.

Miss Jemima was a strong favorite, although she was meeting better opposition than at any other time in her racing career. Constancy, despite the speed she displayed a few days ago in the Spinaway, was not heavily supported, while Homely was almost entirely neglected.

The race brought seven starters to the post, and after some skirmishing they were sent away to a good start. Miss Jemima was off nicely and quickly went into the lead with Masked Dancer and Constancy close up, and the balance of the field in which Homely was running scattered out.

As Miss Jemima and Constancy were regarded as the real contenders, they raced each other through the back stretch and half way around the turn drew away from Masked Dancer. Knapp and Loftus seemed to have no fear of the others, but all the time Masked Dancer was close and Homely had been gaining on the others, having an inside position.

Turning into the stretch Constancy went wide on the outside and Knapp permitted Miss Jemima to bear out, so that she left a big gap near the rail. Constancy was taken so far out that Masked Dancer again came through, and coming up close to Miss Jemima began to race her for the wire. These two were coming along less than half a length apart when Homely was sent through on the rail by Kelsay. This short-cut gave Homely an advantage of several lengths, and as the filly had not tried to follow the pace she now showed a burst of speed which sent her flying past Miss Jemima and Masked Dancer.

A groan went up from the stands when it was seen that Homely was coming through so rapidly, and just at that second Miss Jemima began to show the effects of the fast pace and tired badly. She was game and tried her best, but the fresher filly could not be caught. Constancy had by this time been straightened out, and she made another dash for the front, which brought her up to Miss Jemima and in the last 200 yards Constancy passed the Western racer and took the place by two lengths.

Setback for Elfin Queen.

The card today offered some excellent contests, though favorites failed to get home in any event. One of the surprises came with the defeat of Elfin Queen in the Salem handicap at six furlongs, which was won by W. Shea's Ormonda. Elfin Queen, which was a speed marvel as a 2-year-old, was a favorite over Fairy Wand in the field of five starters chiefly upon a belief that she had regained her form in her two races at Saratoga. She proved conclusively today that she cannot maintain her speed over a greater distance than five furlongs.

Elfin Queen broke with her usual speed and dashed into a lead of two lengths. She easily led the others to the stretch, where she once more decided she had had enough and quit. Fairy Wand quickly passed her, but had come through on the outside, and Ormonda moved up on the rail and came home a winner quite easily. Fairy Wand was easily second and Chimney Swift overtook the tired Elfin Queen to take third.

Andrew Miller's Snap Dragon, 2d, was another favorite to disappoint a multitude of supporters. This was in the Galway handicap, which was the fifth race on the card, at a mile and a quarter. There were only four starters, the others being African Arrow, Jim Dinney and Tailor Maid.

Mar Cassidy made a bad start with this small field, and sent African Arrow away two lengths in front of the others. Once there, this son of Javelin never permitted any of the contenders to pass him, but after being straightened out in the stretch Tailor Maid came up to the very nose of the leader, and it was nip and tuck all the way to the wire. In the last few strides African Arrow made one last effort and pushed his nose over first. Jim Dinney was less than a length away and finished third, with Snap Dragon down the stretch many lengths away.

George Peterson's Beck and Call won another victory in the last race, a dash for two-year-olds, in which he took the measure of his choice, Sandy Beal, Star Court and others which have been winning among the youngsters. Sandy Beal was second, and Captain Herschler third.

HUNTS RACES NEXT WEEK.

First Session of Belmont Park Terminal Meet Aug. 30.

With the time for the closing of entries for the United Hunts race meeting drawing to a close there is a marked revival of interest being manifest in this series, the first session of which will be held at Belmont Park Terminal one week from tomorrow. The series has as an opening period the last day of the Saratoga meeting. This date, which is practically an open one in so far as local followers of the sports is concerned, will give New Yorkers who were unable to get a peep at their favorite sport because of the absence of the horses at the Spa an opportunity that will be welcomed, as some high-class racing is carded.

So many good horses were unable to be placed, both as to stable room and competition proper, in the racing at Saratoga during the current month, that their trainers are welcoming the chance for a go at the valuable prizes which will be offered at the Terminal meet for their charges over the steeplechase and flat racing courses.

There is no doubt that a resumption of the best type of between the flags sport will be seen at the United Hunts series, as the course is one which is particularly well fitted for the true running of horses through the field, a phase of the game which has been missing at Saratoga, where so many faulty things have gone wrong. The Terminal course, admittedly the safest and most trying in the country, has been the scene of the schooling and fitting of scores of horses which have in sight, aside from the big events at the Terminal, the stellar races at Belmont Park and Aqueduct later in the season.

MUST KNOW ALL SPORTS.

Middies Have to Take Part in Each Branch of Athletics.

ANNAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—The Naval Academy is probably the only collegiate institution in the world which has a course of athletics requiring every student to participate in all the sports in general vogue. The first class to observe this new rule includes the 700 members of the new fourth class.

The academy officials believe thoroughly in competitive athletics as a physique and character builder and an aid to discipline. Moreover, since athletics have taken such a big place in the navy at large, it is considered desirable to send from the academy officers competent to handle sports in all phases at the stations and on the ships. The course is being arranged with the special idea of inculcating ability to command and team play.

The system has been inaugurated through the initiative of Commander Douglas L. Howard, athletic officer, and Lieut. Commander W. A. Richardson, gymnasium officer and assistant athletic officer. A strong effort is being made to improve the position and increase the pay of the instructors of athletics.

The schedule for the midshipmen is progressive in nature. In such sports as baseball, football, basket ball, lacrosse and rowing thorough knowledge of the rules and ethics is required and actual participation in each of them for a certain time, the more expert going to the regular squads in these branches.

RHINE'S 289 WINS PRESIDENT'S MATCH

Marine Corps Rifleman Has High Score in Shoot at Caldwell Range.

CALDWELL, N. J., Aug. 21.—The final stage of the President's match, one of the most popular shot at the Navy Rifle Range here under the program of the National Rifle Association, was fired today over the 1,000-yard range. Five hundred riflemen, representing infantry, cavalry, marines, sailors, and civilians, participated and the Marine Corps carried off the honors of the day. During the afternoon a heavy thunderstorm drenched the marksmen, but did not dampen the enthusiasm of the contestants.

The winner, Sergeant J. B. Rhine of the Marine Corps, made the high score of 289 in a possible 300. He wins the title of military rifle champion of the United States, a gold medal, and an autographed letter from the President. When the final stage opened today, Sergeant Rhine was in forty-sixth place.

The highest sailor to score was Seaman E. Phillips. His score of 288 entitles him to a silver cup donated by the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn for the best navy score.

The cavalry winner was Major H. S. Adams, who, with a score of 285, won the Cavalry Cup donated by the United States Marine Corps in 1910. He was ninth in the day's event. E. M. Newcomb of the District of Columbia civilian team won the civilian honors, the Major Lester Eisner trophy. He was third in the match, with a score of 288, as Phillips, the second place winner, made a better score at 1,000 yards.

The high hundred men in the match are entitled to wear brassards of their arms telling in gold thread that they belong to the President's hundred.

The scores:

First, Sergeant J. B. Rhine, Marine Corps, 289; second, Seaman E. Phillips, U. S. N., 288; third, E. M. Newcomb, District of Columbia civilian team, 288; fourth, Sergeant O. L. Dyer, U. S. M. C., 288; fifth, Sergeant E. Von Ermansdorff, U. S. M. C., 287; sixth, Sergeant T. B. Crawley, A. S. E., 286; seventh, C. M. Gettys, U. S. M. C., 286; eighth, Sergeant M. Fisher, U. S. M. C., 286; ninth, Major H. S. Adams, U. S. Cavalry, 285; tenth, Lieut. Commander A. D. Denny, U. S. N., 285.

Unusual Investment Opportunities

MEN in their forties or fifties seeking to become financially independent, can ill afford to neglect to accumulate long-term bonds around present prices. It is the judgment of investment experts that the time is bound to come when many well secured bonds that can be purchased today to yield around 5½% to 6½% will sell at prices which will not yield anywhere near so much income. To men in their forties or fifties this is an important consideration, since every dollar of additional income means just that much more financial independence.

Stocks Recover Under New Wave of Short Covering—Foreign Exchanges Rise.

Stocks were subjected to heavy selling pressure for a time yesterday morning, but turned about rather abruptly afterward and many sizeable recoveries were scored before the close. The upward swing would have been more impressive if it had been based on constructive developments in industry or finance, or anywhere outside of the market itself. As it was, prices had the appearance of being lifted by a wave of short covering purchases, which could easily have accounted for the major part of the later business in the light of the substantial declines since Monday morning. The reaction of the morning under what looked like a prolonged bear attack extended from 2 to 5 points; the subsequent reverse movement eliminated most of the losses among industrial stocks and added net gains running from 1 to 3 points, with occasional upturns of a greater extent. The volume of trading expanded from noon on.

The speculative movement in the cotton market ran parallel to that in stocks, and in neither case was material supplied upon which to base estimates of the broad trend of the future. Foreign exchange rates also made a considerably better appearance than the day before, as a contraction in offerings of bills acted in concert with the retirement of short commitments to work quotations forward. Sterling rose sharply from Wednesday's closing rate of 4.16 to 4.17¾ for checks, with some transactions reported at a price as high as 4.18¼, later wavered somewhat, but maintained a firm position to the end of the day. Francs also improved and the Continental quotations generally edged in favor of those markets.

In the bond market there were price changes not altogether explainable by the state of stocks. Several convertible railroad issues, which might have been expected to move upward with the moderate advance of railway shares, were weak, and local traction bonds were heavier than during the recent strike. Altogether, the security and commodity markets denoted the application of forces which came largely from sources intimately related to speculative phenomena having little to do with economic events. The decline had been severe for a number of days, inviting covering purchases, which may or may not have been hastened by a calmer view than on Wednesday of the labor situation in the steel trade. The strike vote was fully in line with predictions, and yesterday brought no more conclusive evidence than before that the mills of the country would be severely handicapped if the union leaders sought to call their followers out. Certainly, the impression gained from steel employers was as confident as a week ago that widespread troubles would not occur so long as the rank and file of workers continued to draw the highest wages in the history of steel making in the United States.

The task of shaping a satisfactory plan for returning the railroads to their owners is receiving renewed attention at Washington, and financial interests have found encouragement in the fact that the program of the railroad brotherhoods for a quite different disposal of the carriers is holding a diminishing place before the public. Tomorrow the problem of financing the Railroad Administration's equipment purchases is to be discussed by bankers, railway managers and a Government representative, with the purpose of completing details surrounding the plan.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Market Recovers.

During the first two hours of yesterday's stock market there was little but backing and filling, but after the turn into the afternoon a much stronger tone developed and prices rose easily and rather rapidly. So far as the price movement was concerned, there was not much that could have been asked, but after that is said there remains nothing more to encourage the observer. Certainly the recovery was not impressive, nor was the news, or the lack of news, which accompanied the recovery of the kind to inspire the great body of market followers to undertake new and extensive commitments. For the most part, the buying appeared to be short covering of stocks sold on Wednesday afternoon, with very little of what Wall Street calls "good buying" in evidence.

The day's budget of news included two rather favorable developments. There was no labor upflare in the steel industry, as some of the alarmists had predicted would happen on Wednesday evening, and the foreign exchange market recovered somewhat from its extreme low levels of the day before. Both of these things were considered encouraging by the Street, and the traders were entirely willing to buy back what they had sold earlier because of them. That commission house clients were less influenced in this direction, however, is evident from the lack of interest shown by the latter during most of the day. But if the commission house people were not induced to buy, neither were they prompted to sell; so that the traders who were trying to cover their short sales found a great paucity of offerings and on frequent occasions had to "bid the market up on themselves," as the saying goes.

The July foreign trade figures, which came out late in the day, supplied much food for thought and discussion. The exports for the month were reported at $570,000,000, which would be respectable enough were it not for the nearly $920,000,000 exports of June. Imports for the month were $345,000,000, an expansion of $52,000,000 over the June total. Thus in the balance of trade, which for the month amounted to $225,000,000, there was a contraction from the June balance of approximately $400,000,000, which is a very sizable item, even in these days. It can hardly be that the low exchange rates are entirely responsible for this very decided falling off in overseas business, for a good part of the export trade is of a kind which cannot be deferred, no matter what exchange rates may be, while another substantial portion of it was financed months ago. Yet it was back in March, almost five months ago to the day, that Great Britain and France announced their withdrawal of support to the exchanges and served notice on their people that they could buy abroad at their own risk. Now, it may be, some of that warning is beginning to sink in. However, whether it has or not will be more easily detected when the itemized report on trade with specific countries comes to hand.

Steel Men Not Apprehensive.

Probably the best illustration of sentiment among steel producers regarding labor activities in the industry was contained in the words of an independent steel man who has recently returned from a trip to his Pittsburgh mills. He said that most of the recent strike talk has been heard in Wall Street and that in the manufacturing districts it was infrequent. Other independents continue to deprecate strike talk, and Judge Elbert H. Gary was quoted yesterday as refusing to comment on the situation. He has consistently maintained that the Steel Corporation would continue its policy in regard to an open shop.

There has been a sharp break in Savold Tire stock in the Curb market in the last two trading days. On Wednesday the shares dropped from a high of 53 to a low of 41, closing with a fair recovery at 43. Yesterday the issue opened at 40, down 3 points, sold off to 31, and closed at 35. In some quarters the decline was attributed to professional selling, but in others it was rumored that the Savold pool was out of the stock. Whatever the cause, it appears that there has been little substantial buying of a supporting nature.

Mercantile Marine Rumors.

Mercantile Marine, which provided some of the most spectacular movements during the period of the recent bull market, and which served for months as one of the most favored speculative issues on the big board, is being talked about again. Rumors yesterday concerning the company were to the effect that as soon as P. A. S. Franklin, the President, returns from Europe in the course of the next ten days or two weeks, it is not improbable that the question of taking care of the back dividends on the preferred stock will be discussed officially. This in itself was not new, but the accompanying rumor that several of the Directors favored the elimination of the back dividends and that to avoid heavy taxes a new issue of short term paper might be offered to preferred shareholders in lieu of cash, was. Earnings of the company are known to be running at a favorable rate, and the company is accumulating a substantial surplus. On a good turnover, the preferred stock gained more than 2 points yesterday, while the common gained a little more.

Copper Market Again Active.

Copper men reported a steady improvement in the character of the market yesterday. Substantial orders were received for September deliveries at 23¼ cents, while October was sold at 24 cents, with some sales of November copper at 24 cents. The speculative element has virtually disappeared from the trading, has taken its loss, and shows little interest. The volume of inquiries being received is said to be increasing steadily, and the general outlook apparently is promising. Dow, Jones & Co. have issued a table showing the output of copper by leading companies in July to have been 78,013,594 pounds, compared with 77,093,729 pounds in June, and 591,543,183 pounds for the seven months ended with July last, compared with 952,150,401 pounds produced in the corresponding 1918 period.

An Increased Dividend.

Recent rumors that American Bosch Magneto stock would soon pay an increased dividend were borne out yesterday when it was announced that the stock had been placed on an $8 basis. Directors declared a quarterly disbursement of $2 payable to stock of record Sept. 15. The company paid an initial dividend of $1.50 a share last March, and a second $1.50 dividend in May. The stock on a turnover of only a few hundred shares advanced fractionally in yesterday's market.

Another Contract Signed.

Word was received in the financial district yesterday that the Director General of Railroads has signed a contract with the Texas & Pacific Railroad Company as the result of which the latter will receive $4,107,432 annually as compensation for the use of its properties by the Railroad Administration. The news of the signing of the contract probably had little effect on the stock, which advanced more than a point in yesterday's market. This issue has been a favorite with speculators ever since it was classified as an "oil rail" during the bull market, and has been a great deal more active than other low-priced rail stocks which have not enjoyed the prospects of increased earnings because of oil field interests.

Apparently the demand for railroad stocks will not develop until some constructive news on the general railroad situation is put out. The majority of the rails in yesterday's market were extremely dull, with prices irregular. In the case of many of the issues which moved into slightly higher ground, the exchange of shares was light, and the same was true of those which sold fractionally lower. Some quiet buying of the so-called standard issues has been reported in recent days, but this, so far, has failed to show plainly in the market action of the group.

The Financial World

Of all the changes caused by the war none is more noteworthy than the fact that the United States is acknowledged to be the world's banker. Foreign nations are coming more and more to the American markets for funds to finance their requirements. There are now opportunities offered American investors which were practically unknown a few years ago.

together with problems arising from the cost of living have made it advisable for investors to put at least part of their funds in preferred stocks because they yield more than any other class of sound investments and because of their tax-exempt features. Many strong corporations have issued preferred stocks yielding more than bonds. By this method of financing they can keep their own taxes down and at the same time maintain a stronger financial position.

BANKERS TO CONFER WITH RAILWAY MEN

WILL NOT TAKE ACTION

Details of Hanauer Scheme Will Be Considered and Administration's Views Received.

A conference between the special committee of the Association of Railway Executives which is handling the railroad equipment matter, Swager Shirley, Director of the Division of Finance of the Railroad Administration, and the Bankers' Committee which drafted the plan for a National Equipment Corporation has been called by Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Chairman of the Executives' Association, for tomorrow morning. The conference will be held in the offices of the association at 61 Broadway. Mr. Cuyler sent out the notices of the conference yesterday.

This will be the first meeting at which the bankers have been asked to attend in some time. At the previous meetings at which they were present, the whole matter was still in more or less tentative state, whereas now a majority of the railroads have approved the plan and, it is understood, the Railroad Administration has agreed to the major principles. One of the purposes of tomorrow's conference, it is believed, is to straighten out some of the details attached to the putting into effect of the plan, and it is considered possible that Mr. Shirley, acting for the Director General, will ask for some slight modifications.

Jerome J. Hanauer of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Chairman of the Bankers' Committee, has recently returned from an extended trip through the West, and this will be the first time he has met the railroad and Administration officials since his return. The other members of Mr. Hanauer's committee are Frederic W. Allen of Lee, Higginson & Co., Arthur M. Anderson of J. P. Morgan & Co., Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company; Harold Stanley, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Everett B. Sweezy, Vice President of the First National Bank, and Albert A. Tilney, Vice President of the Bankers Trust Company.

It was explained yesterday that the conference tomorrow will not be final, as regards official adoption of the Hanauer plan. It will require an act of Congress, creating the National Equipment Corporation contemplated in the plan, before any securities may be issued. Thus, little can be done regarding the contemplated flotation of the $280,000,000 of equipment trust certificates. It is believed, however, that much substantial progress will be made.

The greatest significance, it is said, attaches to the fact that the bankers have again been called in to lend their assistance in bringing to a successful conclusion the matter of financing the $400,000,000 of equipment which the Railroad Administration ordered and which has been partially allocated to the individual roads. There have been many conferences of railroad men and Railroad Administration representatives since the last week in June, when the Bankers' Committee submitted its plan to Mr. Cuyler and the Association of Railway Executives, but at none of these have the bankers, as a group, been in attendance. Under the circumstances, it was believed in Wall Street yesterday that the whole business is very near a final settlement.

COTTON CLIMBS UP 75 TO 100 POINTS

BUYING IN GOOD VOLUME

There was a distinct change in sentiment in the cotton market yesterday, and with the exception of a little hesitancy at the start, prices were consistently strong throughout the day, rising to levels in the last hour which reflected gains of more than 100 points in the distant options and about 95 points in October. At the close most of the day's gains were held so that the market finished 75 to 100 points above where it stopped on Wednesday.

The factors which contributed most to the rather sensational shift in the price movement were the recovery in foreign exchange rates, the improvement in the stock market, some heavy rains in Texas and elsewhere in the Western end of the belt, and a brisk recovery from the early low levels in the Liverpool market. These factors made for a decidedly stronger tone both here and in the Southern markets, and buying came in in good volume almost from the beginning of the day.

There was more than a little short covering, too. This was to be expected in the afternoon, when the market was so aggressively strong, but it developed even earlier than that and caused some surprise by its appearance and because of the large dimensions which it assumed. As for new buying, the ring said there was plenty of that, and there were rumors circulated that some of the big Wall Street operators, who occasionally get into the cotton market on a large scale, were busily engaged accumulating long lines of the staple.

All of this, of course, is always heard on days when the market happens to be going up. But, notwithstanding this, the contention which some are making that the depression has gone far enough is not without its strong points. The selling which originated out of the idea that demoralization in the foreign exchange market meant serious curtailment of exports seems to have run its course, just as the idea is not nearly so widely entertained now as it was a few days ago, and if there should be some substantial recovery in the exchanges, it is not improbable that cotton prices will recover at least a material portion of the losses sustained since the third week of July, when the December option sold at 36¼ cents and the others were close to that figure.

Completions for the week ended August 14, 1919, were not so numerous as for several weeks past in the Burkburnett field of the Waggoner Pool, a number of the operators keeping their wells shut down on top of the sand in preference to drilling the wells in. Pipe lines are being built to take care of the production, and it is expected a few weeks will relieve the situation in this field materially, as conditions brought about by the railroad strike are rapidly becoming normal.

High-grade and large gasoline content have secured a great demand for this oil and top prices from refiners are certain as soon as it can be moved.

WANTS LAW TO FIX RAILWAY RATE RULE

BLAMES LACK OF STANDARD

Expert Sees Deterioration Due to Doubt Over Stability of Income.

In discussing the railway problem Victor Morawetz, Director of the Norfolk & Western Railroad and a recognized expert in railway matters, says that railway credit must be re-established and that this will only be accomplished by furnishing adequate assurance to investors that in the future railway rates will be fixed according to some definite rule. Mr. Morawetz says:

"In my opinion, this deterioration of railway credit, with the consequent inability of the majority of the railway companies to raise necessary capital, was not due to insufficiency of the incomes of the companies but it was due to the loss of confidence of investors in the stability of these incomes. I believe that prior to the war the incomes of most of the important companies would have been sufficient to sustain their credit if investors had felt confidence that these incomes would continue. Investors lost confidence in the stability of railway incomes and in the safety of railway stocks and bonds (except underlying bonds of the safest class), because no definite and practicable rule or standard for fixing railway rates was prescribed by law and they feared that in the long run the various railway commissions would not allow the companies to charge the rates necessary to enable them to continue to pay the interest on their bonds and the usual dividends on their stocks.

"Merely to raise rates so as to increase the pre-war operating incomes of the railway companies without definite assurance as to the future might cause a temporary rise of the market values of railway stocks and bonds, but it would not in the long run restore confidence and it would not solve the problem.

"It has been proposed that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall make a valuation of the railways according to principles and rules to be determined by it, taking into consideration original cost, cost of reproduction, average earning power for a given number of years and such other elements as the commission may deem proper for determining their fair value, with power in the commission to make special adjustments in individual exceptional cases. This, in substance, amounts to a proposal to vest in the Interstate Commerce Commission a discretionary power, subject to no governing principle or rule, to value the railways and to make or unmake the values of railway stocks and bonds. I submit that Congress should not delegate such a power to any commission or board, even if Congress has constitutional power to do so.

"No one familiar with the way in which the stocks and bonds of the railway companies were issued and the way in which the book values of their properties were fixed can assert that these book values of themselves furnish any defensible basis for fixing railway rates or railway incomes."

Touching upon the proposal that Congress direct the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix rates to yield a return of 6 per cent. a year on the aggregate of the property investment accounts of the railways in addition to 6 per cent. on further expenditures of capital, Mr. Morawetz says in part:

"I do not find fault with this proposal on the ground that it would give unduly large returns to the railway companies, but I respectfully suggest that Congress should guard against any action that might be construed as approval of the principle or rule upon which the proposal is based. If this principle or rule were applied in effecting consolidations of the several companies or in distributing among them the aggregate return fixed in accordance with the proposal, gross injustice would be done to those companies which have been conservative in their financing and in the issue of their stocks and bonds."

BUYS OUT COCA-COLA.

Announcement was made through the Guaranty Trust Cmpany yesterday that the sale of the Cocoa-Cola Company of Atlanta to the Trust Company of Georgia and associated financial interests was virtually completed. The deal is understood to involve approximately $25,000,000 cash and stock in a new company which will take over the Coca-Cola corporation. It is said to be one of the largest transactions ever handled in the South. The Trust Company of Georgia will form a syndicate to distribute stock in the new corporation when the purchase of the concern is arranged.

"It is the intention of the Trust Company and its associates," said a statement, "to distribute a greater part of the stock of the new company as widely throughout the United States as possible and place it in the hands of permanent investors."

A charter for the new Coca-Cola Company has been applied for, and it is expected it will be ready to take over the business about Sept. 1. It is understood there will be no change in the active management. The working capital will be largely increased.

The Trust Company of Georgia was one of the first institutions of the sort established in the Southern States. It was organized twenty-seven years ago with $200,000 capital. The capital is now $1,000,000, and the profits and undivided surplus amount to $1,500,000.

CALUMET & HECLA DIVIDEND.

First Payment Since December Evidence of Better Market.

The declaration of a dividend of $5 a share by the Calumet & Hecla Mining Company, payable Sept. 20 to holders of record Aug. 25, was interpreted in the financial district yesterday as a reflection of improvement throughout the copper industry. This is the first payment by Calumet & Hecla made since last December when $15 a share was paid.

The announcement bears out reports that not only market but producing conditions had substantially improved during the first half of the year. Also there is a large volume of foreign business waiting financing. In addition, local producers report a steady enlargement of inquiries from domestic buyers although there is little evidence that the latter are in the market again as they were some weeks ago, bidding wildly for the red metal.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

With the possibility of a strike in the steel industry made somewhat remote, with the likelihood that money for investment purposes will continue plentiful, and also with evidences of growing balances held in the treasuries of the marine corporations, the "bulls" had it all their own way in the matter of encouraging developments, on which the professional "bear" element was signally worsted.

United States Steel common was bid up from its early low to 101, Crucible to 136⅝, Bethlehem Steel B to 83, and Baldwin Locomotive to 101⅝. Tobacco Products, which at the start fell back to 85⅝, rallied to 87⅝, while American Sumatra was bid up from its early low to 78¼. International Mercantile Marine common netted a gain to 53⅞, the preferred to 112⅞, and American International Corporation to 93⅜.

On advices of a new gusher on the Sinclair Oil holdings there ensued a vigorous demand for those shares.

DIVIDENDS.

Sixty-one Broadway,
New York.
New York, August 18, 1919.

The Board of Directors have this day declared a dividend of two cents per share on the stock of the company, payable September 15th, 1919, to the stockholders of record at the close of business on August 25th, 1919. The stock transfer books of the company will not be closed.

WARREN H. SPURGE, Secretary.

TO EXPAND ALCOHOL.

Stockholders to Vote on New Financing on Oct. 7.

Directors of the U. S. Industrial Alcohol Company at a special meeting yesterday resolved to call a special meeting of stockholders for October 7, to pass upon an increase in the capital stock of the company from $12,000,000 to $24,000,000, and the sale of the additional 120,000 shares of common stock at $70 a share, giving stockholders the right to subscribe to it share for share in proportion to their holdings.

It was explained following the meeting that the new financing was to develop new processes, and the production and marketing of the company's products.

Discussing the future dividend policy the Chairman of the Board said there was no reason to believe that there would be any cut in the present disbursement. This would, of course, mean that the annual dividend rate would be 8 per cent on the increased capital stock. The stock now pays $4 quarterly.

United States.

Under an opinion of the Attorney General, recently rendered to the commission, United States soldiers, sailors and marines who missed opportunity to enter civil service examinations because of their military or naval service may now be given a chance to qualify for Government employment.

The commission, wishing to give discharged service men every opportunity to qualify for civil positions, asked the Attorney General for an opinion as to whether it would be legal to open, for the benefit of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, examinations which had been closed. The Attorney General having expressed the opinion that such action is legal in view of the spirit of a recent act of Congress which provides for preference in appointment to civil positions for discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, the commission will open only to honorably discharged service men examinations which were pending on April 6, 1917, the date of America's declaration of war, or which were subsequently announced, and for which registers of eligibles now exist.

Sixty days from Aug. 1, 1919, will be allowed soldiers, sailors and marines in which to be examined for positions for which examinations have already been held if they were discharged from the military or naval service prior to Aug. 1, and sixty days from the date of their discharge will be allowed those discharged subsequent to Aug. 1, 1919.

Persons wishing to compete should address the commission at Washington, D. C., or the District Secretary, Civil Service Board, Room 319, Custom House, New York.

Education Notes.

The meeting of the Board of Education yesterday adjourned subject to the call of President Prall. He said that another meeting will be held probably on Wednesday next.

The Board of Education received yesterday a copy of the appeal of City Superintendent Ettinger to State Commissioner of Education Finley, protesting against its action in adopting certain by-laws alleged to be inconsistent with the State Education law, and requesting from him an authoritative ruling as to those by-laws. President Prall said that some of the statements made by Dr. Ettinger about members of the Board of Education made it a serious matter. Dr. Ettinger believed that he had powers which the law did not confer on him. There were some things that the President of the Board had the right to pass upon. The appeal was referred to the Committee on By-Laws of the Board of Education.

The award for plumbing and drainage additions to and alterations in P. S. 6, the Bronx, was made to the lowest bidder, Christopher Nally, in the sum of $17,600.

Kathleen Mullins has requested that she be reinstated as a teacher or be granted a rehearing of the charges preferred against her. Her case was reported to Mrs. Murray.

Six teachers have been retired, taking effect Sept. 1 and 8.

The letter of the Central Federated Union in reference to permits for the use of school buildings by the Teachers' Union was referred to Mr. Wilsey, who has asked the opinion of the Corporation Counsel in the matter.

Donald McInness and Robert McIntyre, who represented the Controller at the conference on the budget for 1920 held by the Board of Education, took umbrage because a Brooklyn newspaper referred to them as acting as sort of spies in the matter. President Prall yesterday was authorized to notify these gentlemen that the Board appreciated their services and wanted them to attend the budget conferences.

HURT BY STRIKERS IN BUILDING TRADES

CRITICISES PAINTERS' STAND

Conciliation Commissioner Squires Sees Danger in Their Refusal of Right to Organize.

Labor troubles in the building trades reached Long Island City yesterday and resulted in a pitched battle in which seven men were injured by flying bricks and stones and later in the arrest of four alleged strike leaders who were held in the Long Island City Magistrate's Court for examination today on a charge of disorderly conduct. The trouble centred about contracts which are being executed by the Turner Construction Company of Manhattan, but it was said by some of the labor leaders that it will be extended within a day or so to the jobs of other firms. At the present time buildings costing over $7,000,000 are in course of erection in Long Island City, and more than 2,000 men are employed on them.

On Wednesday 200 Poles and Italians employed on the buildings in the Ravenswood section went on strike, demanding an increase in wages from $4.50 to $5 a day. Yesterday morning the firm began bringing gangs from Manhattan to take the places of the strikers. The latter congregated about two blocks from the jobs, and when about fifty of the newcomers came along the strikers began a battle by throwing stones and bricks. The strikebreakers returned the assault and men were being knocked out on both sides when the police reserves from the Hunters Point Station arrived and dispersed the strikers. Seven men were taken to St. John's Hospital to be treated for injuries.

At the noon hour the strikers appeared at another job and began to try to influence the workers to quit. Some of them consented to do so, while others declared they would return to their jobs. The men were beginning to get quarrelsome when Mounted Patrolman Joseph Bradley came up and, on the complaint of Herbert Lindholm, superintendent, put four of the alleged leaders of the strikers under arrest.

They were taken to the Long Island City Police Court and arraigned before Magistrate Conway and charged with disorderly conduct. They were Augustino Caruso, 336 East Sixty-first Street; Tony Accotto, 196 Elm Street; Joseph Pegra, 319 East Sixtieth Street, and John Columbo, 44 Monroe Street, Manhattan. Magistrate Conway held them in $200 bail for examination today. In default of bail they went to jail.

The refusal of the striking painters to deal with the Association of Master Painters and Decorators of the City of New York has brought about a situation which, according to B. M. Squires, Commissioner of Conciliation of the United States Department of Labor, "is so contrary to the things for which organized labor has stood as to be of grave concern." Commissioner Squires sets forth his views on the union's position in an advertisement in newspapers under the heading, "Striking Painters Criticized."

He says in part:

"A most unusual situation is presented in the present strike of painters. Organized labor has usually sought to deal with employers collectively rather than individually. We have here a case where a group of employers, the Association of Master Painters and Decorators of the City of New York, offers to meet and deal collectively with the union, but the union refuses to have anything to do with the association.

"The reason given by the union for declining to deal with the Association of Master Painters and for disregarding the agreement with the association both as to period of effectiveness and arbitration machinery provided, is that the Association of Master Painters failed to enforce the decision of a board of arbitration in the case of one employer. Whatever of merit there may be in the charge, much of it is lost by the unwillingness of the union to await ordinary procedure.

"Now I have nothing to say as to the merits of the demands, though it may be remarked that the existing competition of wages and prices makes both of vital concern to the public. But the disregard of orderly procedure, the presenting of an ultimatum subject to no compromise or negotiations, the upsetting of the principles of negotiating collective rather than individual agreements is so contrary to the things for which organized labor has stood as to be of grave concern."

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Wednesday ..5½ per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Furnishings Men Offer Help.

In a letter to Arthur M. Reis, President of the National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association, Attorney General Palmer has thanked the organization for its offer to co-operate on the Government's plans to reduce the cost of living. The association represents a majority of the manufacturers and distributers of men's furnishings. The Attorney General answered that the offer was appreciated and, should any opportunity to utilize the services of the organization be presented, it would be called upon.

All Want to Buy at Wholesale.

Because of the high prices that have been told about in regard to men's clothes for the coming season, it was said yesterday, it appears that every man who has a friend in a wholesale clothing house, or has a friend who has a friend in one, is trying to beat the retailer out of a sale. The result is that the scrupulous wholesaler is daily refusing dozens of requests for individual sales, and is advising the bargain seeker to trust the retailer to do the right thing. Some other wholesalers, not so scrupulous, are doing a big "wholesale business" at retail prices.

Two Months to Make Profits.

The belief seems general in the piece goods market that, for the first six months of this year, many of the mills made very little in the way of profits. The most representative mills, unaware of the big demand to be made upon them and the increases they would have to make to their employes, sold the market "short." The result of this action is that, in the late orders taken for the present heavyweight season and in marketing their Spring fabrics, the mills are bent upon regaining some of their lost profits and heavily taxing what they will produce during the last two months of the year.

Collected Pay from Ten Mills.

As an example of the wandering character of some weavers at the present time who are looking for places where the work is easiest, the following instance was related yesterday by a mill representative. At the end of two weeks this operative collected wages from ten mills. His average time of employment for each job was a little, a very little, over a day in each mill. This tendency on the part of their employes to do as little work as possible is the chief reason given by the mills for the short production that makes it necessary for them to allot their goods.

In explanation of the record high prices demanded in the woolen market for fine goods, a mill agent put down the scarcity of fine yarns as the reason. He described how one of the makers of high-grade worsteds offered a premium of 50 cents a pound, not to a dealer who would sell him the grade of yarns he desired, but to the man who would find where he might place such an order. Even this offer, he said, failed to procure the desired yarns. Under such conditions, he pointed out, it is to be expected that the price of good fabrics has reached an exceptional height.

Gray Goods Buying Picks Up.

Gray goods buying picked up quite a little in this market yesterday, partly as a result of the rise in cotton and partly because of the belief in some quarters that bottom, at least so far as printcloths and other staples are concerned, has been touched. Large sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were made at 15½ cents by second hands, for nearby delivery, and later these goods were being held for at least 15¾ cents. Nineteen cents was accepted early in the day by second hands for nearby shipments of 38½-inch 68-72s, but a quarter to a half cent a yard more was asked for them before the afternoon closed. For nearby 38½-inch 60-48s sellers took 13 cents. In the sheetings, 5.50s sold at 12½ cents, and 4-yard 48 squares at 16¼ cents. Fine-yarn cloths and specialties were featureless.

Raw Silk Market Is Quiet.

The local raw silk market continues quiet, and business, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., is confined to filling-in requirements of the mills. Manufacturers are awaiting developments in the broad silk trade, but, with the Paterson strike out of the way and all the looms busy, it is thought unlikely that their return to the raw silk market can be long deferred. Prices have suffered a considerable set-back in sympathy with the decline of the Yokohama market, and present values cannot be very far from the level that will prove attractive and stimulate new business. Prices for Sinshui No. 1 have dropped back to 2,150 yen. Present stocks at Yokohama amount to 18,500 bales, against 17,500 a year ago. The Canton market remains unchanged and dull, and Shanghai quiet.

Owing to the high cost of leather, skiver skin and oilcloth are being substituted in popular priced millinery, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America. One manufacturer making sport models is showing these materials in various light and dark colors. Several of the oilcloth designs are made in solid effects. The hats are fashioned on the softest possible frames, with the side crowns entirely void of any support save what they get from the tip. This is done to make the hat as light as possible, and so that it may be bent into the most becoming shape. The same manufacturer is featuring children's hats that are adjustable to the size of the head, and also reversible hats which may be worn front to back or vice versa.

With the demand for fine platinum and diamond jewelry better than ever before in the history of the trade, manufacturers of these goods have never had more trouble in getting enough platinum to supply their needs. The internal situation in Russia has reduced exports of platinum from that country to a minimum, if they have not been cut off altogether. The result is that the manufacturers in this country find difficulty in obtaining it from the dealers and refiners in less than one to four weeks after their orders are put in. Prices are high, those asked for the metal here yesterday being $105 an ounce for "regular," $115.50 an ounce for 5 per cent., and $126 an ounce for 10 per cent. The per cent. in each case indicates the iridium content.

Women Workers Still Scarce.

Employers of female labor, who thought that the demobilization of the American military and naval forces would just about solve for them the problem of getting enough women workers, are now saying that they guessed wrong. Whatever the cause may be, the fact remains that, in certain branches of business, girl and women workers are harder to find than they were before the war ended. Nearly every factory that employs girls has a Help Wanted sign hanging out every day, and at least two manufacturers have had advertising cards in street cars and other public conveyances telling their needs in this respect. Sales help is also scarce, from the 5 and 10-cent emporiums to the Fifth Avenue specialty shops. As a result quite a little display advertising pace is being diverted by department stores to telling women and girls of the advantages of "clerking" in some particular place, either whole or part time.

Low-Grade Wools Withdrawn.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—There were 6,480 bales offered at the wool auction sales today. Prices were steady and unchanged except for low crossbreds, which were withdrawn. America bought the best merinos and crossbreds, but the bulk of the offerings went to the Continent.

Britain Bars Dyes and Optical Glass

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The American Chamber of Commerce in London understands from an authoritative source, that the only restrictions on imports that the British Government will maintain after Sept. 1 will be on aniline dyes and optical glass.

NEW TRADE COURSE FOR GEORGETOWN

MAKES GIFT OF $20,000

Plans for the establishment of a School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., were formulated yesterday by James A. Farrell, Chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council and President of the United States Steel Corporation. Mr. Farrell has headed the subscription list with a gift of $20,000 and has invited the other members of the Foreign Trade Council to give the movement their substantial support.

The school, according to Mr. Farrell, is to be established on "a broad, nation-wide basis of sound, liberal, economic principles, and American ideals."

Mr. Farrell explained that his plan is the culmination of the policy in suport of commercial education for foreign trade pursued by the council since its inception in 1914, and approved by all the National Foreign Trade Conventions. The school will be the first of its kind to be endowed along the proposed lines by any national or commercial organization of business men. Not less than $500,000 will be required to start the organization, but Mr. Farrell believes this money will be forthcoming as soon as the purposes of the school become known.

The curriculum for the coming year is planned along the most modern lines. Special attention will be paid to teaching foreign languages as a flexible rather than as a mechanical instrument. Japanese and Russian, as well as French, Spanish, and Portuguese, are among the languages to be taught from the outset, and more will be added as America's trade opportunities with world markets eventuate. Besides the language group of studies there are to be three other groups, the economic and commercial, the law and political science, and the shipping.

A special Faculty of twenty men has been mobilized from the commercial personnel now available at the national capital. It is considered that the location of the school in Washington will afford an unusual advantage, because of the proximity of dozens of educational and commercial organizations, such as the Pan American Union, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the Congressional Library, the Federal Trade Commission, and the Department of Commerce.

In a letter addressed to the members of the council, associated organizations, and all individuals interested in the develoment of the overseas commerce of the United States, Mr. Farrell says, in part:

Tells of Need for School.

From its beginning the council has not failed to emphasize the need of adequate educational preparation for men going into foreign countries as commercial representatives of American industries, or as consular and diplomatic agents of the United States.

The emphasis which this council has placed on proper education for foreign trade has constantly been indorsed by the National Foreign Trade Convention, notably at the last gathering in Chicago.

I firmly believe that we have reached the moment for definite action. This action can be initiated by nobody more appropriately than by the National Foreign Trade Council. Hence, after mature deliberation and examination of the elements involved I have decided to submit the following plan to your serious consideration.

As the first essay toward filling the long-felt want of a specialized form of commercial education, a scientific program for systematic and sustained training for foreign service has been formulated, and, in fact, applied by Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., working in close co-operation with governmental bureaus and practical business men.

A provisional half year was begun on Feb. 17, 1919, and closed on June 23, 1919. Twelve members of the first class have already been placed in the foreign service of the Government and with private corporations engaged in export trade. For the next session, which begins Oct. 2, 1919, so many applicants are already in sight that the chief difficulty will be that of finding adequate space.

The overhead expenses of the school might readily be met without a wide appeal, but the ultimate purpose for which it has been established cannot be fulfilled on the broad, nation-wide basis desirable unless a large endowment is provided. Definite provision must be made for the expansion of the program to emphasize to the utmost sound, liberal, economic principles and American ideals.

Not less than $500,000 will be required at the outset as the endowment necessary for the proper conduct of a school conceived on such broad lines. Already twenty expert instructors, each a specialist in some phase of government, commerce or finance, have been added to the faculty. For the construction of an adequate building which shall serve both as a fitting home for the School of Foreign Service and a centre of foreign trade activities, a second $500,000 will later be required.

I, therefore, earnestly recommend this institution to the generous support of all the members of the council and to all organizations and individuals interested in the expansion of our foreign trade.

As an indication of my own appreciation of the soundness and opportuneness of the policy outlined I hereby make an initial contribution of $20,000 to the endowment fund.

O. K. Davis, Secretary of the National Foreign Trade Council, it is announced, will receive and deposit all funds donated for the purpose of furthering the endowment of the school. His address is India House, 1 Hanover Square, New York City.

BIG INCREASE IN IMPORTS.

Total $345,000,000 in July, While Exports Drop to $570,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Imports in July were the largest in the history of the country, while the exports were the lowest in any month of this year, according to a statement given out today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce.

The July exports amounted to $570,000,000, nearly $350,000,000 less than in June, the high record month, but an increase over the $507,000,000 exports in July, 1918. For the seven months ended with July the exports were $4,618,000,000 in 1919, and $3,482,000,000 in 1918, an increase of nearly 33 per cent. in one year.

July imports totaled $345,000,000 as against $293,000,000 in June, 1919, and $242,000,000 in July, 1918. They are the largest monthly imports in the history of our foreign trade, exceeding by $16,000,000 the previous high record in May of this year. Imports for the seven months ended with July were $1,955,000,000 in 1919, compared with $1,788,000,000 in 1918, an increase in the last year of approximately 10 per cent.

The excess of exports over imports was $225,000,000 in July and $2,663,000,000 in the seven months of this year, $969,000,000 more than the excess in the corresponding period of 1918, an increase of 57 per cent.

STRANGER PROVES BROTHER

A man in uniform walked into the recruiting tent of the Motor Transport Corps in Times Square last night and asked Sergeant James J. Fitzpatrick for a match. The recruiting Sergeant with an eye to a possible re-enlistment carefully scanned the face of the newcomer and then asked:

"Where have I seen you before?"

"I don't know," replied the other. "What is your name?"

The Recruiting Sergeant had hardly finished telling his name when the soldier in front of him said:

"I'm Joseph J. Fitzpatrick, your brother. Don't you know your own brother?"

Army enlistments were forgotten for the next few minutes as the two brothers told of the search each had made for the other during the last six years. Joseph, who is also in the recruiting service of the Motor Transport Corps and is here on a furlough from Camp Funston, Kan., produced a letter he received a few days ago from the Adjutant General of the Army stating that there was no record of his brother's having been in the service.

"Well, here's my discharge I received two months ago, before I re-enlisted," said James, showing the paper which stated that he had been wounded several times and had fought at Château-Thierry, St. Mihiel and the Argonne.

Sergeant Fitzpatrick said he had enlisted in the regular army more than six years ago. He was constantly shifted about and lost track of his mother and brother, who live here. He said that since he had come to this city for recruiting duty he had vainly tried to find his family. As soon as he could get a relief, Sergeant Fitzpatrick left with his brother to go to the home of their mother at 158 East Sixty-first Street.

RUNYON HITS LIVING COST.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 21.—Governor William N. Runyon, in an address before the Ocean County Grange, today, advocated the use of trolley cars in the distribution of freight, to lower the cost of living, under State supervision.

"If elected Governor," he said, "I will bring the subject of freight by trolley to the attention of the next Legislature. At night, when the service on the trolley roads is almost nil, the tracks could be used to transport freight from one part of the State to another, relieving the railroads and reducing the cost of living, through smaller charges."

The Governor also suggested that men in charge of keeping the highways of the State in shape should "speed up" the task. "I have traveled about considerably recently, and have found scarcely one road in good condition from end to end," he said. He added if the roads were better the farmer could take his produce to market, thus eliminating the middleman and keeping down prices.

ASKS AID FOR LITHUANIA.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 21.—The Lithuanian National Council of America, in convention here today, adopted resolutions asking the United States to recognize the Government of the new Lithuanian Republic and to provide it with arms and munitions to fight the Bolsheviki in Lithuania.

The Lithuanian War Sufferers Fund reported that $400,000, in addition to large supplies of clothing, had been collected and sent to Lithuania since the war started.

The Lithuanian Women's Alliance voted today to send $5,000 to a women's organization in the mother country for relief among the victims of the war.

MORE PRODUCTION NEEDED.

Declared to be Big Factor in Reducing Cost of Living.

Increased production as a means of reducing the cost of living is emphasized in the survey of conditions just issued to the salesmen of Robert Reis & Co., manufacturers of underwear, who are about to leave on their Spring selling trips. The report also goes to the export managers of the house.

"It is well to remember, despite whatever artificial raising of price has taken place, fundamentally merchandise must necessarily be on a high level as compared with pre-war times. For the last five years the world has been busy destroying commodities and wasting energy which ordinarily has been engaged in the production of more commodities. There is only one real solution for the reduction of price and that is greater production.

"This is not brought about by strikes, reduced hours of the working day, higher wages, &c. Higher wages and cheaper commodities can only be created by greater production and so, until all countries are able to make up the loss suffered in the last five years of destruction and until industry is put on a basis of greater production than ever before, we must look for higher prices with occasional pendulum swings backward and forward. A real reduction in price cannot be looked for until many years have elapsed. Agitation of any kind will not bring down the price of merchandise. This can only be brought about by increased production. Profiteering could not endure one week if there were enough commodities to go around, and profiteering in itself is a definite indication of a lack of supply and an over-demand."

GREEN'S YACHT AGROUND.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 21.—Colonel Edward H. R. Green's steam yacht United States was aground today on a ledge just inside Padanaram Breakwater, where she struck late last night while being swung around to make anchor. The vessel was listed at an angle of 45 degrees with her starboard rail submerged, and was said to have a big hole in her bottom. Wreckers have been summoned.

The United States, formerly a Great Lakes steamship, is said to be one of the most costly private yachts afloat, having a stateroom for every State in the Union.

BLACKMAIL LETTER LEADS TO ARREST

FORMER FRIEND IS ACCUSED

When Mrs. Bessie Hannsman, who lives in Bethel, Me., received a letter demanding $15,000, Tuesday, with the alternative of having her five-year-old son Carl kidnapped and disposed of, she hurried to this city to carry out the instructions in the letter. The child is said to be heir to $100,000.

If she did as she was told immediately, the writer said, she need pay only $1,000. She placed her child in safe hands and came to the city. The letter directed her to go to the waiting room of the Grand Central Station, to wait there a certain time, and then to take the Sixth Avenue elevated train downtown. She was to get off at Rector Street, go to a bank, get ten $100 bills and put them in a letter addressed to P. L. Fank, in care of General Delivery.

Mrs. Hannsman thought over the letter on the way, and decided, upon her arrival Wednesday morning, that she would seek the counsel of friends. Upon their advice she went to the Beach Street Station, where Detectives James P. Murphy and John Porter were assigned to aid her.

She gave them the letter, which was badly misspelled. Asked if she knew any one named Fank, she recalled that she knew a Preston L. Ford, whose initials would be the same as those of P. L. Fank. She added that Ford had borrowed money from her, and that at times she had cashed his checks.

On the detectives' advice she drew the money and mailed the letter, while the police kept watch at the General Delivery window. About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon a man asked for a letter for Preston L. Ford. There was one for him, postmarked Cincinnati. He made no inquiries for mail for Fank and was about to leave when he was arrested.

He denied knowledge of the letter to Mrs. Hannsman. The detectives ordered him to write at their dictation. The result, they asserted, was the misspelling of the same words incorrectly spelled in the letter.

Ford was taken to Police Headquarters, where he is held on suspicion of blackmail. He told the police he was a bookkeeper, now out of work. His address was given as 207 West Forty-fourth Street.

GLEAVES GOES TO PACIFIC.

Vice Admiral Will Leave Hoboken for Manila on Sept. 1.

Vice Admiral Albert Gleaves, during the war commander of the cruiser and transport force with headquarters in Hoboken, has been assigned to command the Asiatic fleet with headquarters in Manila. Announcement was made yesterday that Admiral Gleaves would leave Hoboken on Sept. 1 on the battleship North Dakota to take up his new duties.

Captain Casey B. Morgan, commander of the transport Imperator, has been named as his successor. Captain Morgan is to be made a temporary Rear Admiral in October, it was said yesterday. It is expected that the Navy Headquarters will be moved from Hoboken to this city after the first of October or as soon as the troop movement has been completed.

G. A. R. CHIEF ACCEPTS.

Civil War Veterans Will Attend American Legion Convention.

Delegates representing the Grand Army of the Republic will attend the first annual convention of the American Legion in Minneapolis next November, it was announced in this city yesterday, when a letter from C. E. Adams, Commander in Chief of the G. A. R., accepting an invitation to attend the session was made public.

In the letter the civil war veteran said the "whole country is looking to patriotic societies to take the lead in a campaign for a settled American policy," and "the time has come for all army men and all patriotic societies to strengthen their positions by a federation of their organizations."

IS DRUNKARD SINCE DRY LAW

Declaring that since prohibition set in her husband has obtained more liquor than before the passage of the ban, a woman who refused to give her name, appealed to Inspector Coleman, attached to the Federal Department, in Brooklyn, yesterday, and on her information Samuel Antor, of 201 Smith Street, was arrested and held by Commissioner Bick in $1,000 bail.

The arrest was made by officers Dill and Mutzer, who allege that they bought at the Smith Street address a bottle of whiskey for which they paid $3.75 in marked bills.

RESISTS PAULIST FATHERS.

Movie Proprietor Defends Lease of Parochial School.

William J. Lavery filed an application in the Supreme Court yesterday against the Paulist Fathers of Fifty-ninth Street and Columbus Avenue to restrain them from interfering with his lease of the auditorium of the parochial school for moving-picture entertainments. Lavery says he has been exhibiting for several years under a lease signed by the Rev. Father Charles M. Cassidy, as treasurer, for which he has paid $250 a month. The lease, he said, does not expire until 1921.

The Paulist Fathers contend that Father Cassidy had no power to sign the lease for any purpose not connected with the activities of the order. They say that when the Rev. Father Burke became Superior of the order he decided to close the picture show. When Lavery declined to remove his apparatus from the building the doors were locked.

The cash book of the former treasurer, Father Cassidy, shows monthly payments of from $250 to $450 under the heading of "From a Friend of Father Cassidy." Lavery contends that these sums came from him. Supreme Court Justice Hendrick will decide whether Lavery has a valid lease or is a trespasser.

HELD IN STOCK FRAUD CASE.

Judge McIntyre Places C. W. Galvin Under $10,000 Bail.

Charles W. Galvin and Irwin Bloom, members of the stock-promoting firm of C. W. Galvin & Co., 50 Broad Street, and two of their employes, Robert E. Bloom and Leroy Smith, were arraigned in General Sessions yesterday on three indictments charging conspiracy, grand larceny, and false pretenses in connection with the promotion of the stock of the Tex-York Producing Company, an oil corporation of Texas. Judge McIntyre released Galvin in $10,000 bail pending pleading, and the others in $4,000 bail each. Two other employes named in the indictments have not yet appeared.

Mr. Dooling, Assistant District Attorney, alleges that the brokerage firm's members conspired to publish false advertisements and that he has been unable to find the assets reported in the advertisements. Among fourteen witnesses said to have appeared before the Grand Jury concerning Galvin & Co. were H. J. Henning of the Army Engineering Department and James W. Lemond, realty and oil lease owner of Waco, Texas. Nathan D. Perlman, attorney for the brokers, issued a statement in which he asserted that Mr. Dooling had broken his promise to permit the brokers to appear and freely tell their side of the situation to the Grand Jury.

YOUTH SOON LOSES SUDDEN WEALTH

FIRST BOUGHT AUTOMOBILE

Says He Was Beaten and Robbed of Remaining Money After Becoming Intoxicated.

William Callahon, 17 years old, of 265 Bridge Street, who, according to the police, disappeared on August 10 with $700 worth of Liberty bonds consigned from him employers to H. Hoey and Co. of 74 Broadway, was found unconscious yesterday at Avenue U and East Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn.

The boy, who was a messenger employed by W. E. R. Smith and Co. of 20 Broad Street, told conflicting stories to the police. In one story he said he bought an automobile from two men who took him to Coney Island, where they spent $200 for liquor, after which they beat and robbed him. He is said to have declared to Detective Lavelle that he bought an automobile for $200, went to Coney Island, where he became intoxicated, and then engaged a chauffeur and another man to drive him home. The two men, he said, set on him and robbed him of $400.

Callahan was placed under arrest, charged with grand larceny. He was found by Police Sergeant Crowley of the Sheepshead Bay Station and was taken to the Coney Island Hospital suffering from cuts and bruises. If his condition warrants he will be taken to the Tombs Court for arraignment today.

William Sherwood, 30 years old, who lives at the Mills Hotel, Thirty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, was arrested in Mulberry Bend Park yesterday, charged with implication in the theft of $28,000 worth of Liberty bonds from Hartshorne & Battle, 25 Broad Street, on May 27 last, and later recovered in a chimney at 104 Eighth Avenue. Several others indicted in connection with the crime have been sent to prison or are awaiting sentence. Dennis Forrest, a messenger, to whom the bonds were given to deliver to the Federal Reserve Bank, has been sentenced to Elmira Reformatory.

STORE ADOPTS BONUS PLAN.

Best & Co. Rewards Employes in "Non-Selling" Force.

The department store of Best & Co., through Ancell H. Ball, its President, yesterday announced the adoption of an annual bonus system for the benefit of its non-selling organization. The plan affects members of the "non-selling" force whose salary is less than $1,600 a year on or before Dec. 31 of this year.

The bonus is graduated in scale, depending on the length of service. Employes who have completed a year of service will receive 5 per cent. of their annual salary. Those who have been with the firm fifteen years or more will be paid 10 per cent. of their yearly earnings.

In announcing the plan, Mr. Ball said the system had been adopted after a careful study of various plans that would enable the "non-selling organization to participate equitably in the prosperity of the department store." He said that the bonus was in no sense a gift, but a reward for loyalty and merit.

HOLD ROBBERY SUSPECT.

The young man who gave the name of Arthur Gerard on being arrested Wednesday night on suspicion of having been connected with the $85,000 jewel robbery in the home of Frederick H. Allen, at Pelham Manor, was taken to the Pelham Manor Jail yesterday. He refused to make a statement to the police, asking Chief of Police Gargan for "time to think it over." He will be arraigned today or tomorrow before Justice of the Peace Rogers on an indictment returned after the theft in 1917 charging robbery.

Chief Gargan and Detectives Conlon and Inker, who visited the prisoner's rooms on Seventh Avenue, found a large quantity of clothing, some jewelry, boxes of silk stockings, and some pawn tickets. Two of the tickets were dated in 1917. One was for a diamond stud on which $200 had been raised and the other was for a ring on which $375 had been borrowed. No trace of the articles has been found. The police also found a uniform and shield of the Police Reserves and an internal revenue shield in the rooms.

STAGE thunder for matinee maidens! That's all the pounding of pans about High Clothes Prices amounts to. I turned out tiptop suits to individual measure at $35 to $60. For Autumn, I am charging only $40 to $80. Where's the big rise and why the big noise?

Off with that old high price talk, and on with new clothes! Pay a little more you must, but it is so little more than before that no man, not suffering from an aggravated attack of the shivers, will hold back on account of a five-dollar bill.

STRIKING PAINTERS CRITICISED

A most unusual situation is presented in the present strike of painters. Organized labor has usually sought to deal with employers collectively rather than individually. We have here a case where a group of employers, the Association of Master Painters and Decorators of the City of New York, offers to meet and deal collectively with the Union, but the Union refuses to have anything to do with the Association.

The present demands were presented to individual employers by circular letters dated July 26, 1919, in which August 15, 1919, was fixed as the date of effectiveness. The demands were presented as an ultimatum, no suggestion being made of conference or negotiations. In an agreement, however, between the Association of Master Painters and Decorators and District Council No. 9 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, which agreement was effective from April 1, 1919, to December 31, 1919, arbitration is provided for any dispute or matter pertaining to the trade and both parties subscribed to the fundamental principles set forth in the joint arbitration plan of the New York Building Trades.

The reason given by the Union for declining to deal with the Association of Master Painters and for disregarding the agreement with the Association both as to period of effectiveness and arbitration machinery provided is that the Association of Master Painters failed to enforce the decision of a board of arbitration in the case of one employer. Whatever of merit there may be in the charge, much of it is lost by the unwillingness of the Union to await orderly procedure.

In a telegram to the Union the morning of August 11, I urged that the principle of collective negotiation and an orderly procedure be not upset and requested that a Committee call at my office. No reply was received until the morning of the 18th, the day the strike was called, and which for some reason had been fixed two days earlier than the specified date of effectiveness of the demands previously presented. In a subsequent interview with the Chairman of the Emergency Committee of the Union no disposition was shown to end the strike other than by the capitulation of employers, regardless of the time necessary to bring this about. Arbitration was in fact refused on the ground that they were arbitrating the matter by having each employer come in and sign the agreement.

Now, I have nothing to say as to the merits of the demands, though it may be remarked that the existing competition of wages and prices makes both of vital concern to the public. But the disregard of orderly procedure, the presenting of an ultimatum subject to no compromise or negotiations, the upsetting of the prinicple of negotiating collective rather than individual agreements is so contrary to the things for which organized labor has stood as to be of grave concern.
